Declares Judge a "Frame up" Victim

TULSA, Okla., July 15.—Judge Lucien B. Wright of Sapulpa, Okla., released on bond of $10,000 on a charge of having accepted a bribe of $90,000, of which $10,000 is alleged to have already been paid for his decision in the "Tommy Atkins" oil case, was declared the victim of a "frame up" by his attorney, Judge D. A. McDougal, today. The case involved $1,000,000 in oil lands. Attorney General S. P. Freling, who has charge of the prosecution of Judge Wright, said he had examined the evidence and was certain that the jurist would be proved guilty.

NEW PLAYERS FOR HIGHLAND DAYLIGHTS

Manager Lord of the Highland Daylights has secured the services of two new players, Frank and Peterson. Frank is a well known local boy, who has been playing with the Unity A.C. of Lawrence, and Peterson is a new-comer, who is hoped will materially strengthen the Daylights. He has played semi-pro ball along the North shore for the past two seasons and is a heavy batter and fast fielder. He is now employed in the Saco-Lowell shops. With these additions to his lineup Manager Lord hopes to give the league leaders a stiff fight for the top of the ladder.

TO STANDARDIZE TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Lewis H. MacBrayna, general manager of the Massachusetts Safety council, has written to Mayor Perry D. Thompson requesting that the superintendent of police be instructed to detail two traffic officers from the local force to the state conference of traffic officers to be held in Boston, July 19. The purpose of the conference is to standardize traffic signals all over the state and discuss opportunities for a reduction in the number of accidents, etc.

THE STRAND

"Her Lord and Master," adapted from the stage play of the same name, with Alice Joyce starring, is a play of American and British life and manners. In the stage version Edith Shannon and the late Herbert Kelcey were starred. It's a better picture story than a stage play. Don't miss it.

In "The Freeze Out," in which Harry Carey appears, patrons have another opportunity of enjoying this star in a new role. The remainder of the bill is high class. The Strand is always "cool and comfortable." There are 1000 seats at 10 cents each at all performances.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Lovers of the best in photoplays are flocking to the Merrimack Square theatre to see Alice Joyce in her latest cinema triumph, "Wings of Priva." This production has been booked because it presents the star in a role that her hosts of admirers will welcome. "Wings of Priva" is a sensational drama of a young society girl, a gang of political crooks led by a boss who makes every attempt to get the girl for himself. It is packed full of the sort of dramatic action that spells excitement with many a thrill. William Desmond in "Women Men Love," another big dramatic production, provides the second big feature. A comedy and the International News complete the bill.

NEW LAKEVIEW PARK

Lowell swimmers are to enter competition at Lakeview next Thursday to determine the city champion.

Lowell has a dozen or more very well qualified aquatic experts, and there is more or less rivalry among them, also a lot of argument on the question of relative superiority. The contests next Thursday will settle all controversies. Contestants may leave their names with Mr. Coughlin, of the Kitteridge store, Central street. Meanwhile, Lakeview continues to be the ideal picnic ground of North Middlesex. Afternoon and evening, there is amusement in variety and quality.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway has 650 miles of its road electrified.

BROCKTON GETS CUT IN TROLLEY FARES

BROCKTON, July 15.—A reduction in fares on the lines of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company was announced today by the Brockton home rule committee, of which George W. Alden is chairman. Commencing Sunday tickets good for 17 rides from the Brockton central zone will be sold for $1. At present 14 rides are given for $1.

The new scale will not benefit patrons of the road living in Whitman, East Bridgewater, Rockland, Abington, West Bridgewater or Stoughton. They will continue to use the 14-ride tickets. The 10-cent unit of fare remains and the two-zone 10-cent fare on Main street is discontinued.

Irish Peace Parley

Yesterday were witnessed at the meeting between the British prime minister and the republican leader was in progress. A large crowd awaited Mr. De Valera and cheered him as he entered Downing street, repeating the ovation as he and his companions left at the close of the talk. As the conference proceeded prayers for its success were said by the crowd in Whitehall, the men and women kneeling and reciting the Rosary.

On leaving Downing street, Mr. De Valera said there would not be any further meeting today and that he "did not think" there would be a meeting Saturday.

No Deadlock
A member of Mr. De Valera's party gave definite assurances that nothing in the nature of a deadlock or a breakdown of the conference threatened at any time. Meanwhile Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, arrived in London today from Belfast announcing on his arrival that he would see the premier this afternoon.

Asked for an expression of opinion on the Irish situation, Sir James replied: "The less said now the better."

He added, however, that he was hopeful.

At the close of yesterday's conversation, which lasted almost three hours, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera gave evidence that some progress had been made and that today's discussion would be resumed under favorable circumstances.

Unlikely to Meet Craig
When Mr. De Valera left his hotel on his way to Downing street, where he was to meet the prime minister, a member of his party told the Associated Press, it was "extremely unlikely" that he would come in contact today with Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, who was summoned to London in connection with the conference.

Art O'Brien, president of the Gaelic League in London, and Robert C. Barton, member of the Irish delegation, accompanied Mr. De Valera but remained in another room when today's conference began. Prior to Mr. De Valera's arrival at No. 10 Downing street, Sir H. Eden, chief secretary for Ireland and Lord Curzon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, conferred with the prime minister.

Mr. De Valera and his companions drove to Downing street in an open car, and were loudly cheered by a large crowd in Whitehall.

Mr. De Valera arrived at the prime minister's official residence at 11.30 o'clock and the two men resumed their interview in the cabinet room.

Resume Military Control

BELFAST, July 15.—(By the Associated Press)—The military resumed control of the North Queen street area in Belfast this morning and armored cars patrolled the streets.

A conference was held at the city hall by officers of the police and the military and by leading townspeople to discuss the situation.

Acute trouble developed early last evening in the York street and North Queen street district, several civilians being wounded. The rioting stopped abruptly at the curfew hour but it was announced that reinforcement of the military in Belfast for adjourning areas today was contemplated.

When the reports from last night's rioting were made public this morning it developed that two persons were killed during the disorders, and that between 30 and 40 others were wounded.

During the disturbances the mob looted a number of public houses.

Council of Ministers

LONDON, July 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Premier Lloyd George held a council of ministers at the house of commons tonight to discuss his meeting with Mr. De Valera. Later he proceeded to a dinner of the liberal constitutionalists, where he received a great ovation.

Apologizing for his late appearance, he said he had been engaged in important tasks during the day and after discharging them had to meet his colleagues and report to his sovereign, who, he declared, was taking a very keen and close interest in the proceedings and to whose intervention so much was attributable.

"We owe him," added the premier, "a deep debt of gratitude for this, one of the greatest services he has rendered." This was greeted with loud applause.

With reference to Ireland, Mr. Lloyd

George besought his audience not to tempt him into an indiscretion.

"The less said the better at this stage," declared the premier. "But there is the great fact—that Mr. De Valera, chieftain of the vast majority of the Irish race, has been in conference for nearly three hours with the prime minister of this country, discussing various methods of suggestions for the settlement of this long, long controversy—an old, bitter, wasteful feud, a feud in which there has been for ages long a number of disastrous blunders, and endless opportunities lost."

"Let us trust that this one will not be lost. I can only say, after the long discussion, that I am certain we both did our best to secure peace. (Loud cheers.) Beyond that it would not be wise for me to go at this moment, because we both have our difficulties to deal with."

Mr. Lloyd George alluded to "the remarkable invitation issued by the president of the United States to discuss the issues involved in the Pacific problem, on which the future peace of the world depends."

He went on to say: "I am hopeful that it will result in a pact of peace."

SAYS GOODBYE TO GIRL

Worcester Man Then Sends a Bullet Crashing Into His Brain

WORCESTER, July 15.—After bidding goodby to his sweetheart, with whom he had quarreled earlier in the night, George A. Southwick, 32 of North Brookfield, went to his room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackmer, 16 Newbury street, parents of the girl, last night and, placing a 22-calibre revolver in his right temple, sent a bullet crashing into his brain. The bullet lodged over his left eye after passing through his head. He was rushed to the Worcester city hospital in the police ambulance. He is not expected to live.

According to the police, Southwick had been keeping company with Florence Blackmer, daughter of the couple, with whom he boarded. On July 4 he asked for an engagement ring he had given her, and this week he returned it.

The incident, it is said, caused a quarrel at the time, and earlier last night it was renewed. Southwick threatened to kill himself and the girl. It is alleged. He went to his room later and shouted out of an open window, "Goodby Florence, here goes!" Then he fired a shot. Not much significance was paid to the shooting, as it was thought he was attempting to frighten the girl and her parents. Shortly after the shot was fired one of the boarders entered the room and found Southwick on the bed with the blood streaming from his right temple. On the mirror was a small card on which Southwick had written, "Be justified by faith, have peace with God."

It was stated at the Blackmer home that Southwick had just returned from Bethel mission, and before going to his room asked forgiveness from the girl and members of her family for any wrong he had done. He was forgiven by the girl and her parents when he promised to mend his ways. It was stated.

KISLOFF IN CUSTODY OF FEDERAL OFFICERS

A federal warrant has been issued for Nicholas Kisloff, the alleged bill-raiser recently captured here by Officer Spillane after a thrilling chase, and he will be taken into custody by government officers. This morning he was fingerprinted at local police headquarters preparatory to turning him over to the federal arm. He then appeared before Judge Enright in the police court, and a charge of larceny preferred against him by the authorities here was dismissed for lack of prosecution. He is charged, on the federal complaint, with "raising and altering" a note of the United States government, and with uttering the same upon Mirbas Barsorian, a South street merchant. When apprehended by Officer Spillane, Kisloff, who has an alias of "Clyde Meadow," struck himself on the head with a rock which he was holding, crying that he wanted to die, that he had nothing to live for. Later, at police headquarters, he begged for a revolver with which to end his life. He sought clemency from Officer Spillane, and from Barsorian, on the grounds that he was a former cavalryman in the United States army. An identification disk, giving him as a member of the 15th cavalry, was found on his person when he was searched at headquarters prior to being locked up.

Kisloff is a young man of good appearance, but pale from his self-inflicted wound, which necessitated a physician's ministrations, and which caused him to make his first appearance in court with his head swathed in heavy bandages. Federal officers came to Lowell, to take over his custody from the police here.

CLOTHESLINE THIEF ACTIVE
The "clothesline thief" who has been terrorizing the populace of Lowell by arousing fears of a shortage in clean linen, is active again. It is learned that Mrs. M. C. Tufts Case Continued

Later Levenson said that $7500 would fix the matter. Witness said that he considered it a terrible holdup. He Grant, however, paid Levenson $4500. Levenson would not take a check, neither would he give a receipt. He insisted on getting the money in five bills. Four were for $1000 and the fifth for $500.

Of "Nice" Family

Testimony that George S. Harvey, formerly assistant to District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county appealed to the district attorney of Suffolk county to quash an indictment against a man because he was of a "nice family," was introduced today in the proceedings for Tufts' removal.

Joseph C. Pelletier, district attorney of Suffolk county, testified that the request was made in a letter dated Mar. 25, 1917. The letter was written on the stationery of the law firm of Tufts, Harvey & Campbell, the witness said, and concerned John B. Curry, who had been defaulted on an indictment for a statutory offense. He was at the time in St. John, N. B., it was stated.

Could Do Nothing Further

Pelletier said he replied to Harvey on March 29 that he could do nothing further in the case. After the ball had been given by Curry had been settled Harvey met Pelletier and asked if Curry could return, the witness said. The Suffolk prosecutor said he told Harvey that if the fugitive came to Boston he would be arrested.

The evidence was introduced in support of a charge of Atty. Gen. J. Weston Allen that Tufts maintains a law office in Boston and has "personally and by members of his firm defended criminal cases in this commonwealth and acted for persons charged with crimes against the commonwealth whereby he has received emoluments that came from such service."

Regarding Papers

Pelletier also was questioned regarding papers which Daniel H. Coakley testified were stolen from his office by agents of the Watch & Ward society. Some of these Coakley said concerned the case of the motion picture men for whom he acted in settling claims arising out of a midnight party at Mishawum Manor, the Woburn road house.

The witness said he did not remember the name Mishawum appearing on the list of cases introduced at the time Water and Ward men were tried on charges arising out of the taking of the papers. In drawing up the indictment, in that case, he said, the question came up whether the Mishawum papers were to be mentioned, but it was decided to stick to those which previously had been offered in evidence at a hearing before a committee of the bar association.

Dramatic Moment

A dramatic moment occurred in the trial yesterday, when Special Asst. Atty.-Gen. Henry F. Hurlbut offered to show by the testimony of Joseph L. Meisse that Stephen C. Bresnahan "went to the house of Meisse as the representative of Tufts, and promised Harvey if he surrendered he'd be pardoned in a short time, because Tufts expected to be governor, and pending that would be allowed to go to Rutland."

The attorneys for the defence objected strenuously, and after the five justices had conferred, Chief Justice Rugg inquired whether Hurlbut expected to bring that home directly to Tufts. Hurlbut admitted that he could not say that Tufts had to go on the stand and admit that. The court, after another conference, announced that the testimony would be excluded "for the present."

Barred From Telling

Mrs. Meisse was also barred from telling of conversation she had with Barnes, the escaped murderer, and conversations she overheard in her house in which Bresnahan took part. Mr. Hurlbut intends to attempt to get in the testimony in another way, it is reported.

LAWYERS HONOR FREDERIC S. HARVEY
The Villa Lorraine, at Pepperell, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a brilliant assemblage of local representatives of the legal profession, met at a congratulatory banquet in honor of Frederic S. Harvey, newly appointed assistant United States district attorney for this state. A reception of an informal nature preceded the dinner, as did a business meeting of the Lowell Bar association, whose members comprised the greater proportion of the guests. Judge John J. Pickman presided at this session, which took up the matter of better provision for the trial of cases both at the police and superior courts. An effort will be made through committees to bring about the desired changes.

William H. Wilson, the toastmaster of the occasion, was introduced by Judge Pickman. He called for speeches from Daniel J. Donahue, J. Joseph Hennessy, Albert S. Howard, Judge Frederic A. Fisker, John J. Harvey and Mayor Perry D. Thompson, among others. Many strong tributes were paid to the recently appointed assistant United States district attorney, who in a brief speech of appreciation tendered his thanks for the cordial well wishes of his fellow members of the local bar association. He promised to give his best efforts to his new work. In an endeavor to reflect new honors on the Lowell bar.

Lottel, a brave druggist of Buffalo, who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctors failed. PETERSON'S OINTMENT entirely healed the sore quickly." Girl Who Manages Fighting Brothers Says Boxing Is Cleanest Sport

MISS ELIZABETH TUCKER

(By Newspaper Enterprise)
BREENGLEN, Tex., July 15.—"Say, girls! How would you like to enter the fight game—as a manager and promoter?"
Miss Elizabeth Tucker recommends it as one of the best sports for women! And she bases her recommendation on experience. "The fight game offers opportunities for individuality, financial remuneration, plenty of diversion and requires business ability," says she.
Brothers Are Fighters
Everybody in Breenbridge knows about Louie and Frankie Tucker. They have been battling in the light-weight division and both have mighty good records.
And everybody knows who has been the guiding star—Sister Elizabeth! She recently took her two brothers to Cincinnati in search of bouts.
"And that is only the first stopping place," says Miss Manager. "I hope to stack one of the boys—maybe both of them—up against Johnny Kilbane soon."
"When we fight, we win. I always see the word 'win' in speaking of our fights, because I always fight as hard as the boys do."
Miss Tucker laughs at the idea that the fight game is too rough for women. "Cleanest Sport!"

"It is a mistaken idea," says she, "to think that prize fighting is beneath women. It is the cleanest of all sports. It brings out the most in a man, teaches him self-defense and brings into action the best of his mental and physical being."
"A man cannot be a winner who is not clean morally and mentally and these two sides must be developed as much as the muscles. Our government recognizes the value of boxing at our war training camps."
Miss Tucker is considerable of an athlete herself. She is an expert swimmer, horsewoman and motorcyclist.
Says She's a Vet
"The boys and I don't need much outside entertainment in off-bout time—we sing, dance, read, study and play together for recreation and improvement."
Miss Manager was 16 when she stepped into the ring business. She figured her brothers needed someone to look after their business interests. So she nominated herself. "And today at 23, she admits she is a veteran in the game."

The Centralvilles climbed into the leading position in the Twilight League last evening on the South common by defeating a sound team up with the Broadways, score 5 to 3. Pitcher Mulno of the latter team handed the glory to the Centralvilles lads on a five-run inning in the first two innings of play. In the brief time that he occupied the mound he hit three men, scored one base on balls and allowed five safe hits. It was a record for quick succession and the total for the inning was three runs. The second inning was another wild one. After McDonald had fled out to second, McVey hit into the field for outskiers and Cawley choked the bases but W. Foye hit to the pitcher and McVey was forced out at the plate. R. Foye then stepped to the plate and socked the agile for a long single, scoring McVey and Cawley. That was all the scoring for that inning but it was plenty. The Broadways hardly had a chance for next time.
In the Broadways' half of the second inning Mulno whacked out the longest hit of the game and took three bases, scoring Mulno. In the fourth, after McDonald of the Centralvilles had allowed the bases to become over-populated, he was ranked and Cawley went out in the lot but the latter was not able to eradicate his team from the box and two runs for the Broadways was the result. The manner in which it happened was thus: Desmond was the first man who faced Cawley when he came to the mound. Two strikes had been called on the Broadways man and he looked as if he were easy meat when Cawley happened to flick one chest high right over the center and Desmond swung on it. The result was a neat single and Bagley and Sturtevant came home. The Broadways rooters were instantly on their feet with wild expectation but everything set for tying the score, Connors fled weakly to McVey and the side was retired.
SQUARERNESS FIRST
As far as Tex Rickard is concerned Jack Johnson will not get a match with Jess Willard—at least, not until Jess has absolutely convinced Tex that he can get into condition.
In other words, Rickard is thinking about the general public.
Every now and then we read about some duke prize fight that was a sure enough miss-match.
And every miss-match is a slap at the fight game.
The quicker managers of all sports realize that the general public expects

From that time on there was no scoring, the game being a mere battle between two unhittable twirlers. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME
Highland Daylights vs. C.M.A.C. tonight.
Every pitcher has his off days—even the best of them. Mulno has given ample proof in other games that he possesses the stuff, so last night's failure need not dishearten him.
Sturtevant, who replaced Mulno, pitched well and high peerless ball.
Arthur Lynch was under every fly that came into his territory.
Schombom is a quiet chap, who showed up rather well in his position at short.
McVey whacked out three hits out of a possible four.
Mulno's three-bagger was a corker and it softened the ire of those who saw him pitch.
Lynch and Desmond both stole bases successfully.
Some of these birds who are forever criticizing the umpire are just a little wearisome on the eyes and ears.
All up for tonight's game!

FRENCH DISPLAY SPORTSMANSHIP

A technically sound race has eliminated the American cars from competing in the French Grand Prix, to be held at Le Mans July 25.
Customs red tape held up the racers at Havre until they were too late to take part in the early trials that would qualify them to enter.
But the French are real sportsmen who have a keen sense of justice and fair play. They have decided on a new series of trial runs to permit the American cars to participate.
By this act, American racers are assured all will start at scratch when the checkered flag drops.

CHARLEY K. O. ELKINS
LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

Charley Mealey, manager of Charley K. O. Elkins, contender for the New England featherweight championship, is willing to post $500 with the sporting editor of The Sun on behalf of his charge for a bout with Al Shubert for the New England title.
Shubert is the recognized featherweight champion of New England and Mealey believes he should defend his title against all comers who have shown ability. If Shubert turns down the Elkins bout, Mealey is willing to have his man box any boy in the country at the featherweight limit.

The Harvard Athletic Association announced today that the tickets, which admit to eight games, not including the game with Yale, will cost $7. The price last year was $5.

JACK JOHNSON SAYS HE IS WORLD'S CHAMPION

CHICAGO, July 15.—Hailing himself as the next world's champion prize fighter, Jack Johnson, in his first public appearance in Chicago since his release from the penitentiary at Leavenworth, threw an audience of 5000 negro admirers into a frenzy yesterday at the Eighth Regiment armory when he declared that Dempsey would fail before him as Jeffries did years ago. Johnson's speech followed:
Ladies and Gentlemen—I am glad to be with you once again and I want to thank you very much for this grand ovation. I am going to prove to you that I am a real boxer by defeating my friend, Jack Dempsey.
If you have read the history of boxing, you know that I have won the world three times and defeated all comers. I never drew the weight or color line. When I left Chicago to seek James Jeffries I said that I was going to win. After the fight I said that Jeffries did not know how to box, and I now say that Dempsey does not know how either.
"I paid a debt to the public by serving one year at Leavenworth, and I am out to start anew. I went in with a smile and I came out with the same smile. I did not commit a crime, but I married a white girl, and there were two classes who derided me—the ignorant whites and the ignorant negroes. So am going to win my next fight, and you can bet on it. I am going to win even if the referee is against me. I know Tex Rickard was a friend of James Jeffries, but I did not care—I beat him and I know that I will be the next world's champion."
The public wants Dempsey whipped, and everybody knows I am the man to do it. I can beat the best of them. Look at my face. You don't see any thick lips and cauliflower ears. It does not make any difference what Dempsey says about drinking and color line. I will manage somehow to mix it up with him.
"I will prove to the world that Jack Johnson will make good, and I will give to the former leaders of my country the benefit of every possible effort."

SATURDAY'S GAME OUGHT TO BE A CORKER

Tomorrow afternoon's game at Spalding park between the Lowell Knights of Columbus and the Natick town team should be one of the best of the season. The Lowell team, which has the excellent record made so far by both outfits this season.
Manager Coughlin will present what will easily be the strongest lineup the Lowell team has ever had. He has secured the services of Pallatto, the star center fielder of the Boston Professionals, who appeared here July 4, and the clever player will be seen in a K. of C. uniform the rest of the season.
Jimmy Davidson, the Fitchburg star, will once more be on the mound for the locals and the other K. of C. stars, whose work has won great commendation from Lowell fans—Conlon, Riopet and McLaughlin—will all appear in tomorrow's game.
Tomorrow's game will be called at 3:15 and Keeler will umpire. Special car service to the grounds will be provided.

WILSON-ROBINSON MILL IS ON TONIGHT

BOSTON, July 15.—Johnny Wilson for the second time since he won the middleweight championship from Mike O'Dowd, will defend his title here tonight in a 10-round decision bout. He will meet Robinson, a negro boxer, who has a 12-round decision over Wilson to his credit, obtained before Wilson became champion. Robinson has been credited with the popular verdict by sport writers.
An invitation to view the bout was extended to Tex Rickard, in view of Wilson's claim to be the champion for the light heavyweight title.

ESPERANTO RAISED FOR FIFTH TIME

HALIFAX, N. S., July 15.—The Esperanto, champion fishing schooner of the North Atlantic, has been raised for the fifth time from Sable Island sand bar where she recently was wrecked. The schooner was raised and made today upon receipt of a wireless message to the department of marine and fisheries.
The wrecking tug Fabia went to the schooner's aid and made her way to the wreck, and her crew has been working steadily since that time. Although the Esperanto had been raised, the message said she had not moved from her position as yet.

NEW RECORD SET
AT WOODSTOCK, N. B.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., July 15.—John B. Braden, 24½, now owned by the Monocle club of Presque Isle, Me., won from Calgary Earl, 20½, owned by J. E. Powers of Houlton, Me., in first meeting here yesterday, before between 5000 and 10,000 people. Calgary won the first heat in 2:08½, new track record and quarter of a second lower than the Maritime Provinces racing record of 2:08 made at Chatham last year by Peter Farren.

FIGHT TICKETS GO ON SALE ON MONDAY

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Tickets for the eight-round fight between Benny Leonard, world's champion lightweight, and Lew Tendler of this city at the National league baseball park here August 12, will be placed on sale next Monday. It was announced today. Mail orders will be filled as soon as requests are received.

NEW PEDESTAL

The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, is to be placed on a new pedestal.
This cup was donated by Dwight F. Davis, in 1900, to stimulate international interest in the chalked court game.
The stimulation took place and today there are so many names of winners engraved on the cup that there isn't room for this year's winners.
Hence, Davis has ordered a pedestal on which more inscriptions can be made.

RULES ARE ACCEPTABLE
Captain of English Team
Agrees to International Track-Meet Conditions

CAMBRIDGE, July 15.—The scoring and competitive rules suggested by Harvard and Yale athletic officials for the international meet with Oxford-Cambridge, are acceptable to Capt. B. D. Rudd of the English team. It was announced today.

"Rough Ridin' Fool"—Air Cayuse Can't Make Cowboy "Pull Leather"

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—"He's a rough ridin' fool." So say western aviators in speaking of "Jinx" Jenkins, Texas cowboy, who stepped from his cayuse to the back of an airplane for his first ride in the air. "Jinx" said he didn't feel at home in the deep cockpit and the only way he'd enjoy his ride would be from a saddle. So a saddle was fastened to the fuselage and "Jinx" mounted. The pilot put on his best bucking stunts, through tail spins, loops and everything known to aviators. But "Jinx" never once "pulled leather." The picture shows him with his automatic, ready to go up on a sea-gull hunting expedition.

SHORT SHIP RACES

Hale Garner Sets New 3-Year-Old Mark

SPRINGFIELD, July 15.—In winning first money in the three-year-old trot yesterday afternoon in the Short Ship races here, Hale Garner, owned by R. C. McClanahan of Erie, Pa., trotted the fastest mile for three-year-olds on a half-mile track this year and is claimed to have broken the world's record with a second mile in 2:11 1/4. Eddie McGrath was at the helm of the Quaker entry.

The world's record for three-year-olds is held by Miss Ellen Todd at 2:10 1/4, the record being made at Louisville, Ky., last fall.

Northern Lily was a victor over Etabella, the favorite, in 2:10 pace, after Joe Johnson was placed on the sulky for Billy Crozier in the third heat. Etabella was distanced after winning the first two heats.

Minor Hal, a local owned horse, surprised the railbirds by capturing the 2:09 pace over Almaden Onward. Harry Beusie had little trouble with the big chestnut. The summary:

PAGES 2-MINUTE MILE

Single G Beats Sanardo at Toledo Grand Circuit—Record Attendance

TOLEDO, July 15.—Pacing the first two-minute mile of the season, the veteran racer, Single G, again starred at Fort Miami Park yesterday, where he won the free-for-all pace over a small field, only a trio starting, and neither of the pair contesting was able to give the Indiana horse a real battle.

The attendance was a record-breaker for the track and the racing was exciting, with the judges having a busy day, the officials finding it necessary to declare bets off on the result of the first division of the 2:05 trotting stake. This was to have been raced as one division, but on account of the large number of starters the drivers and owners made a vigorous protest to the management, and the race was split.

Single G was a prohibitive favorite in the fast pace and after Sanardo did the early pacemaking in the first heat, he came from behind and won in 2:00 flat. He led all the way in the next two heats in slower time, pacing the final quarter of the second mile in 27 3/4. W. B. Warefoot, his owner, was presented a silver cup by the management.

The Toddler led nearly all the way in the first heat of the 2:05 trot, beating Emma Harvester in a close finish. Great Britton came from behind and beat the Toddler in the second stretch. The judges were not satisfied with the drive of Dodge with 2:03 1/4, equalling the trotting record for the season. In the third the Toddler won when Great Britton broke in battle with the drive of Dodge with Great Britton and declared all bets off.

Save gasoline by using more air

How can you do it? What sort of special engine and carburetor do you have to have?

Here's the answer: ordinary gasoline is sluggish. It vaporizes slowly. It burns mighty little air—requires a rich, wasteful mixture of 8 parts gasoline to 15 of air. Not only does it run up your fuel bills, but it brings down the efficiency of your engine.

Don't stand for it! Tydol vaporizes fast. It is made to run on a lean 15 to 1 mixture—to burn more air and less fuel. Fill up with Tydol today.

TRACK ATHLETES ARRIVE

English Stars Reach Boston and Are Whisked to North Shore

CAMBRIDGE, July 15.—The Oxford and Cambridge track athletes, with the exception of four stars who went to Princeton, N. J., to spend a few days, arrived in Boston last night in company with Maj. F. W. Moore of the Harvard A. A. They were met by Frank Knapp of the I.A.A. at the South station and were immediately whisked in automobiles to Swampscott, where they will have quarters at the New Ocean house until the international inter-collegiate competitions, which will take place at Cambridge a week from tomorrow.

Cent. B. G. D. Rudd of Oxford, W. K. Milligan of Oxford, W. S. Kent-Hughes and L. S. C. Ingram, both also of Oxford, are the four who will be guests at Princeton before they come to start their final training in the Harvard stadium.

At the stadium yesterday there was a short but very keen workout for the Harvard and Yale men. Coaches Bingham and Mack, Farrell and Quail, had their athletes primed to make more effort than in any of the earlier drills. The runners were not sent over their distances at a limit of speed, but were required to cut loose a lot faster than heretofore.

In the century Sam Feldman continued to work on starts also, showing good speed for his complete distances, and Tony Linton and Sheldon both worked hard on the hurdles, particularly on the first rights. Hillis and O'Connell rushed off together in the mile, the Yale runner putting on more speed and finishing in 4m. 25s, although very easily. O'Connell ran his mile in 4m. 16s, and then ran a good quarter besides at SOME FOOD VALUES

Mrs. Sandwall of State Dept.
Gives Valuable Information

Mrs. Alzira W. Sandwall, health instructor in foods for the state department of public health, in a recent address said that tomato juice is as good as orange juice for babies. Good cheer is essential to good digestion, Mrs. Sandwall pointed out. The stomach is highly sensitized and a worried or cross condition seriously affects the digestion. Therefore, a family should be careful at table to avoid controversy, said the lecturer, and mothers should avoid making the table a place for bringing up reprimands to the children. Conversation should not turn to the worrisome news of the day.

Values of Foods
Mrs. Sandwall told about the different values of foods. Milk, of course, and eggs were said to be perfect foods. She continued:

"People must keep in mind that what they eat is what makes and keeps their bodies. There are four groups of foods: For building, energy giving, regulating the body processes and foods which promote growth and maintain health."

"Milk comes first in every group. Adults should not consider milk a baby food; it is just as much a food for them. Every person should have at least two glasses of milk a day. That does not mean in glasses, for they may take the milk in puddings, junkets or on cereals. We could get along very well without meat, but we could not get along without milk. Milk should be the first on the order for the table and the last to go off."

"Milk will build a body three times as fast as any other food. Meat is a building food. It is too highly flavored for children, however. They get used to the high flavor and it spoils their taste for other foods they should have."

Mrs. Alzira W. Sandwall, health instructor in foods for the state department of public health, spoke about "Food and its Relation to Health."

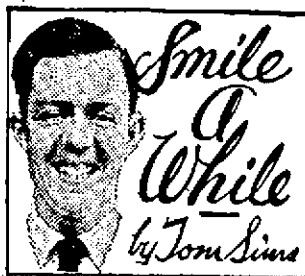

She was introduced by A. B. Eloney. Yesterday Dr. J. E. Henry, epidemiologist of the state department of public health, was the speaker. Miss Evelyn C. Schmidt, D.H., health instructor of mouth hygiene, will give an address about the care of children's teeth.

"What the Public Health Nurse Can Do For the Mother" will be the topic today by Miss Cecelia A. Lemmer, R.N., nursing assistant to the district health officer of the state department of public health. Saturday Dr. Henry I. Rowatch, will tell what should be the "Mental Care of the Child."

"Energy food are sugars, starchy foods and oils. It is necessary to keep enough of these foods in the diet so that building foods will not be used for energy. To use building foods for energy is like burning down the walls of a house to heat the inside of the house. In order to keep enough of energy foods in the diet it is a good plan to have cereal for breakfast and bread and butter for every meal, dark bread preferably. Potatoes should be used at least once a day."

"Sugar should be used sparingly. People ordinarily think of sugar as they get it in cane sugar. The body would get along best without it at all. All the sugar the body needs is in sweet fruits, sweet vegetables and in milk. And it is well to remember that every bit of starch changes to sugar inside the body."

Use and Abuse of Sugar
"Sugar is a valuable food if used wisely. It should be used at the end of a meal instead of at the beginning. Children are apt to pile it on their cereal. This is bad. If they do that they are getting two foods that serve the same purpose. Children do not need any superfluous energy-giving.

"As with adults, sugar taken will produce quick energy in 30 minutes. Children don't need anything like that. Children should not have any highly sweetened foods. It gives them a wrong taste. Pennies for stylish lollipops should be diverted to apples or other fruit."

"Bananas are good for children if they are given baked, as with brown sugar and butter."

"Fats are energy-giving. Bacon crisp brown is good. Beware of fried foods."

"Minerals regulate body processes. Leafy vegetables are fine. Carrots are extra good. In the cereals, oatmeal is specially good."

In giving general health suggestions to adults Mrs. Sandwall emphasized the need for eating a good breakfast because when a person neglects this he is running his body on itself instead of on a food supply engine."

She advised all to remember that a person does not reach full growth until 25 years old, that although a person may have reached full height the body organs are still growing. Members of the family should be weighed every month to make sure they are keeping up to standard, she said, boys and girls in the adolescent period should gain one pound every month.

Everyone needs to drink plenty of water, she declared; particularly should water be taken upon rising. Just as regularly as one would brush the teeth.

HAYS TO RAISE POSTAL CHARGES

Cost of Sending Special Delivery Letter to be Boosted to 25 Cents

Quicker Service to be Given in Both City and Rural Sections

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The cost of sending a special delivery letter is to be raised from a dime to 25 cents. Postmaster General Hays in making the change is going on the theory that when a person sends a special delivery message he wants the message specially delivered, which is a service that cannot be rendered for a dime. As things are now, a messenger gets possibly 100 special delivery letters and starts out with the whole batch, delivering them in the order he can arrange. The result is that in most cases the letters come to their recipients one or several hours after they reach the postoffice. Very often it takes longer for a special delivery letter to get to its ultimate destination than a letter sent by ordinary mail. When the pneumatic tubes were re-established in New York, special delivery letters should be in the hands of the people to whom they are addressed within a very few minutes of their receipt at the postoffice. The rural communities are to have a service, also. It is of course, impossible, from a business standpoint, to

THE COOLEST MARKET IN LOWELL

MEASURES UP WELL AS TRAFFIC OFFICER

Monte Christo, known throughout the world to lovers of romance, played one of the most amazing escapes in the history of fiction. But a Lowell man has matched in real life the exploit of Dumas' hero, although the two escapes are of dissimilar nature. The foregoing arouses your interest; it smacks of the unusual, with a strong aroma of local interest. Well, read on, especially if you are of the gentler sex.

Suppose you were tall, well-built, in perfect physical trim which enabled you to remain on your feet all day without fatigue, of pleasing personality, natively attired in a blue uniform, and, above all, spending a large portion of your time in the very heart of this city's activity. Wouldn't you be inclined to feel rather a remarkable person if you were a bachelor?

Probably Officer Edward J. Connors, the sole bachelor member of Lowell's traffic force, who guides the destinies of the myriad vehicles and pedestrians who cross Merrimack square, doesn't feel that way about it. In the first place, he is a modest, quiet, albeit good-humored man, who no doubt never gives a moment's thought to his husky, rangy build. It probably never occurred to him that it's a fine figure of a man he is, standing calmly in the midst of the swirl of Merrimack square traffic, keeping things moving without a hitch for hours on end, answering questions, fool and otherwise, exercising a chivalrous care for the aged, or for children, or for women burdened with a day's shopping, who seek to navigate the maze of the city's highways, autos, and trucks. In fact, when interviewed, he didn't seem to find it particularly remarkable that he has not been snatched away into the land of the benedictines. But to the reader the matter must possess a different aspect.

It is to be hoped that the revelation of Officer Connors' bachelorhood isn't the publishing of anything too personal. After all, the ladies have certain rights, and surely not the least of these is the privilege of being apprised of a potential good husband. Man is supposed to be the stronger animal. So let him escape if he can. But, all joking aside, Officer Connors has made a host of new and staunch friends during the years that he has directed traffic at the square. Many of these friends no doubt, are unknown to him. But the little ones on whom he has kept a watchful and guarding eye as they negotiated the busy cross-death, and the multitude of others whom he has helped by a word of information, given gladly and without grudging, all these are his friends, whether he is aware of the fact or not. The blue-clad figure standing in the very vortex of the rushing street means to them protection, and kindness. For observation discloses the fact that these are Officer Connors' dominant characteristics as a public servant. And what a combination! How fortunate is Lowell in that her "traffic cops" are gentler, not sour fellows filled with curled milk of human kindness!

The writer has been in some cities, so have you, where, alack, to query a traffic cop was the equivalent of leasing a lion. It evoked growls, snorts, even snarls. There are American cities, 'tis sad, but we must admit it is true, beyond contradiction, where both the foot-passer and the autoist is made the butt of the blue-coats who direct traffic. When crossing the street, one is subject to round abuse by these minions of the law. They shout bellicosely at all who dare attempt to pass their crossing. They make personal remarks reflective on one's intelligence if one does not follow their directions minutely. But here's some food for local pride: You are hereby defied to find one traffic cop in Lowell who is not a warm-hearted gentleman whose desire is to assist at all times, not to make life a misery for all who come within his ken.

There are six traffic cops in this city, but Officer Connors has been on the job as a crossing custodian longer than any of his confreres. Joining up with the forces some fourteen years ago, he spent three years as a "super," as the officers term themselves before they go on a regular route. Then he was on a beat for three years more. And finally he was assigned to Merrimack square, and there he has remained during the past eight years, the eldest man on the job of all.

Officer Connors is a specialist. Anyone will tell you that. And his specialty is an interesting one. It is to look out for women and children, and the aged. He admits himself that when a little tot is crossing the street, or an elderly folks shift for themselves while he devotes his attention to the weak.

I guess that we who reside in the vigor of youth won't hold that against him. Perhaps he has saved our mothers, our little tots, from being run down. A pretty good specialty, we'll say.

There has never been a serious smash in the square since Officer Connors first was stationed there. How's that for an efficiency record! Indeed, a traffic cop needs to be efficient. The mistakes most of us make in our business involve only a pecuniary loss. But the job of the traffic officer means life and limb! It means something when he can show a practically 100 per cent record. Yet it is learned on the best authority that Officer Connors has registered to all intents perfect.

The other day while the writer was chatting with Officer Connors, a woman approached and asked the time of a trolley. She got her answer without hesitation. "Ye gods," exclaimed the writer, "aren't you too busy to memorize the street railroad time table, and hand out information that the road should furnish? I should think questions like that would capture your goal."

"Well, the starters are pretty busy, too," he answered simply. That's the spirit!

POLICE HOLD BOY FOR SAFE KEEPING

The police are still holding 15-year-old Hodge Bourgeau, taken into custody late yesterday afternoon after attempting to leap from a second-story window at the Alken street house where he resides. Officer Lemay brought him to headquarters and this morning he was examined for his sanity by Dr. Michael A. Tighe, city physician. It is understood that further tests of the boy's mentality will be made before his case is finally disposed of. While locked up at the police station last night, he is said to have attempted hanging by means of his belt. According to information gleaned today, the youngster was kidnapped some years ago from his parents. After the capture in Canada of the man responsible for the act, it was discovered that the boy's parents could not be located. It is stated that he was thereupon adopted by Lowell people.

quart, so that the total larceny charged against the defendant is in the sum of $230. But it may be that Mr. Hall, owner of the liquor, who is understood to be in New York at the present time, will ask for a revaluation when the case comes up for trial, as it is stated that the police valuation of $10 a quart is less than the prevailing price here for hooch, or near-her.

Clark was first apprehended on the evidence of a girl and a lodging-house keeper. The girl, who was today sentenced to the Lancaster school in the juvenile police court session, told the police that the defendant was in her company at a local establishment, and the proprietor of the place admitted the truth of this, adding, however, that they engaged two rooms, registering as brother and sister. A warrant was sworn out on this testimony, and Clark was locked up. Later he was accompanied by Lieutenant Maher to locations in the Alken street district, where eight quarters of the stolen liquor were recovered. Later more was discovered by the police, some of it said to date back to the year 1920.

On the charge of improper conduct, Clark was released on bail of $1000. Because of the high bond, he was allowed to go this morning by Judge Enright, with a surety of $100, personal recognition, on the charge of breaking and entering. The first charge, that of improper conduct, was complicated by the fact that the defendant is said to be a married man, Lieutenant David E. Petrie was recognized for appearance as a government witness July 15, when the case will be heard. The lieutenant procured the evidence on which Clark was taken on the first charge made against him. Prior to that time, Officer Joseph Lamoureux had made an investigation of the theft of the liquor. Lieutenant Petrie's investigations of the latter charge had not proceeded sufficiently far prior to Clark's arrest to warrant the issuance of a complaint on the breaking and entering charge; but he uncovered sufficient evidence, through the statements of the girl and the man who kept the lodging-house, to bring about the de-

Clark has engaged counsel, and will plead not guilty to both charges lodged against him, although, it is stated at police headquarters that he has made admissions relative to his connection with the missing liquor.

There is no question as to the fact that he accompanied Lieutenant Maher at the time that the first eight quarts of assorted liquors were brought to headquarters and placed under lock and key. The theft is charged as of date of July 10, while it is alleged in the complaint that the improper conduct was committed four days previous.

WILL NOT TAKE SALARIES

Officers of United Mine Workers to Turn Pay Back Into Treasury

INDIANAPOLIS, July 15.—No salaries will be accepted by more than 100 officers of the United Mine Workers of America for their work this month "because of the widespread unemployment among the miners," said today's issue of the Mine Workers' Journal, official publication of the international union.

All officials, including the head officers, members of the international executive board, organizers and field workers, according to the announcement, "have volunteered to contribute their entire salaries for July to the organization in order that they may share the burden of hardships with the membership of the union."

The exact amount thus contributed was not announced, it being said that some of the officials work part time on a per diem basis. The total, however, was expected to come to several thousand dollars. John L. Lewis, as president of the union, receives $866.66 a month, and Philip Murray, vice president, and William Green, secretary, each receives $563.33.

The salaries were explained at the union's headquarters, will remain in the general fund of the organization, which it was said has received many calls for relief, but maintains only one fund for all expenditures of the union.

"It has long been the cry of mine people," said the Mine Workers' Journal today, "that regardless of whether the membership worked or not the salaries of the officers went on as usual. Such talk is indulged in solely for the purpose of creating distrust of the officers in the minds of the membership. Their voluntary action, however, in contributing their entire salary for July should go far to dissipate such impressions and prove that the officials feel a deep, sincere interest in the well being of the rank and file of the membership."

Union headquarters estimated that not less than 150,000 union miners in the country are out of work and that many thousands more work one to three days a week. Hundreds of mines throughout the country, are closed and others are working short time because of the slack demand for coal. It was said.

PAY WAHABI TO KEEP THE PEACE

LONDON, July 15.—A novel working arrangement on the "no peace, no pay" principle has been entered into by the British government with the Wahabi, a powerful Arabian desert tribe. The Wahabi are nomads and belong to a sect which Colonel Secretary Winston Churchill described in the house of commons as "bearing the same relation to orthodox Islam as the most militant forms of Calvinism would have borne to Rome in the fiercest times of the religious wars."

They are, he said, austere, intolerant, well armed and bloodthirsty and they regard it as an article of duty as well as of faith to kill all who do not share their opinions. Moreover, they are very dangerous to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina, and the whole institution of the pilgrimage.

The finances of the Sherif of Mecca, who enjoys British protection, have suffered grievously by the interruption of the pilgrimages. Therefore, to assist him and King Hussein of the Hedjaz, who has been in constant warfare with the "Arabian Calvinists," the latter are to receive $50,000 cash annually, so long as they refrain from annoying their neighbors and do not interfere with the candidacy of Hussein's son, the Emir Faisal, for the rulership of the new Mesopotamian state.

Colonel Lawrence of the colonial office who has lived among the Wahabi for years, told an interviewer that they were indeed a most violent people. They are, he said, fanatically Mohammedan and would kill their men and women, for smoking even a cigarette. The way they correct their women is to tie them up in bags and beat them unmercifully with palm fronds.

Each man has three wives. Should any of them go out of doors, the code allows him to have her put to death.

She was sent to the Charles street jail, where she was placed in the care of the jail physician on account of her condition.

THOUGHTFUL CHILD
Even the very little child should be taught by his mother to be careful of his clothing, careful in putting it away at night and in saving it from tears and unnecessary soiling.

Little folk should be taught to hang up their own clothing when it is removed at night and to hang up the towels and wash cloths after using them.

They should also be taught to use a tooth brush and comb when very young. This saves a great deal of effort and trouble in later years.

(By Newspaper Enterprise)
NEW YORK, July 15.—Five babies stolen here in less than a week have shattered all records for kidnapping epidemics.
Aid of all eastern police departments has been asked and a search is being made by wireless of all ships at sea in an attempt to restore the missing children. Those kidnapped:

Jack Woodland, 3 years old.
Margaret Woodland, 2 years old.
Margaret Torrens, 9 months old.
Charlotte Mayo, 2 years old.
Elizabeth Kieffer, 2 years old.
The two Woodland children were taken from the Woodland home at Cape May, N. J., by a man and woman who had been registered for several days at a Cape May hotel, and who

Mrs. Lambert Says She Believes She Owes Her Life to Tanlac

"I thank my lucky stars that I got Tanlac, for it has proved nothing less than a blessing to me," said Mrs. William P. Lambert, 45 Wilbraham Road, Springfield, Mass.

"For the last three years before I got Tanlac I was a very sick woman, and there was not a single day when I felt well. My stomach and kidneys were very badly disordered and for whole year I was almost helpless. For weeks at a time I had to stay in bed, nothing did me any good and I just kept getting worse. Instead of better. I made no difference what I ate, had indigestion and was in perfect misery for hours after each meal. I suffered from constipation, also, and had headaches that nearly drove me mad."
"One day I happened to read a testimonial that described my case so well that I decided to try Tanlac, for I actually believe the medicine has saved my life. I can eat almost anything now, and my food tastes good and agreeable. My weight has increased ten pounds, and I am doing all my household work with perfect ease, and haven't an ache or pain of any kind. It will always be a pleasure to me to praise Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; by Wright Drug Co., 111 North Main St., A. D. Falls, Chelmsford, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

had been attempting to ingratiate themselves with Jack and Margaret. The last seen of them was at Lewes, Del., across the bay from Cape May. A private yacht had been chartered by them to make the trip.
Mrs. Robert E. Woodland, the mother, believes the children have been taken aboard a boat bound for South America.

Mrs. Margaret Torrens has collapsed, following the kidnapping of her nine-month-old daughter, Margaret, from the summer home of her father at Pompton Lakes, N. J.
A woman, who asked police not to disclose her name, said she had seen a woman, very nervous, and a baby answering the description of the Torrens child, aboard a United Fruit Co. boat bound for Cuba just before it sailed. Cuban officials have been asked to look for the woman.
The baby daughter of Paul Kieffer, a New York lawyer, was stolen from its crib at the home of his sister in Rutland, N. J., after midnight. Kieffer traced the child to an apartment in Brooklyn, which was raided with the aid of police. They entered the door just in time to see the baby and its custodians vanish down the outside fire escape into the night. The child has not been seen since.
Mrs. Robert E. Woodland, wife of a New York broker who took her 2-year-old daughter away from her husband and out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts, has returned with her attorneys to meet her husband's lawyers. The child has been left in another state until such time as the parental differences can be settled.
Parents in all of the cases are separated.

NINTH REVIEWED BY GOV. COX AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, July 15.—Gov. Channing Cox and his official staff reviewed the 9th Massachusetts Infantry, commanded by Col. Thomas F. Foley of Worcester, and the Division Signal Company, commanded by Capt. William C. G. Simkins of Malden, on the main parade ground yesterday afternoon. Brig. Gen. Mark L. Hersey, commander of Camp Devens, and members of the headquarters staff were in the reviewing line with Gov. Cox.

Gov. Cox and staff expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the showing made by the troops.
The commander-in-chief of the Massachusetts troops and his staff remained for dinner at 5 o'clock in the mess hall of Co. H, of Newton, which is commanded by Capt. John A. McClellan, and enjoyed a band concert afterwards by the regimental band under the direction of "Jimmie" Coughlin. They also attended an informal reception at Col. Foley's headquarters.

The governor and his staff arrived here about 3:30 o'clock and were met at the main gate by Capt. Francis J. Phelan, who escorted them to the regimental area on 3d avenue. At 10th street the party was met by Co. E of Cambridge, commanded by Capt. Francis J. Good.

Headed by the regimental band the party were shown to Col. Foley's headquarters, after which a trip was made about 5 miles outside the camp proper, through the company streets, where the units were drawn up at attention.

The regimental parade to the colors started at 4 o'clock, before Col. Foley and his staff, after which the officers headed the line of march as the 9th Infantry and Division Signal company passed and the governor and Gen. Hersey and their official staff.

For the parade to the colors preceding the review, K company of Malden, commanded by Capt. C. David Berg, acted as escort.

In the governor's party were Gen. John A. Sullivan, Lieut. Col. George W. Langdon, and William B. Emery, Forster B. Chase and Capt. Robert P. Holmes and Philip L. Brown. It was stated that Adj. Gen. Jesse P. Stevens was unable to attend the ceremonies due to illness.

After the review Gov. Cox visited the 5th Infantry headquarters, where 2d Lieut. Sarkis Zartarian, signal officer, sent a message of congratulations for the governor by radio across camp to Capt. Simkins at the Signal company, to which Capt. Simkins flashed back his thanks.

The Division Signal company completed its instruction in gas work by a trip through the gas chamber in the old base hospital area, where the officers and men were all given a whiff of the new gas, chloracetophenone, being among the first Massachusetts troops to be made acquainted with the new fear gas. Part of the 5th Infantry was also put through the gas chamber.

The 12th United States Infantry, which has completed its record season on the new rifle range in Still river, returned to its regimental area.

WHY SLANDER SMALL TOWNS?

Sinclair Lewis, Floyd Dell, Zona Gale and Mrs. Wharton are becoming rich and famous by holding up the old home town and its characters to the ridicule of metropolitan readers and the sympathy of smaller communities.

Booth Tarkington's "The Conquest of Canaan," forerunner of the above authors' works, is a satire in similar vein.

These authors picture the inhabitants of the smaller places with narrow perspectives and false valuations of life's properties.
No one has a narrower viewpoint than the person who lives in the canyon of New York's Broadway, who believes the sun rises in the East river and sets in the Hudson river.

There is as much sham, hypocrisy and intolerance in the larger cities as there is in the provinces. Yes, and more.

A picture that will satirize the social climbers, the financial bluffers and the posers of metropolitan communities will be truer to life than the films that malign the small towns whence came many of the nation's greatest men and women.

MAY HAVE RAIN FOR FORTY DAYS

"If St. Swithin's day be fair,
For forty days, 'twill rain no mair."

Thus the venerable legend, which refers to today, July 15, and which has persisted despite the records of one observatory at least that it has never yet proved correct. Those of us who cling to certain respected superstitions were thrown into a small panic during the morning hours of today because ere the day was far advanced a light sprinkle of rain fell. For besides a promise of smiling skies if it doesn't rain today, there is a threat in the old rhyme to the effect that if it does rain the deluge will continue during the next 40 days.

In New York city the rain pelted, and the superstitious residents were careful to take their raincoats on their vacations. According to the old story St. Swithin ordered that his remains never be disinterred, and that when an attempt was made to do so, rain fell in torrents for 40 days.

STEAL 'EM AN' BURN 'EM, LATEST AUTO DOPE

The strange auto-burners who have been operating extensively in this section carried out still another act of vandalism last night, when an Oakland coupe, Massachusetts registry 127893, was stolen from in front of the Richardson house barber shop between 3 and 11:15 p. m. The machine, the property of John J. Noonan of Salem street, was later discovered in flames in Tyngsboro.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Roger W. Babson is recognized as an authority on statistics relative to economics, finance and other matters bearing upon the business situation. In a recent issue of Forbes Magazine, he gives a number of reasons why the American people should be optimistic in reference to the business situation. First of all, he says the great mass of the people have their liberty bonds and will not cease buying merchandise while they hold these securities.

Next he points out the saving due to the prohibition law. Previous to July, 1919, the people of the nation spent $2,000,000,000 a year on alcoholic liquors. It is true that many still indulge, but it cannot be gainsaid that there is a great balance on the credit side in favor of the new order of things and this not only in money, but in time saved and homes protected.

The Federal Reserve board very properly is pointed to as one of the safety valves of the business situation. It has saved the nation from a real money panic and will continue to do so, despite the criticism leveled at it from some quarters.

Advertising is recommended by Mr. Babson as a great factor for promoting and stabilizing business. The old form of advertising which was regarded as a luxury has been superseded by one that is productive of results.

Our foreign trade has declined during the past five years, but if we lost all our export trade, it would amount to only 5 per cent. of the total.

Seasonable fluctuations in business are being offset by business concerns taking on different new lines of work. This helps to tide over any local depression for which there is no immediate remedy.

Standardization in manufactures, such as shown by the Ford factory, promised reduction in the burdensome taxation system. Education for executives and employees to promote efficiency are other reasons for optimism, according to Mr. Babson, that will materially help the situation.

That our nation is the wealthiest in the world and has cleared off almost all of its indebtedness, is another ground for assurance that things are going to work out all right in the near future.

If we went through the great war without any great panic, surely we can handle the domestic problems that now call for solution.

Mr. Hoover, who is not a visionary, is confident that the business situation will soon return to normalcy.

An additional reason for encouragement is found in the decision of congress to work night and day until it disposes of the tariff which holds many lines of business in a state of suspense while it is pending. The government must remove the domestic burdens that weigh heavily upon business and commerce. This will be done, but it will take some time to bring about the general readjustment. In the meantime, it would be unwise to assume that things are going to smash; on the contrary it is best for all concerned to realize that, as Mr. Hoover stated, the corner has been turned in the industrial depression; but to prevent delay in the recovery from hard times we must practice economy, co-operate with the manufacturers who are trying to carry on, take steps to promote our foreign trade and offer an outlet for our manufactures that will result in a greater volume of business and call all hands back to work.

LEADERSHIP AND GOVERNMENT

One of the strangest things in nature—something that determines whether you are to be a success or a failure—is reported by a man just back from a fishing trip in Canada.

He saw a school of thousands of baby salmon trout, about half as long as pins, swimming in military formation, following a leader.

"That leader looked just like the rest," says the fisherman. "What made him take charge of all the others? And what made the others follow him as naturally as the rear wheels of a tinney follow the front wheels?"

If you can fathom that problem you have the secret of success—and the whole science of government.

The fisherman took a minnow net and caught the tiny trout leader. Immediately another fisher took the leader's place and the school swam on without an instant's pause.

Is that just instinct? Human beings do the same.

In Chicago 100 unemployed negroes thought they'd found a way to escape rent. Along the tracks of the Illinois Central railroad, they built a dugout, like those back of the lines in France during the war.

The railroad is evicting them.

The important news in the incident is that these 100 men had found it impossible to live together without establishing a live organized government. They had their own city council, a mayor, a judge, a police force and a quartermaster's department.

You can't get away from this thing called government.

If you were shipwrecked on a South Sea island with two friends, it wouldn't be 10 minutes until one of you three would become ruler—step forward as leader, begin to give orders and take the initiative in hunting food, building shelter and selecting a location for a beacon-fire to attract passing ships.

Wild geese fly in wedge formation, with a leader at the head. Shoot that leader and the formation will close up without stopping, a new leader taking the former's place.

Shoot the leader of wild ducks, and the flock is confused. They head for the nearest marsh and, after much quacking, soar up again with a new leader. Do they elect him? Indians say, yes.

Even the timber wolves, hermits by nature, run in packs during winter, as a combination for war, for acquiring food.

In parts of China, men live without religion.

In ancient Sparta, they lived without the family institution.

THE IRISH CONFERENCE

Nobody who knows President De Valera has any idea that he will go into conference with the British premier to strangle the Irish republic. He will find what British is willing to offer Ireland as a substitute for the republic. He will endeavor to secure the greatest concessions possible and then he will report to the Dail Eireann.

If dominion home rule be offered, the proposition will be submitted to a plebiscite of the people of Ireland. It is true the Ulster minority will protest; but dominion rule means majority rule. The great trouble in the Irish situation is, that the British government coddles a rebellious minority and backs it against the majority. While that condition prevails there can be no real peace or harmony in Ireland. Will the people accept dominion home rule? Yes, if it be given outright with the full understanding that there will be no nonsense from Ulster which has been allowed to arm for rebellion without interference. There is no ground whatever for the claim that the Ulster minority would be unfairly treated. The unfairness and injustice lies on the side of Ulster and this must be overcome in any settlement that will be offered in order that there may be a united Ireland. Unless this idea of national unity be maintained there will be no settlement and the Sinn Fein will resume hostilities.

Very few people outside Ireland can realize how completely the British regime has been overthrown throughout the country except in northeast Ulster, where the Unionists have been able to maintain it because they are in the majority and are all well armed. When the government searched for arms, they visited only the homes of Sinn Fein sympathizers. The Unionists were allowed to retain their arms and many of them were enlisted in the auxiliary forces which served in the other provinces and were uniformly identified with the Black and Tans.

It is true that England could deluge the country in blood and could destroy most of the seaport cities in a few days; but at the same time it would require a million men two years to restore British rule in Ireland, so completely has it been overthrown and discredited by the campaign of the Sinn Fein.

It is indeed a real cause of rejoicing to find that the end of the conflict appears to be in sight and that through the aid of General Smuts and a few other well disposed men, a permanent settlement of the whole question is likely to be reached, to the great benefit not only of Ireland, but of England, and the removal of one of the greatest obstacles to world peace.

SAFEGUARD THE BATHERS

Without attempting to fix the responsibility—if there is responsibility—for the latest accidental death by drowning at the municipal bathhouse, it is clear that such happenings cannot continue without the value of an investment that has been made by the city for the recreation and enjoyment of the people being seriously curtailed. The news of such happenings spreading through the city cannot fail to awaken apprehension that the place is not a wholly safe one for children, or persons inexperienced in the art of swimming, to resort to.

The fact that whole seasons pass at Nantasket and Revere beaches, where more people bathe in a day than in a year at the Pawtucketville beach, without the loss of a single life, makes it impossible not to believe that there is something lacking in the means afforded for protecting life at the municipal bathhouse. Yet so far as appears there isn't. But the life guards must exercise the utmost vigilance every minute while bathers are in the water.

The matter is one that the conscientious and public-spirited members of the board of park commissioners cannot devote their attention to too speedily.

JACK MUNSON'S DEATH

While the government has tried to do everything possible for the disabled soldiers, it seems that through somebody's neglect or else through lack of proper system, occasionally service men die in deplorable condition.

Jack Munson, who won the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States army and the Croix De Guerre of France, died friendless and alone in a New York hospital, a victim of tuberculosis. Munson is credited with the feat of penetrating the German lines and re-establishing communication between headquarters and the lost battalion in the Argonne.

The fate of Jack Munson touches the heart of every American and it is hoped that the American Legion will look after service men whether they are members or not, in order that none of them may suffer from neglect nor be subjected to such humiliation as came to Jack Munson. It may have been impossible to save his life; but the ward of a New York hospital is about the last place to which such a patient should be consigned, except when in the final stages of the disease.

It seems some committee should have taken hold of him before the disease reached an advanced stage and had him placed under government care. The government is putting out money and plenty of it on men far less deserving than Jack Munson and nothing but an oversight can explain why he came to this unhappy end without a friend to comfort him in his last hours.

It is reported that Lloyd George may come to the United States. By George, what may happen to England while he is away!

If sun spots cause the hot weather it would appear that Old Sol's physiology must be very freaky about this time.

Since the Gas company is to cut its prices it might begin with the city contract with a good buy cut.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

Face the Music

Down with the prophets of despair who preach a gospel bleak and
blighting!
What though the strife's not always fair,
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting.

I'm sick of speeches and of writing
By snivellers who fear to bear
Their meed of woe, their load of care—
Down with the prophets of despair
Who preach a gospel bleak and blighting!

Whiners and whimperers, who wear
A gloom there seems no way of
fighting;
They only wail, and tear their hair

And preach a gospel bleak and
blighting.
Down with the prophets of despair—
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting.

Out on the quitters who declare
They have no further strength for
fighting;
The fools who say, "What chance is
there?
Life is a rotten cheat, a snare!"

To those who preach that gospel
blighting,
I shout, as loud as trumpets blare,
"Down with the prophets of despair—
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting!"

SEEN AND HEARD

The funniest thing in the world is a man trying to kid himself.

You never miss the water till the well runs dry, or you never miss the hot water till it's shut off.

The heat was too much for this fellow.
He was sleeping on the North common, near Fletcher street. "Here all night, I suppose," said the officer, after waking him. "Yes, but I didn't sleep much, that car kept going back and forth, and—" The officer looked suspicious and said: "Come with me.
There's a place for people who can see and hear the Fletcher street car, for there's no such animal!"

Breaking It Gently

Young Husband (throwing down the ed tomfoolery about women's extravagance makes me tired. Pity they can't find something else to print. We have been married two months and you haven't even asked me for a penny. Young Wife—Of course not. What would be the use of hoarding your it's so much easier to have the things charged to our account?—Stray Stories.

Didn't Scold a Bit

Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said: "Testesterday my daddy got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody." "That was fine," approved grandmother, very much pleased. "And you stepped on your daddy yesterday?"
she asked. And back came the enlightening answer: "Why, I did, grandma."

Wonderful Fire Chief

It was a sleepy village and its fire brigade was anything but up-to-date.
One night a fire was announced by the violent ringing of the alarm bell, and the sleepy brigade arrived at the scene of action to find the burning building a mass of smoke. No flames were visible from the outside. The captain made a careful survey. Then he lit his pipe and started to smoke.
"We'd better leave it alone and let it burn up a bit," he said. "Then we'll be able to see what we are doing."

Appreciation

Einstein, who discovered relativity, and has not been able to get anyone else to understand it, is home in Europe after visiting America. He could hardly wait until he got off his boat to tell the world in what contempt he held Americans and almost everything American. Says there is little if any real intellectual life in this benighted country, nothing to compare with the intellectual life of Europe. In proof of this he offers what appears to him to be the astounding fact that most of us failed utterly to grasp the tremendous significance of relativity. We seemed to be more interested in the movies, concerts and prize fights. He met one or two professors who showed gleams of human intelligence, but that is one or two out of a hundred and ten million! All of this is pretty rough on us after we laid ourselves out to give the relativity man a good time.

Taking No Chances

One day Lord Northcliffe ascended from his own rooms on the main floor to the offices of one of his principal papers, bringing in his hand a clipping from an evening paper which set forth how in a country village a motor car had knocked down and killed a child and had sped on its way regardless. The car could not be traced.
He gave instructions that every measure of publicity should be engaged in finding the identity of the car. The story was written up in dramatic form. An offer of $500 was made for anyone who could give facts as to the ownership of the car, and the best investigating journalist on the staff was sent down to the country to probe matters. The almost malicious glee of the other papers in Fleet street may be imagined when it was found out through the instrumentality of Lord Northcliffe's papers that the car in question belonged to his brother, Hildebrand Harnsworth, having been taken out unknown to its owner by the chauffeur. Of course there was no more prominence in the Northcliffe papers about the matter, although rival journalists did not forget to emphasize the story, including the offer of the reward. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that Hildebrand Harnsworth, a very kindly man, was deeply shocked at the discovery and did all that a generous expenditure of money could do to meet the loss of the beloved parents. It was two weeks later that a murder mystery engaged the principal attention of the London papers. A murdered girl had been flung out of a train in a tunnel a few miles from London. The murderer could not be discovered. There was a consultation of department chiefs in Lord

Northcliffe's office on the matter.
Among other suggestions put forward was that a reward of $500 be offered for evidence. "Five hundred dollars reward," said Lord Northcliffe thoughtfully. "But where was my brother Hildebrand that night?"—Outlook.

Mary's Serenade

Johnny and Lige and Harrison Tate Came waddling in through th' barnyard gate
And they started a singin'—more's th' pity—
A sentimental-like sort o' ditty.
Th' milkin' was late and the chores half-done—
Worst kind of a time to be stopp'd fer fun—

I up and tells 'em they'd best light out,
But they grins right back: "Cheer up,
Old Scout!
Th' moon's jest up and th' tree-frog choir
Is startin' to set th' world on fire!"

I stretches up from th' milkin' stool,
A-cussin' myself fer a slip-shod fool,
And, squintin' around through th' eve-nin' haze,
Yonder's th' supper-light all ablaze.

"Now, boys," says I, "we might try one,
But then, by golly, I sure am done—
Fer Mary'll stand fer jest so much O' this here loatin' and singin', and such!"

"All right," says they, and we all tune up,
While Lige beats time with th' milk-in' cup.

It ain't quite ten, when we all come to—
And me with th' milkin' yet to do—
I gazes towards th' kitchen door
A-knowin' that Mary's in there, sore.
And then, by jing, as we all stand up—
Me feelin' mean as a lazy pup—
We hears a snifle across th' gate,
And there stands Mary, as close as Fate—

Well—she hugs my arm, as I ambles near,
And begs: "Sing another one, Jimmy,
dear!"

So Johnny and Lige and Harrison
Tate
Grinned as they left through th' barnyard gate

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Many Lowell women who are members of the National Women's party, an organization which formerly worked for the cause of woman suffrage, but which is now laboring for the general enfranchisement of women, will be interested to know that their organization has a new home in Washington, D. C., directly opposite the national capitol.
The purchase of one of the three houses which the organization is buying for its permanent headquarters was made possible by a gift of $51,500
by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of Long Island, N. Y. The announcement is of special interest to Lowell women who have had occasion to go to Washington and have found it difficult to gain admittance to national officials. An effort will be made to fit up the recently acquired home as quickly as possible as a club house for the women of the nation, a bureau where they can secure information, a hostess house where distinguished foreign women, visiting the United States, may be sensibly entertained and a centre which will reflect the thought and activity of women all over the country. Many women who go to Washington on business with congress or the various departments of government lose valuable time through not knowing how to go about it, nor how to reach officials.
Lowell women who have gone there will readily agree with this. In the "Watch Tower," as a portion of the new headquarters is to be called, they will find experts to help them in this and many other ways. A legislative reference bureau will assist those who wish to submit legislation to congress.
Investigators and students in search of material will be guided in their research work and advice will be given by a large delegation from the American Legion.

FLYING TOO SLOW FOR THIS BIRD

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—They tried to take "Dickie," a prize roller canary, automobile riding in his cage. "Dickie" objected and insisted on riding on the steering wheel. For months now he has ridden to town each morning perched on the wheel in front of his is soon to be graduated into aviation and will be taken on a trip through cloudland

WILL NOT HOLD TRIPLE FUNERAL

Plans had been made for a triple military funeral next Sunday for Privates Marr, Mosher and Michalopoulos, whose bodies were expected in this city this week but, owing to the fact that only one of the bodies, that of Private Marr has arrived, all plans for the triple funeral have been dropped, and the battalion of the Ninth Regiment and the 101st Engineers band of Camp Devens, which

FOLKS WHO ARE THIN SCRAWNY, ANGULAR, HOLLOW-NECKED AND CHEEKED, SHOULD BUILD FIRM, STAY-THERE FLESH

You Are Too Thin in Your Face, Others in Chest, Shoulders or Neck, While Others Are Angular All Over

It matters little whether you have thin face, sunken neck or chest, or a thin, weak, angular body. It proves you lack that important flesh and tissue-building nourishment called vita-mines, which scientists say modern cookery totally destroys in our foods.
You should eat more vitamin-containing vegetables, such as lettuce, spinach and apples and reinforce them by taking from time to time with your meals a little harmless and pleasant MEDIC-YEST, which is rich in vita-mines like the vitamins in your blood and the vitamins in hulls of grain and skins of apples. MEDIC-YEST represents flesh building vitamins in such a highly condensed form that one dose equal (in vitamin content) to eating two heads of lettuce, one-half quart of spinach, one quart green vegetables or six apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.
To prove to yourself what MEDIC-YEST can do for you: First, weigh and measure yourself and again each week, then feed your shrunken tissues the form of MEDIC-YEST with your gains in weight and strength. The scales, tape measure and mirror won't deceive you.

MEDIC-YEST is fully guaranteed by the manufacturers or your money refunded, but should not be used by anyone who objects to having their weight increased to normal.

WED WITH GUARDS NEAR

Romance Ends in Marriage of Bolshevik Prisoner With a Princess

WARSAW, June 25.—News of the marriage in Moscow of Count Szechenyi, a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalry, who is still being held a prisoner by the Bolsheviks, to Princess Golitsyn, a member of one of the oldest Russian families, has just been received here. Count Szechenyi is a cousin of Count Lazlo Szechenyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt of New York.

At the beginning of the war he was a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalry and was taken prisoner by the Russians on the Galician front in 1915. He is about 27 years old.

Details of the wedding were brought to Warsaw by Dr. Sigmund Janczura, formerly a dentist in Detroit, Mich., who served in the Polish army, was captured by the Bolsheviks and released from the Moscow prison early in June.

Count Szechenyi was a prison companion of Col. Morion C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., of the Kosciuszko air squadron who escaped from Russia this spring.

The romance having had its inception prior to the world war while the young woman was visiting in Constantinople near where Count Szechenyi's father has a palace and a vast estate. Princess Golitsyn returned to Russia several years ago, upon learning that Count Szechenyi was a prisoner and since has been endeavoring to aid in gaining his freedom and sending him food whenever possible.

It is no easy matter to arrange a marriage by a prisoner in a Bolshevik prison camp. Month after month the Soviet authorities refused to give their consent. When it was obtained the ceremony was first performed by a Soviet commissar and afterward a religious marriage was performed in a Greek orthodox church in Moscow. Although the count had many friends among the prisoners none was allowed to attend the wedding.

Instead of a friend as best man, there was a Bolshevik soldier guard. The count, with four armed soldiers at his sides, marched through the walled prison gate to the commissar's office where he met his bride attended by several girl friends. The count wore the same prison garb which he had worn for months.

Immediately after the church service the count was marched back to prison, his bride accompanying him to the prison gates. The next morning the bride was permitted to visit her husband and with the count's prison friends, sat down to a wedding breakfast—a wedding breakfast of black bread and imitation coffee and hot water.

Twenty Hungarian officers, including Count Szechenyi, are being held by the Bolsheviks as hostages to secure the safety of ten Soviet commissars imprisoned by the Hungarian authorities. The Hungarians were sent to Siberia in 1915 and were on their way out when re-arrested by the Bolsheviks.

The original of the blue ribbon, for prize winners was the badge of the Knights of the Garter.

THREE WAYS OF MAKING SALAD DRESSING

By SISTER MARY
Unless a salad dressing is perfectly smooth it is not as good as it might be. Many cooked dressings that would otherwise be delicious are lumpy. Constant stirring while cooking and the proper order of combining the ingredients will produce as smooth a cooked dressing as the real mayonnaise.

These dressings will keep a week in a cold place.

Cooked Dressing First Way

One teaspoon mustard, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup hot vinegar, 1 cup sweet or sour cream, 3 eggs, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper. Cream butter and dry seasoning. Add eggs well beaten and cream. Cook over hot water. When the mixture begins to thicken add the vinegar a little at a time, stirring constantly. When the consistency of thick cream remove from fire and pour into a cold dish to stop cooking. The amount of mustard may be increased up to 1 tablespoonful as the family taste prefers.

Second Method

One-fourth cup butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons vinegar, 4 tablespoons water, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper, 2 egg yolks, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup whipping cream.

Melt butter and add flour, mustard, sugar, salt and pepper and stir until perfectly smooth. Add vinegar and water, and cook over a slow fire, stirring constantly till thick and smooth. Take from fire and add yolks of eggs unbeaten. Mix thoroughly. If the vinegar is not very sour the juice of one lemon may be needed. Add salt and this time. Whip cream till stiff and add first mixture. This dressing should stand several hours before using to allow the flavors to blend.

Third Method

Three eggs, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 dessertspoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon mustard, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup oil, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup vinegar.

Put yolks of eggs in top of double boiler and add dry ingredients. Mix perfectly smooth. Beat in oil and then vinegar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly. Remove when the mixture coats the spoon. Beat the whites of the eggs in a bowl with a Dover beater till stiff and dry. Fold in cooked mixture.

Each of these rules will make from one pint to one and one-half pints of dressing, according to the size of the eggs.

CHAPPED SKIN

Milk, 1 part; chalk, 2 parts; glycerine, 1 part. Thoroughly mix and apply.

If a liquid preparation is desired, use glycerine, 1 part; rose or other scented water, 9 parts. Two or three drops of tincture of benzoin will improve this mixture.

CIRASSIAN COLD CREAM

Fresh mutton suet, 4 oz.; good olive oil, 6 oz.; powdered gum benzoin, 2 oz.; alkanet root, $\frac{1}{2}$ oz.

Put these ingredients in a jar with a cover, and place the jar in a saucepan of boiling water at the side of the fire. Let it digest for 24 hours. Strain away the fluid part through fine muslin, and stir till about cold. Perfume with 2 dr. of essence of roses, almonds or any perfume desired.

FRECKLES AND TAN

Buttermilk, or sour milk, 3 oz.; grated horseradish, 2 dr.; corn meal, 6 dr.

Spread this mixture between thin muslin and allow it to lie on the affected parts as long as possible at night, care being used to keep it away from the eyes. A simple remedy is to use hydrogen peroxide as a face bleach. If any soreness or irritation follows this treatment, a little warm boracic acid and glycerine should be applied.

DANDRUFF AND HAIR TONIC

Plain kerosene oil, massaged well into the scalp once a week, allowed to remain in over night, and washed out the next day with white castile soap and warm water, is a simple and effective remedy for dandruff and encourages the growth of hair.

HAIR CURLING FLUID

Borax, 3 oz.; gum arabic, 5 dr.; hot water, 2 pt.; spirit of camphor, $2\frac{1}{2}$ fl. oz.

Dissolve the borax and the gum in hot water, and when nearly cool add the spirit of camphor. On retiring at night wet the hair with the above liquid.

SHAMPOO

White castile soap in shavings, 2 oz.; ammonia water, 2 fl. oz.; bay rum or cologne water, 1 fl. oz.; glycerine, 1 fl. oz.; water, 12 fl. oz. Dissolve the soap in water by means of heat; when nearly cold, stir in the other ingredients.

LIP SALVE

Glycerine cream, 4 oz.; boracic acid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ oz.; carmine, 4 gr. Mix thoroughly, and dispense in screw-top porcelain jars or in specially made metal boxes.

FACE POWDER

Oatmeal and almond meal, equal parts; perfume at will. Mix and pass through a coarse sieve.

RICE POWDER

Starch, 3 lb.; rice flour, 1 lb.; perfume to suit. Mix thoroughly and pass through a sieve. Make a mold, or use a package of Lubin's powder for the purpose. Now take sheets of stiff manila paper, cut to the proper size, and fold them out to the mold, pasting or sealing the sides so that it can be opened. Fill your cartons with the powder, fold the top and seal it, and then wrap in any embossed or fancy paper.

ROUGE

Finest carmine, 20 parts; lead white, 30 parts; French chalk, 60 parts; tincture of benzoin, 5 parts; eau de cologne, 60 parts; rose water, 250 parts. Mix.

PERFUMES—TO EXTRACT

The perfumes of different flowers may be extracted by a simple process, and without any apparatus. Gather the flowers with as little stalk as possible, and place them in a jar three parts filled with olive or almond oil.

New Shoes? Strapped to the Ankle

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, July 15.—Not lashed to the mast—but strapped to the ankle. That's the ultimate and inviolable edit in shoe fashions.

You don't have to be a free big strapping girl to get strapped plenty. Nothing really matters just so your shoes are strapped on.

You may wear satin evening shoes with high French heels, black patent leather with Cuban heels, buckskin with common sense heels, tan kid with modified French heels—long pointed toes or short French vamps—the choice is yours with one exception—you cannot escape the straps.

Even the most mannish sports shoes show the close straps instead of lacing. To be sure, oxfords are still good but the strapped shoe is better. And these straps are not always just simple affairs of one, two or three. Some of them start out simply and flare into triple effects as they approach the sides of the shoes, as shown in the white kid and patent leather combination in the picture here.

A street shoe with a low heel, round toe of perforated patent leather, has three straps over the instep. An attractive evening shoe of black satin with beads outlining the top has beads also over the three straps. All of the smart shoes show shorter vamps even though they do not all go to the extreme of the French round toe.

OVER 65,000 GIRLS LOST LAST YEAR

Over sixty-five thousand American girls disappeared last year without leaving a trace.

Murder and loss of memory cause some of these disappearances. These, however, are in the minority, says Catherine Van Winkle, police lieutenant of the District of Columbia.

This specialist on missing girls and young women finds that the majority of those who drop out of sight are lured from farms and small towns. The city is the quicksand that swallows them.

The problem, though increasing at an appalling rate, is not beyond solution.

The federal government with its Mann act has done much to check white slavery, says Miss Van Winkle. "Local crusades against vice and questionable districts have helped, though sporadically. But these do not get down to fundamentals. The increasing problem of the wayward girl is simply a reflection of the deterioration of the American home."

"When fathers do not neglect their sons, when mothers do not neglect their daughters, then—and not until then—will the United States be able to boast a real diminution in the number of girls who yearly disappear without leaving a trace."

At the present time a 13-year-old girl, who came to Lowell on a visit, is missing.

BIKE'S BACK

Bicycle racing has stepped forth as a leading sport in California. After years of resting in the background, "everybody's doing it now."

And with the return of the pedaling contest, bike riding itself has staged a comeback.

Young and old alike have taken to riding to work in the saddle.

Like roller skating, it seems that bicycle riding has its comes and goes.

Both sports hit the country with a bang—and then die out for a spell. Then, after a few years, they come back.

Bike riding is more popular now, all over the United States, than it has been for years.

WHY NOT ASK 'EM

Miss Elizabeth Tucker of Breckenridge, Tex., manager of her two prize fighting brothers, says the ring sport is "the cleanest of all sports."

Ornate, it sounds rather startling, coming from a woman.

But times have changed. Ever taken your mother, your sister or your wife to a prize fight?

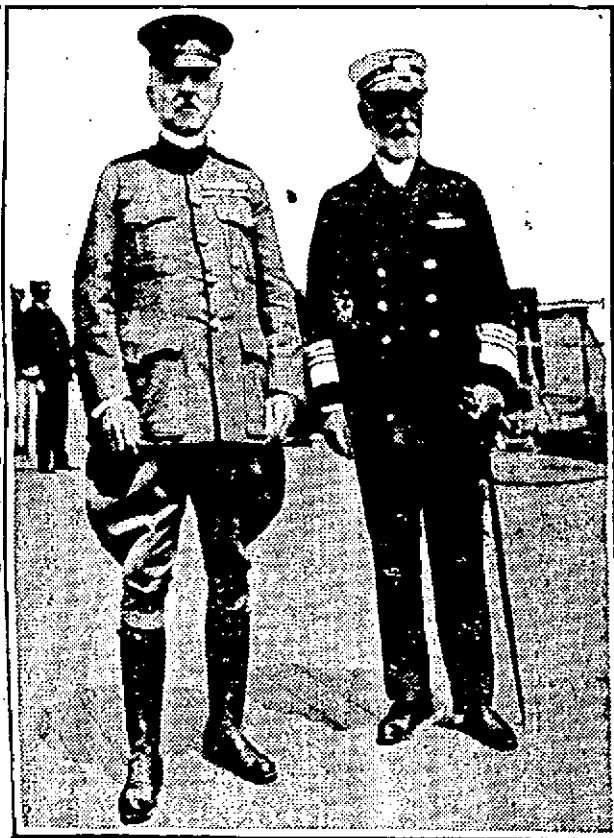

Why not ask them if they'd like to see one?

The foreign market had a severe break Monday. The opening this morning is greatly improved. Sterling opened 1½ points higher. Francs 6 points, Lire 2½ points, Marks 6½ points, Drachma 10 points.

Recent developments in European countries lead us to believe, that foreign exchange ought to sell much higher. We expect that through a gradual resumption of world wide trade, reconstructed industries, renewal of commercial relations, and steady work on the part of all nations, exchange will again become normal, trade balances will right themselves and general prosperity will again rule. We sincerely believe that present buyers of foreign exchange and internal securities will realize prodigious returns. Liberty Bonds bought and sold. Call, write or telephone for information.

INTRODUCING JOHN S. YOUNG, FISH DOCTOR

JOHN S. YOUNG

BY R. J. GIBBONS

CHICAGO, July 15.—John S. Young is doctor to 4278 fish.

His fishy charges get sick frequently.

One of the most common piscatorial ailments just now, the doctor says, is whooping cough.

Young presides over the aquatic display of a department store here.

He started studying for the job as a boy by operating on fish which he caught in the Gulf of Mexico.

One of his most arduous duties is bathing the fish patients every Saturday night.

Three pet eels, tractable enough at other times, do slippery shimmies on bath night to escape.

Young carries a medicine kit resembling the family physician's.

"Fish require pills and other drugs, just like humans," says he.

The doctor has had a hard fight to save a cat fish that has taken on a sudden lethargy.

"Love sick" he diagnosed the case. "Lost his mate two weeks ago. He's pining for her. See how gloomy his expression is."

It was new to hear of a fish having expression, but the doctor says it's so. Also the funny ones whether in zoo or sea have an aristocracy of their own.

JUVENILE SESSION

An unusually grim docket was heard in the juvenile session of the local police court this morning, despite the fact that this is fruit-stealing season and extra officers have been deputed to watch orchards. One youngster, charged with breaking and entering and larceny drew a year's probation from the Lyman school. While one girl was sent to Lancaster. The cases of four neglected children were filed.

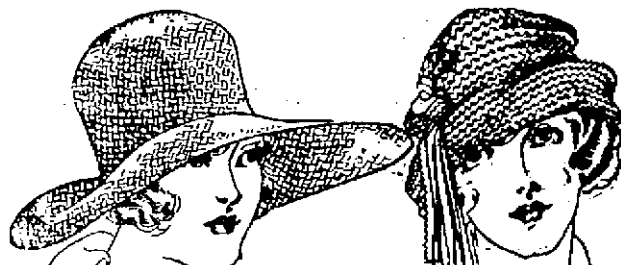

The world's highest dam is the 354-foot structure on the Boise river at Arrowhook, Idaho.

Movie Actors, at Least, Can
See Selves as Others See 'Em

GIRLS, WOULDN'T IT BE PERFECTLY WONDERFUL IF WE COULD ALL SEE OURSELVES AS WE ARE WHEN OUR REGULAR FELLOWS MAKE LOVE? THAT'S WHERE THE MOVIE STARS HAVE THE BULGE ON US.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, July 15.—Betty Blythe saw herself in "The Queen of Sheba" 34 times.

Betty Bobbin, queen of the sewing machine girls, practices her attitudes in front of a mirror every night so she can see better buttonholes the next day.

Mary and Doug have the "takes" of each day's work finished and projected for them before they retire.

Fatty Arbuckle visits all the theatres in Los Angeles which show his pictures. That's to see the reaction upon different audiences made by his five-reelers. If he senses the reaction as we do, he'd react his slapstick two-reelers.

Ann May played with Charles Ray in "Homer Comes Home." When it had its first showing she asked him if he was going to see it.

"Oh, no, I never go to see my pictures any more," Ray answered.

Ann went. When she left the theatre she saw Ray's machine. She asked the doorman if he had seen Ray.

"Yes, ma'am," he answered. "Mr. Ray is inside. He won't be out till the last show's over. He always sits through both shows when his own picture is being shown."

Agnes Ayers has seen every picture she ever appeared in dozens of times. She studies them seriously. Perhaps that's the reason she's a star.

Alice Calhoun is another star who seriously studies her films.

Elsie Ferguson, they say, never goes to see herself as others see her. (Notice it's "they say.")

Wonder what the sensation is when a movie actress sees herself being embraced and kissed on the screen? And before all those people, too!

Wonder if some of the collar-and-faces would put all that shiny stuff on their hair if they knew how it reacted on the audience?

Some of the movie people go to see themselves because they're vain. Others go to study their art. Others out of curiosity. And most of 'em, probably, for all these reasons!

Anyway, if Bobbie Burns lived now he wouldn't have had to invoke Providence to let us see ourselves as others see us.

THE MOVIE CHATTERBOX

"The Tooth Carpenter," a number of Tony Sarg's Almanac, is showing its fifth week on Broadway. That's longer than some feature films can hold the screen.

Anita Stewart plans to back a series of pictures starring her brother, George. His last picture was with Alice Lake in "Over the Wire."

Jack Dempsey is going back into the movies. To make a 15-reel serial entitled "The Scarlet Rider."

In the small list of films that hold true to their stories should be included "What Every Woman Knows." Even the London paper acclaim it as being faithful to Barrie.

Ethel Grandin, who played opposite Gareth Hughes in "The Hunch," will play opposite him in "Garments of Truth." She is the wife of Roy Smallwood, who directed Nazimova in "Camille."

Cleo Ridgley returns to the screen in support of Betty Compson in "The Woman in the Case."

"The Man From Lost River" completed.

George O'Hara is to be leading man for Shirley Mason in "Queenie."

Johnny Walker and Edna Murphy co-star in "The Drifter."

Lee Moran starts "A Mile a Minute."

LOST BATTALION HERO
BURIED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Full military honors marked the funeral today of Priv. John J. Monson, hero of the lost battalion who died in Bellevue hospital after being taken ill while on leave of absence from his post in the regular army.

Monson died last Friday and it was three days before his body was identified. As soon as it became known that he was the man who on Sept. 18, 1918, carried the message through the German lines that reunited the lost battalion in the Argonne, scores of civic organizations planned that fitting honors might be paid him at his funeral. Today a column five blocks long marched behind the caisson that carried the body to the Church of the Ascension, where a high requiem mass was sung and thence to Cypress Hills cemetery where military services were held.

Movements have been started to erect a memorial to the heroic soldier.

BABIES STAND HOT
WEATHER WELL

The excessive humidity of the past week, coupled with the high temperatures that have prevailed, have not affected Lowell babies to any appreciable extent. For the past seven days not a single baby death has been reported to the board of health, a most unusual record, even in winter. Good work on the part of the nurses of the health department and Lowell Guild, together with co-operation on the part of parents in following their instructions, are assigned as the chief reasons for the remarkable record.

CHARITY DEPARTMENT
DEMANDS HEAVY

Heavy demands on the charity department for provisions and supplies continue to be made at city hall. This week, for instance, 45 orders, some of them double, representing 60 single orders, have been given out. This is twice the number that were being disposed of this time last year.

CRIES OUT "I AM INNOCENT MAN"

Dramatic Scene Follows Conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti of Murder

Wife of Prisoner Becomes Hysterical as Wails Sound Through Court House

DEDHAM, July 15.—They kill an innocent man, two innocent men, rang out through the Dedham courtroom last night from the lips of Nicola Sacco, as the jury returned verdicts of guilty against him and Bartolomeo Vanzetti of murder in the first degree of Alessandro Berardelli and Frederick A. Parmenter at South Braintree, April 15, 1920.

When the words of conviction fell from the lips of the foreman, Walter H. Roper of Quincy, first for Sacco and then for Vanzetti, verdicts of guilty being found on both indictments, the two defendants appeared stunned. Both men acted as if they had been robbed of the power of motion and each stood with his right hand upraised.

As soon as the court crier had spoken the words of adjournment, which followed immediately after the verdicts, the outburst of Sacco came with dramatic suddenness. Overwrought, but not wholly beaten down by the verdict which carried with it the penalty and punishment of death, a cry of anguish was wrung from Sacco.

First in the Italian, "I am innocent," and then in English the protestation sounded several times while the jury was filing out from the courtroom. Some of the jurors looked back but did not stop. Sacco held two fingers aloft. Breakdown through the ring of guards around the prisoner's cage, Mrs. Rose Sacco rushed to her husband's side. They grasped one another in a tight embrace.

Pulling his right arm free, Sacco again declared: "Don't forget they kill two innocent men," and from the lips of his young wife came the echo, "You bet your life." "Oh, they kill my man, what am I going to do, my two children," Mrs. Sacco cried.

A court officer sought to separate Mrs. Sacco from her husband and she cried out, "No, I won't." She soon became hysterical. These scenes covered a moment. Mrs. Sacco's cries sounded through the building. Mrs. Fred H. Moore, wife of the defendants' counsel, came to console her.

READ THE SUN AND GET ALL THE NEWS

Two important local stories which broke during the past few days and which were covered in detail in all editions of The Sun were entirely overlooked by its omniscient rival across the way. Sun readers will recall that on Wednesday night they read an exclusive story in this paper of a raid on an alleged roadhouse in Tyngsboro and of prominent professional men of this and other cities being involved. Although the raid occurred Tuesday night, neither the morning nor afternoon editions of the Courier-Citizen of Wednesday published the story but through The Sun, the Lowell public got the details of one of the most talked of affairs in recent years.

Then yesterday The Sun printed a story of a Lowell girl being detained by the Boston police on the charge of murdering her day-old baby but a careful perusal of both the morning and afternoon editions of the Courier-Citizen failed to reveal any indication of the story. It was a story with a decided local end because both the women involved lived here and the police made a dash and search here for the house in which the baby was said to have been strangled. This morning the Courier-Citizen gave scant recognition to this bit story by a few paragraphs and similar treatment was given Thursday morning to the roadhouse raid which occurred Tuesday evening.

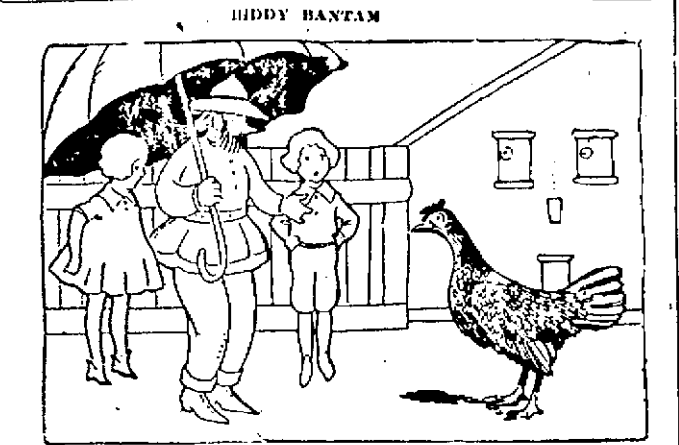

All of which points directly and unerringly to one conclusion that to get the news of Lowell you must read The Sun.

CURTAINS

If the curtains shrink it does not mean they are no longer usable. A frill of contrasting or harmonizing material can be put at the top and allowed to hang over a foot or 15 inches. This covers the place where the material is seamed and is often more effective than the plain curtain.

The telescope was invented in Holland about the beginning of the 17th century.

Adventures of The Twins

"BETTER ROOST HIGH," SUGGESTED SPRINKLE-BLOW. "FLEETY MIGHT LIKE CHICKEN BETTER THAN HE DOES EGGS."

"I think that things in the sky will take care of themselves now for a while," said Sprinkle-Blow to Nancy and Nick. "As we may as well be getting down to earth again. As I told you before, the only way in which I can find out just what people want is to stay around and see what they're planning to do. Let's be going."

So he said, "One for the money and two for the show," and all the rest of it, and they all gave a big jump and came landing down right beside Farmer Smith's chicken-coop where Biddy Bantam was scratching for grubs and shiny black beetles. Biddy hadn't started to raise a family yet, but she was going to soon, the weather was so fine. She had found a lovely place in the hay stack nobody knew about and already had 10 eggs in it. When she had four more she was going to cluck. She swelled with pride when she thought of the 14 little fluffy peeps she would soon be mothering, and

AL "INGOOD" moreover, the commonwealth takes the position that testimony as to the acts of persons on the staff of the district attorney, for which he is responsible, is admissible.

The court ruled that the testimony could not go in unless there was evidence of conspiracy. Attorney-General Allen—"We are going to introduce evidence of conspiracy. These are the first steps."

Chief Justice Rugg—"Directly connecting Mr. Tufts and Capt. Gordon as conspirators?"

Atty.-Gen. Allen—"Yes, Your Honor."

Would Be Admitted

The chief justice then announced that on such an assurance, from the attorney-general, the evidence would be admitted but should be proved unable to carry out his pledge it would be stricken out.

Athanas was then allowed to continue that he asked what complaints had been made, but for a long time Gordon refused to specify. Athanas said he pleaded that some unfair propaganda must have been put in circulation.

"Capt. Gordon told me that he had been sent by Mr. Tufts to investigate me, and I said: 'If you are telling the truth what you report will put me as high as the sky, but if you are crooked you can put me way down!' I said the people from the state house had already investigated me, and Capt. Gordon said: 'Tell that to Mr. Tufts.'"

Not to Publish

The witness concluded that he asked Gordon not to publish anything and not to put the concern in court. Subsequently Athanas "went to an adviser, who pretended to be a spiritualist, Omar Culbar, 22 Federal street, Salem."

Joseph L. Meisse, 20 Washington place, Northampton, told for the first time the story of the harboring, for three and a half weeks in his home, of the escaped murderer, Barney. Meisse had refused to relate the tale to various newspapers. The two were school chums in Dorchester years before, he testified. Barney arrived on a motorcycle, in company with one "Frank Smith," at Meisse's home in Northampton June 5, 1920, and stayed till June 30. On June 26 Stephen C. Bresnahan came and talked with Barney in the parlor for about an hour, and on leaving was followed by Barney. As appeared from the testimony of other witnesses, Barney took the number of the automobile in which Bresnahan arrived with O'Halloran. Subsequently Bresnahan and Earl Barney, stepfather of the convict, came and saw Barney. Meisse overheard what was said. It was at this point that Mr. Hurlburt was stopped, when he tried to get in the conversation, and dramatically made his offer of proof as to the promises of pardon on Tufts' elevation to the gubernatorial chair, and asylum in Rutland pending that.

Sent Letter Back

Meisse was allowed to testify that Barney sent a letter back by the motorcycle rider, and that subsequently the witness mailed either in Williamsburg or Easthampton a letter from Barney to Bresnahan, now a member of the bar, who had testified earlier in the day that he acted last spring as "counsel" for the Barney family, although not then admitted to the bar. Barney received an answer, in an envelope addressed to the witness. This bit of evidence slipped in before the objections of the defense could be acted on. Meisse had a talk with Barney about going back to prison, and mailed a letter for him to a postoffice clerk in Cambridge from Shelburne Falls, where the witness was then working.

Witness Meisse, on cross-examination by Atty. Johnson, was requested to write, twice, the names of Stephen C. Bresnahan and E. O. Barney, and was then asked whether he had written Bresnahan since Barney's departure, demanding money. After some hesitation, the witness replied in the negative, admitted he had written Earl Barney, but denied asking for money. He qualified his denial as to writing Bresnahan by saying he had no memory of writing. He also admitted signing a letter to Earl Barney "Sweet Sixteen."

Presents Letter

Then Atty. Johnson presented before the witness a letter, and the latter admitted his signature. "Now," said Mr. Johnson, "you've told the story of how you harbored Herman Barney, the convict, fugitive from justice; do you expect immunity?"

"I don't know what you mean by immunity. I don't expect prosecution."

"Why?"

"Because I don't think any district

attorney or anybody else would have a case against me."

In re-direct, Mr. Hurlburt led Meisse to explain the "Sweet Sixteen" letter, and Atty. Johnson volunteered to read it, introducing it as an exhibit. The witness explained: "I was in no position to support Barney with eggs $5 to a dozen, and other things in proportion, and after some talk he agreed to pay $1 a day, but he paid nothing. He went away without talk of settlement, so I wrote the senior Barney a week later. In reply I had a letter dated Chicago, but posted in Boston, and signed 'Sweet Sixteen,' telling me I was a good fellow, and a lot more like that, but not a word about settlement. I wrote three or four times after that, but didn't even get a reply, and finally sent this."

On Our Judgment

Mr. Johnson read the letter, which stated that a newspaperman had been to see the writer, and "If you folks don't care to advise me, I'll have to act according to my own judgment. I do intend to have a show-down. I'm damned sure I'm not going to lose any sleep over it." The letter also stated that the writer had written to "S" (meaning Stephen Bresnahan). The witness explained the "Sweet Sixteen" signature, and "Chicago" date line as a take-off on the missive he had himself received.

Mrs. Carrie O. Meisse, pretty, pink-checked and girlish, corroborated her husband's evidence as to the arrival of Barney and the visits of "Bresnahan and Earl Barney. She said that when Bresnahan telephoned, Barney refused to talk over the wire, and she had to tell the conversation she heard as to promises made to Barney.

Startling Contradiction

Mrs. Meisse presented one startling contradiction to the previous testimony of the day. Bresnahan, O'Halloran and Chauffeur Doherty were all certain that they did not go near the house where Barney was harbored. Mrs. Meisse asserted that when Bresnahan came back for the last time, Barney had just left and, as Bresnahan turned away from the house, she saw a gray automobile approach in which were Tufts and the chauffeur who had been on the witness stand preceding her. Bresnahan hailed, and was taken in the car. The testimony of the men had been that they took Barney in the car first, and later Bresnahan.

According to Mrs. Meisse, it was she who persuaded Barney, at the last moment, not to run away. She was not cross-examined.

Keep a string on your Dollar

When you buy your can of FAM-O and pay your dollar for it you get an absolute guarantee that if it does not make good, your money will be refunded.

You do, in fact, keep a string on your dollar. And these are the thing that constitute "making good" as far as FAM-O is concerned. Absolute removal of accumulated carbon and prevention of further accumulation. Additional power, speed and response. 25% increased mileage from each gallon of gasoline. No harmful effects to the motor or its parts.

How does FAM-O work, you ask?

The first 8-oz. can is poured into your full gas tank. It cleans out tank, pipe lines, vacuum tank and carburetor and starts the carbon removing process. Afterwards you use only 1 oz. to every five gallons of gas to complete the carbon removing and bring about the increased mileage.

8-oz. can $1.00. Gallon can $12.00. At all dealers. Gordon Mfg. Co., Foxboro, Mass.

TAKE YOUR LAST LOOK AT A FLETCHER STREET CAR

Did you know that there is a home for aged street cars in Lowell just as there is a home for elderly men? There is a place provided for these veterans of the trolley and tracks where they may pass out their declining years with old friends with whom they were active co-workers in the days of their youth and strength. It's out in the country where there is peace and quiet and no whizzing automobiles and ponderous trucks to make life miserable.

Out in the barn of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., in Middlesex street, and on the tracks around the barn is stored away many a romantic tale of early railroading days in Lowell, of the days when the horse car was gradually giving away to his more modern successor, the electric car, and when people knew nothing of such contrivances as pay-as-you-enter systems and one-man cars. Volumes could be filled with interesting anecdotes of the battered veterans which now stand on rusty wheels awaiting their final fate. Lifeless though they are with not even the enervating energy of electrical current to animate them, nevertheless, when the stories of their careers are unfolded by somebody who knew them in their youth, they seem to take on the appearance of human beings and if one has a touch of romance or sentiment in his heart, they become the personification of many an interesting story.

These old cars, no longer fit for active service, are the pensioners of the street railway company. But they are not expensive pensioners. All they ask is a place to stay and not even the shelter of a roof do they require. They are content to pass out in the very elements in which they did their work years ago and they scorn the coddling which their successors, the up-to-date, one-man cars receive in the way of constant shelter and frequent repairs when they are not on duty.

Baring Their History

All that is needed to bring out the stories of these dumb cars is some man who has on his lips the "Open Sesame" which lays bare their history. And these are few railway men better fitted for this task than Thomas Lees, manager of the Lowell district of the Eastern Massachusetts and a railwayman since 1889. Manager Lees can give you the day and date of every important event in the history of the local division and in company with a Sun reporter and photographer he walked around the spacious yard of the company in Middlesex street this morning and gave the personal history of practically every car in the enclosure. He talked of them as though they were old friends and indeed they are, many of them, for he has spent many years with them.

For instance, Mr. Lees and his visitors first met Car No. 11, an old closed car of the 20-foot type no longer used for passenger service. It is now employed as a light car, bringing rear lights to the square to be put on modern workers when darkness falls.

"That car came here in 1894 at the opening of the Lowell-Lawrence line," said Manager Lees without any hesitation. "It was made over from a horse-car."

Many of the old cars now at the barn in Middlesex street were formerly horse cars. Mr. Lees explained that the electrification of the road started in 1892 the horse cars were cut in the center and two additional windows put in extending the length from 15 to 20 feet. Changes in other parts of the car had to be made, of course, but the body remained practically the same as that of the old horse-car. Many people have had the idea that when the electric car came into being all the horse-cars were automatically consigned to the junk pile or else relegated to some out-of-the-way corner. But this is not so; many of them were in use right on the local line up to within a few years ago.

Manager Lees said, is the top of the car in the windows on the side of the car. At one time he painted different colors to designate that the car was to be used for a certain route. He recalls distinctly covered by Scotch plaid, was designated by the color of the car.

The electrification of the local division was in charge of the local division now holding a responsible position with the Lawrence division. Many of the cars were converted from horse-drawn affairs to electric by Andrew Moffatt, who is still employed as a carpenter in the repair shop of the company.

Before the actual electrification of the local road could be consummated there had to be a consolidation of two competing companies. The Lowell

& Dracut Street Railway company had been running an electric line from Lowell to Lakeview, the first electric line to be conducted here. In Lowell proper horse-car lines were being run by the Lowell Horse-Car Street Railway company. Finally the summer of 1892 the first purely local electric car line was opened on Broadway. There was a great celebration to mark the affair which terminated in a big banquet on the lawn of the Colonel Parker estate. Officials of the railroad and city government members were among those present.

Old Cars Still There

Many of these old cars which served as horse cars first and later as electric cars are still standing on the tracks in the company's yards in Middlesex street. Some of them have been there for years, used once in a while in case of an emergency, but for the most part just standing there idle. The company is making an effort to dispose of all its old stock and many of the old-timers will soon be sold for junk. A few exceptions will be the sturdy-built larger cars which will be sold to other companies. They are no longer available for use on the lines of the Eastern Massachusetts. The constantly growing demand for accommodations on the local lines and those going from here to other cities has made it necessary that every available inch of space be secured for the use of cars in everyday service. Therefore, the old veterans will have to go.

One of the cars now standing in the Middlesex street yard was driven as a horse car by Manager Lees when he was a conductor in 1889. That was the year of the big East Merrimack street fire. During the summer, of course, open horse cars were run but as the fall drew on there was a natural demand for closed cars but it was November when the snow was flying before the long-awaited cars arrived. There were five assigned to the Westford street-Bridge street route and Conductor Lees received Car No. 41. That car was later electrified and several years ago it was sent to the barn no longer fit for service. Today it stands silently and once in a while Manager Lees steals over to get a look at it and recall the days when he drove it behind a pair of horses. The other conductors on the same route at that time were Alex Roundtree, now salesman for a local wholesale house; James Foye, now dead; Michael Noonan, a city employee, and John Lowney, a former inspector for the water department.

Fletcher Street Relic

The accompanying cut shows one of the oldest cars in the Middlesex street yard. It is a former Fletcher street conveyance and had previously served as a horse-car. Manager Lees at one time collected fares in it before it had been electrified. This is now known as Car 2225 and occupies a little reserved section all for itself in honor, perhaps, of the noted lines on which it once ran.

When the Sun photographer went to take a picture of it this morning, it was found that the trolley was still attached to the wire and immediately there was a panic. "Take that trolley down," someone hollered, "or the car will run away. It's a Fletcher street boat, remember."

Down came the trolley and the danger was over. Inside the car was a sign which read as follows and which will be of interest to former patrons of the famous line: "This car has super-springs contributing quiet and ease."

There are few Lowell people who are aware of the fact that Lowell stands out prominently in the history of electric railway development in this country. Lowell was the first city to use alternating current for street railway purposes, it was the first city to employ double truck vestibule box cars and it was the first city to use two-truck open cars.

Many of the old local cars have been converted into up-to-date, one-man cars; the others are simply waiting for the time when they will be converted into junk and that time is not far off.

BABY BASKET IS COMFORTABLE

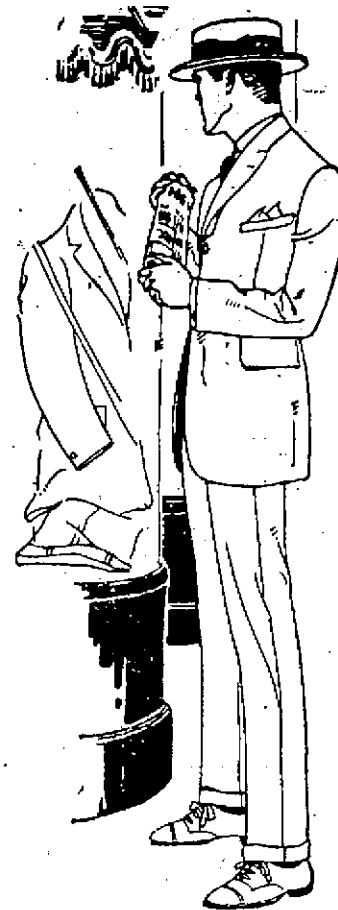

BABY IN HER BASKET

Get a basket for baby! Just a plain market basket with two strong handles is all you need. The splint makes a light, airy, comfortable seat for the little lady and she's much easier to tote about than if you just take her on your arm. The basket is an excellent idea for automobiling. With little effort on the part of father, it can be securely fastened between the seats, thus making baby and mother much more comfortable than if the child has to be held for a long drive. It is a good idea to reinforce the handles of the basket on the under side with strong wire.

send a letter by special standpoint, to a farmer who lives miles away from the postoffice. Such letters usually go by the regular rural route delivery and the government is in the position of receiving money under false pretenses. They can't special deliver in these cases even for a quarter, but what they purpose doing is, whenever it is possible, telephoning the remote locations that a special delivery letter is at the postoffice, whereupon, if he considers it of sufficient importance, the farmer can come in for it, or authorize the postmaster to engage a messenger to take it out, or to tell him that a neighbor is coming that way and authorize the postmaster to trust the messenger to him.

Anybody, the postmaster general thinks, would rather pay a quarter for an actual special delivery service than a dime for a theoretical one.

COLLINS PLEADS GUILTY

Is Sentenced to 2½ Years in Prison for Theft of Autos

BOSTON, July 15.—John L. Collins, formerly superintendent of the Lowell Electric Light Corp., pleaded guilty in superior court today to a larceny of nine automobiles during the past five years. A sentence of two to two and a half years in state prison was imposed by Judge Quinn.

Collins told the court that he had always wanted to own an automobile but did not feel that he could afford to buy one. In June, 1916, he saw a car that suited him and could not resist the temptation to steal it. Later he sold the first car and stole another. Other thefts followed. After he had served his term he hoped to reimburse persons who had suffered through his larcenies, he told the court.

Collins said he was a graduate of the University of Maine and as superintendent of the Lowell Electric Light Co., received a salary of $4000 a year.

CHARLES WITHAM DEAD

Local Contractor Found Dead at His Home in Princeton Street

Charles P. Witham, well known contractor, was found dead in the bathroom of his home, 213 Princeton street, this morning, death being due to gas poisoning. The remains were viewed by Medical Examiner T. B. Smith, who signed the death certificate "gas poisoning, suicide," and later removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker Saunders in Appleton street.

Mr. Witham had not been well for some time. He was last seen alive at 3 o'clock this morning by members of his family. Shortly after 7 o'clock his daughter detected the odor of gas in the house and traced it to the bathroom, where she found the body of her father. The tip on the gas jet had been removed.

Mr. Witham was 54 years of age and had been a contractor for the past forty years, specializing in home building. In the course of his activities he had developed that section of Princeton street, where he lived, as well as a large tract of land in the Fort Hill district, Troy street, Putnam avenue, Rhodora and Parker streets. He was an attendant of the Centralville M. E. church.

Deceased is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Fannie McElroy of this city; Mrs. Myrtle B. Garraffant of Verona, N. J.; and Mrs. Blanche Curry of Dracut, as well as four grandchildren. He was not connected with any fraternal or social organization.

MRS. KABER IS CARRIED INTO COURT

CLEVELAND, July 15.—Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber was carried into the court room by two bailiffs this morning when her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, was arrested. When seated she clutched the arm of an attending bailiff seated at her side, and amid sobs pleaded that he would not leave her.

"Don't leave me; don't leave me; you won't leave me?" she said. William J. Corrigan, Mrs. Kaber's attorney, tried to quiet her.

"I want to tell them, I want to tell them everything, but Mr. Corrigan won't let me," she sobbed to the bailiff.

Mrs. Kaber's hat had fallen from her head and her hair disheveled.

Dr. P. A. Jacobs, who was county coroner at the time of the murder, testified that Mrs. Kaber's death was caused by stab wounds which he received on the night of July 18, 1919. He also declared that he thought Mrs. Kaber was "perfectly sane" when she testified at the inquest conducted before him.

WALSH TALKS ON BONUS

Asserts Recommitment to Committee Would be "Humiliating Spectacle"

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The senate entered today on four hours' final debate before voting on recommitment of the soldier bonus bill as requested by President Harding with Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, asserting that the recommitment would be "a humiliating spectacle." The voting hour was set by agreement at 3 p. m.

"It will be hailed on every platform," Senator Walsh said to the republican side, "as an indication of your stupidity, irresponsibility and evasiveness. You may think senators, that you are fooling the American people but you are not fooling these patriotic ex-service men."

Senator Walsh declared the republicans had attempted to kill and to delay the woman suffrage, income tax and prohibition constitutional amendments, but had failed, and predicted that the bonus legislation finally would be enacted. "Big money holding classes," he said, "were behind the fight against the bill."

Senator Walsh also criticized administration of the war risk and other soldier relief work, which he said "amounted to almost criminal negligence" because of "unnecessary red tape, irritating delays and unsympathetic officialdom."

GEN. McANDREW IN SERIOUS CONDITION

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Major Gen. James W. CASE OF TETANUS REPORTED TODAY

A case of tetanus, or lockjaw, a very rare disease, was reported to the board of health today. The victim is Louis Diette, aged 18, of 355 Lincoln street. The case was reported by Dr. Favaloro.

Tetanus is caused by an infection in a wound on a person's body and results in a stiffening of the neck and the inability of the patient to open his mouth. A chill and fever usually result.

It has been some time since a case of this kind has been reported to the local health department. The cure for it is the injection of anti-toxin into the spinal canal. Diette is now at St. John's hospital undergoing treatment.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The senate entered today on four hours' final debate before voting on recommitment of the soldier bonus bill as requested by President Harding with Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, asserting that the recommitment would be "a humiliating spectacle." The voting hour was set by agreement at 3 p. m.

"It will be hailed on every platform," Senator Walsh said to the republican side, "as an indication of your stupidity, irresponsibility and evasiveness. You may think senators, that you are fooling the American people but you are not fooling these patriotic ex-service men."

Charged with breaking and entering in the night time the Wilder street residence of William E. Hall, and with larceny of 23 quarts of rare old liquors of ancient vintage, Bertram E. Clark pleaded not guilty in the police court this morning, and had his case continued to July 18. He will also have a hearing on that date on the charge of improper conduct originally lodged against him. It is alleged that Clark, who was employed painting the Hall dwelling, was accustomed to eat his lunches in the cellar of the abode, and thus became privy to the fact that costly champagne, vermouth, and other priceless beverages of a by-gone day were closeted therein. It is believed that he left a window unlocked when leaving for the day, and later returned and "lifted" the invaluable wet goods most of which have been recovered by the police.

In the complaint made out at the office of the clerk of the police court, these gold-labeled beverages are priced as being of the value of $10 a quart.

WAGE REDUCTION IN LOCAL THEATRES

It is reported that the stage hands, operators and musicians employed in all the local theatres which are now open have been given a two weeks' notice by the managers and will quit work next Sunday unless they agree in the meantime to accept a wage reduction.

Some time ago the managers asked the fact that they accept a reduction in wages voluntarily but the theatre employees have refused to do so. One local manager said this afternoon that the theatres are now paying musicians $50 a week whereas a year ago they were getting $50.

All the theatre men emphasize the fact that the closing of the theatres as other men will be secured to fill their places. It is said that the employees themselves are willing to accept a reduction but are out-weighted by the other members of their unions.

Witness Said After He Paid Cash to Lawyer, Tufts Stopped Pushing Case Against Lowell Concerns

BOSTON, July 15.—It was testified before the supreme court today that prosecution of the International Service Co., Inc., was dropped by District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county after he had declared he had evidence to convict the company and those behind it of violation of the banking laws. The company had a Lowell office.

Charles P. Korsak, who represents the International Service Co. of Lowell, will be called as a witness in the case. This statement was made today in court by Attorney General J. Weston Allen.

Witness Said After He Paid Cash to Lawyer, Tufts Stopped Pushing Case Against Lowell Concerns

BOSTON, July 15.—It was testified before the supreme court today that prosecution of the International Service Co., Inc., was dropped by District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county after he had declared he had evidence to convict the company and those behind it of violation of the banking laws. The company had a Lowell office.

Charles P. Korsak, who represents the International Service Co. of Lowell, will be called as a witness in the case. This statement was made today in court by Attorney General J. Weston Allen.

All talk of prosecution ended. James S. Athans, former president of the company said, after payment of several thousand dollars to Harry E. Levenson, a Boston Attorney.

Attorney General Allen, in seeking the removal from office of District Attorney Tufts, charged conspiracy between him, Levenson, William J. Corcoran, Tufts' predecessor in office, and Captain Herbert Gordon of the Cambridge police force to extort money from Athans, George H. Grant, Charles P. Korsak and the International Service Co., Inc., under threats of prosecution.

Saw Spiritualist
Athans said that after being told by Captain Gordon that there were complaints against the company, of which he was then president, he saw Omar Kaldar, a spiritualist, who recommended that he consult Attorney Levenson. The spiritualist took him to see Levenson, he said, telling him the latter would take the case for nothing as he was a friend of his, Kaldar's.

The witness said he and Levenson went to Corcoran's office where the latter said he would be able to "fix this up."

"I asked how much it would cost," said the witness, "and he said he wanted a retaining fee of $1000. He said he would try to find out just what the complaint against the company was."

Discussion Followed
A discussion followed as to the total cost and the sum of $10,000 was mentioned. Mr. Grant, according to the witness, said that was too much and it would be better to fight the case. On the following morning, Athans, Grant and their Lowell manager received summonses. The witness said they immediately consulted Mr. Levenson who said:

"If we want to stop this we've got to act quick."

Later a conference was held in Tufts' office, the witness continued, at which the directors of the company, Levenson, Tufts and Captain Gordon were present.

The witness said Levenson whispered to Tufts. Then he stepped back and told Tufts they were all right and he wanted them to be reasonable with them.

Offered to Pay Expenses
Athans said he offered to pay any expenses of any investigation into the affairs of his company that Tufts wanted, but urged him to give him a chance to show he was not guilty.

"Mr. Tufts replied 'I don't care. I've got you for violation of the banking laws, chapter 42B, laws of 1911. If you've got any books you can produce them in court.'"

Athans asserted that as they went out Captain Gordon said to them, "We can fix you if we want to, but we don't want to."

When the directors returned to Levenson's office, the lawyer told them he had done all he could. The directors of the company consulted, and the next day, returned to Levenson and told him they would pay the necessary money.

Drew Their Checks
Levenson told them to draw their checks to Mr. Grant, have him cash them and give him (Levenson) the money. A check for $1000 by Athans to Grant was offered. Later a check for $2000 was drawn by Mr. Grant on the International Service Co., payable to Mr. Levenson.

"After you paid the money did you

"Did you sell H. B. Greene Co. stock in Lowell?"
"Yes, on commission."

"No, if I had I could have continued." He said when he started, his own company the stock was sold on commission.

When Capt. Gordon came to court, he stated in returning.

Judge Enright Urges Rigorous Campaign Against Street Corner Loafers

A rigorous police campaign against the street corner loafers who have been annoying women and children with indecent language and rowdyish conduct, was urged today by Judge Thos. J. Enright, of the local police court.

"More people of that kind ought to be arrested," was the tenor of His Honor's remarks, which were made in connection with the arrest of Joseph L. McCall, heard in the police court on drunkenness charges this morning. McCall was sentenced to two months in the house of correction and listened to some comments by the court couched in no ambiguous terms. His sentence was later suspended on condition that he look for work.

Officer Patrick Flaherty, who brought the defendant to police headquarters last night, testified that the latter has been one of a gang which has congregated in Adams street, using vile language and in other ways constituting themselves a menace to the peace of the community.

"You have been making nuisances of yourselves, you and the crowd you've been hanging around with," was the burden of Judge Enright's criticism of the defendant. "You've got to learn that you cannot stand around and insult people. But if you try to find work I'll give you a chance." His Honor referred to the "society talk" alleged against the group of which McCall was said to be one. McCall told the court that he has been out of work for some time. After the case had been disposed of, Officer Flaherty was instructed to make a "clean up" of idlers who bother passersby, and shock women and children by their profane utterances. The officer was commended for taking action against this nuisance. He testified that the defendant has been driven away from the street corner, in an effort to save him from the police court, and at the same time protect peaceable citizens, but added that McCall persisted in returning.

ever hear any more about proceeding against you?"
"No."

Later on Levenson sent them a bill for services for $1000, which he later reduced to $500.

To Sell Stocks
In cross-examination Athans said his duty with the International Service Co. was to sell stock. Most of his sales were in Lowell and Salem, and among foreigners. He sold at 15 per cent. commission. Circulating saying that the company had three million dollars capital stock and referring to various dividends were introduced and the witness admitted that only about $100,000 of capital was paid in and only one dividend had been declared when the circulars were issued. He denied knowledge that his agents told people they were putting their money in a sort of bank.

"Yes, on commission."

"No, if I had I could have continued." He said when he started, his own company the stock was sold on commission.

TULSA, Okla., July 15.—Judge Lucien B. A. McDougal, today. The case involved $1,900,000 in oil lands. Attorney General S. P. Manager Lord of the Highland Daylights has secured the services of two new players, Trask and Peterson. Trask is a well known local boy, who has been playing with the Unity A.C. of Lawrence, and Peterson is a newcomer, who it is hoped will materially strengthen the Daylights. He has played semi-pro ball along the North shore for the past two seasons and is a heavy batter and fast fielder. He is now employed in the Saco-Lowell shop. With these additions to his lineup Manager Lord hopes to give the league leaders a stiff fight for the top of the ladder.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents.)
THE STRAND
"Her Lord and Master," adapted from the stage play of the same name, with Alice Joyce starring, is a play of American and British life and manners. In the stage version Eric Sutherland and the late Herbert Kelcey were starred. It's a better picture story than a stage play. Don't miss it.
In "The Freeze Out," in which Harry Carey appears, patrons have another opportunity of enjoying this star in a new role. The remainder of the bill is high class. The Strand is always "cool and comfortable." There are 1000 seats at 10 cents each at all performances.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Lovers of the best in photoplays are flocking to the Merrimack Square theatre to see Olive Tell in her latest cinema triumph, "Wings of Pride." This production has been booked because it presents the star in a role that her hosts of admirers will welcome. "Wings of Pride" is a sensational drama of a young society girl, a king of political crooks and a boss who makes every attempt to get the girl for himself. It is packed full of the sort of dramatic action that spells excitement with many a thrill.
Victrola Desmon in "Next Love," another big dramatic production, provides the second big feature. A comedy and the International News complete the bill.

NEW LAKEVIEW PARK

Lowell swimmers are to enter competition at Lakeview next Thursday to determine the city championship. Lowell has a dozen or more very well qualified aquatic experts, and there is more or less rivalry among them, also a lot of argument on the question of relative superiority. The contests next Thursday will settle all controversies. Contestants may leave their name with Mr. Coughlin, of the Kiltredge store, Central street. Meanwhile, Lakeview continues to be the ideal picnic ground of North Middlesex. Afternoon and evening, there is amusement in variety and quality.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway has 650 miles of its road electrified.

BROCKTON GETS CUT IN TROLLEY FARES

BROCKTON, July 15.—A reduction in fares on the lines of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company was announced today by the Brockton home rule committee, of which George W. Alden is chairman. Commencing Sunday, tickets good for 17 rides from the Brockton central zone will be sold for $1. At present 14 rides are given for $1.
The new scale will not benefit patrons of the road living in Whitman, East Bridgewater, Rockland, Abington, West Bridgewater or Stoughton. They will continue to use the 14-ride tickets. The 10-cent unit of fare remains and the two-zone 10-cent fare on Maine street is discontinued.

Continued
Yesterday were witnessed as the meeting between the British prime minister and the republican leader was in progress. A large crowd awaited Mr. De Valera and cheered him as he entered Downing street, repeating the ovation as he and his companions left at the close of the talk. As the conference proceeded prayers for its success were said by the crowd in Whitehall, the men and women kneeling and reciting the Rosary.
On leaving Downing street, Mr. De Valera said there would not be any further meeting today and that he "did not think" there would be a meeting Saturday.

No Deadlock
A member of Mr. De Valera's party gave definite assurances that nothing in the nature of a deadlock or a breakdown of the conference threatened at any time. Meanwhile Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, arrived in London today from Belfast announcing on his arrival that he would see the premier this afternoon.
Asked for an expression of opinion on the Irish situation, Sir James replied: "The less said now the better."

He added, however, that he was hopeful.
At the close of yesterday's conversation, which lasted almost three hours, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera gave evidence that some progress had been made and that today's discussion would be resumed under favorable circumstances.

Unlikely to Meet Craig
When Mr. De Valera left his hotel on his way to Downing street, where he was to meet the prime minister, a member of his party told the Associated Press, it was "extremely unlikely" that he would come in contact today with Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, who was summoned to London in connection with the conference. A small crowd cheered Mr. De Valera as he departed from his hotel.

Art O'Brien, president of the Gaelic League in London, and Robert C. Barton, member of the Irish delegation, accompanied Mr. De Valera but remained in another room when today's conference began. Prior to Mr. De Valera's arrival at No. 10 Downing street, Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland and Lord Curzon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, conferred with the prime minister. Mr. De Valera and his companions drove to Downing street in an open car, and were loudly cheered by a large crowd in Whitehall.
Mr. De Valera arrived at the prime minister's official residence at 11:30 o'clock and the two men resumed their interview in the cabinet room.

Resume Military Control

BELFAST, July 15.—(By the Associated Press)—The military resumed control of the North Queen street area in Belfast this morning and armored cars patrolled the streets.

A conference was held at the city hall by officers of the police and the military and by leading townspeople to discuss the situation.
Acute trouble developed early last evening in the York street and North Queen street district, several civilians being wounded. The rioting stopped abruptly at the curfew hour but it was announced that reinforcement of the military in Belfast from adjoining areas today was contemplated.
When the reports from last night's rioting were made public this morning it developed that two persons were killed during the disorders, and that between 30 and 40 others were wounded.

During the disturbances the mob looted a number of public houses.

Council of Ministers

LONDON, July 14.—(By the Associated Press)—Premier Lloyd George held a council of ministers at the house of commons tonight to discuss his meeting with Mr. De Valera. Later he proceeded to a dinner of the liberal coalitionists, where he received a great ovation.

Apologizing for his late appearance, he said he had been engaged in important tasks during the day and after discussing the report of his sovereign, he declared he was taking a very keen and close interest in the proceedings and to whose intervention so much was attributable.
"We owe him," added the premier, "a deep debt of gratitude for this, one of the greatest services he has rendered." This was greeted with loud applause.

With reference to Ireland, Mr. Lloyd

George besought his audience not to tempt him into an indiscretion. "The less said the better at this stage," declared the premier, "but there is the great fact—that Mr. De Valera, chieftain of the vast majority of the Irish race, has been in conference for nearly three hours with the prime minister of this country, discussing various methods of suggestions for the settlement of this long, long controversy—an old, bitter, wasteful feud, a feud in which there has been for ages a number of disastrous blunders, and endless opportunities lost."
"Let us trust that this one will not be lost. I can only say, after the long discussion, that I am certain we both did our best to secure peace. (Loud cheers.) Beyond that it would not be wise for me to go at this moment, because we both have our difficulties to deal with."

Mr. Lloyd George alluded to "the remarkable invitation issued by the president of the United States to discuss the issues involved in the Pacific problem, on which the future peace of the world depends."
He went on to say: "I am hopeful that it will result in a pact of peace that will make the Pacific a really peaceful ocean. I also trust that it will lead to a useful discussion of the problem of disarmament, upon which so much depends for the future of our race, because it matters not what treaties are signed, what pacts are entered into between nations, what understandings they may establish, it makes no difference what leagues or associations they may found, if nations arm against each other for war, war will ensue in the end."
Therefore no treaty is of value unless it leads to an understanding among nations that they will not utilize their resources, their wealth and their strength for the purpose of developing the mechanism of human slaughter amongst themselves. I am very hopeful that when that conference meets it will lead to something beyond mere resolutions in favor of disarmament, and will lead to an understanding and real arrangement involving the keeping of those armaments within innocuous limits."

SAYS GOODBYE TO GIRL

Worcester Man Then Sends a Bullet Crashing Into His Brain

WORCESTER, July 15.—After bidding goodby to his sweetheart, with whom he had quarreled earlier in the night, George A. Southwick, 32, of North Brookfield, went to his room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackmer, 16 Newbury street, parents of the girl, last night and, placing a .38-calibre revolver to his right temple, sent a bullet crashing into his brain. The bullet lodged over his left eye after passing through his head. He was rushed to the Worcester city hospital in the police ambulance. He is not expected to live.

According to the police, Southwick had been keeping company with Florence Blackmer, daughter of the couple, with whom he boarded. On July 4 he asked for an engagement ring he had given her, and this week he returned it.

The incident, it is said, caused a quarrel at the time, and earlier last night it was renewed. Southwick threatened to kill himself and the girl. It is alleged. He went to his room later and shouted out of an open window, "Goodby Florence, here goes." Then he fired a shot. Not much significance was paid to the shooting, as it was thought he was attempting to frighten the girl and her parents.

Shortly after the shot was fired one of the boarders entered the room and found Southwick on the bed with the blood streaming from his right temple. On the mirror was a small card on which Southwick had written, "Being justified by faith, have peace with God."

It was stated at the Blackmer home that Southwick had just returned from Bethel mission, and before going to his room asked forgiveness from the girl and members of the family for any wrong he had done. He was forgiven by the girl and her parents when he promised to mend his ways. It was stated.

A federal warrant has been issued for Nicholas Kisloff, the alleged bill-raiser recently captured here by Officer Spillane after a thrilling chase, and he will be taken into custody by government officers. The morning he was finger-printed at local police headquarters preparatory to turning him over to the federal arm. He then appeared before Judge Enright in the police court, and a charge of larceny preferred against him by the authorities here was dismissed for lack of prosecution. He is charged, on the federal complaint, with "raising and uttering" a note of the United States government, and with uttering the same upon Mihrao Barsorian, a South street merchant. When apprehended by Officer Spillane, Kisloff, who has an alias of "Clyde Meadow," struck himself on the head with a rock which he was holding, crying that he wanted to die, that he had nothing to live for. Later, at police headquarters, he begged for a revolver with which to end his life. He sought clemency from Officer Spillane, and from Barsorian, on the grounds that he was a former cavalryman in the United States army. An identification disk, giving him as a member of the 15th cavalry, was found on his person when he was searched at headquarters prior to being locked up.

Kisloff is a young man of good appearance, but pale from his self-inflicted wound, which necessitated a physician's ministrations, and which caused him to make his first appearance in court with his head swathed in heavy bandages. Federal officers came to Lowell, to take over his custody from the police here.

FIELD DAY COMMITTEE FOR TOMORROW'S OUTING

All that is needed now for the success of the first field day of the employees of the Bay State Cotton Corp., which will be held tomorrow at Willow Dale, is good weather, as all arrangements for the event have been completed. Up to 10 o'clock this forenoon more than 400 had secured tickets for the affair and a great many others had signified their intention of being present, so that the committee in charge expects that between 600 and 700 men, women and children, will spend the day at Willow Dale tomorrow under the colors of the Bay State Cotton Corp.

Through the courtesy of the officials of the company the entire plant will shut down tonight until next Monday morning so that every employee of the concern will be given the opportunity of attending the outing. Special cars will leave Merrimack square at 8 a. m., and the picnicers will be taken to the Dale, where an elaborate program will be carried out.

WANT RYNNER BACK AT SWIMMING POOL

Nearly 200 patrons of the municipal bath house and bathing pool off the Pawtucket boulevard, many of them children, have attached their signatures to a petition now in circulation asking that Patrolman Michael F. Rynne be stationed at the bath house in a bathing suit.

It will be recalled that before the swimming pool was turned over to the park department Mr. Rynne was stationed there and wore a bathing suit. Later, when the new bath house was erected and the park department took over the management of the place, three life guards were appointed and Patrolman Rynne was asked to wear a regular patrolman's uniform. Upon his refusal to do so he was transferred to regular police duty.

The petition, which is soon to be presented to the mayor, reads as follows: "To Hon. Perry D. Thompson, Mayor:—We, the undersigned, want Michael Rynne at the bath house in a bathing suit as police officer. We feel sure that we will be well protected."

CALL FOR STATE TROOPS IN VERMONT

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 15.—A call for state militia to be sent to Wilder, Vt., for use in connection with possible disturbances in connection with the strike of the men of the International Paper Co. was received at the executive offices here at 4 o'clock this morning.

Gov. Harrington is in Canada attending the Great Lakes-Lake Champlain waterways conference and Lieut. Gov. Pease of Cornwall could not be located so the matter was left in the hands of Adj. Gen. Herbert T. Johnson, head of the state's military department, who went to White River Junction by automobile early this morning to hold a conference as to the need of state troops. Wilder is only a few miles from White River Junction.

TO LAUNCH BATTLESHIP WITH ELECTRIC DRIVE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Washington, the third American battleship with electric drive installation, will be launched at Camden, N. J., early in September, the navy department announced today. She is the fourth ship in the navy to bear the name, the first three being sailing vessels, built in 1814, 1815 and 1842.

The new Washington is a sister ship of the Maryland, which is expected to be turned over to the navy early in August and the Colorado and West Virginia, now in course of construction, all at the Washington Navy Yard.

OLDING TO JOIN NEW HAVEN TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 15.—Rube Olding, formerly the lead-off batter of the Philadelphia American league team, and for the last two years a member of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league, will join the New Haven team of the Eastern league next Sunday. It was announced today. The deal whereby the slugger makes the transcontinental jump, is said to have been put through by Connie Mack, who knew of Olding's desire to play in the east.

FIRES IN BILLERICA

According to the semi-annual report of the Billerica fire department recently submitted to the board of selectmen by Chief Bartlett, there have been as many fires in the first six months of 1921 as during the entire year of 1920. The report shows that there were 71 alarms, 15 buildings fires, 5 automobile fires, 49 brush and grass fires, 1 rescue and 1 test. The report also contains the following items of interest: Value of property at risk, and upon which there was a loss, not including brush and grass fires, $25,266.40; total loss on same, $3355. The apparatus at the Central station responded to all alarms, with the following record: Feet of hose laid, 1550; feet of ladders raised, 330; extinguishers, 232; chemical tanks, 10; miles travelled, 311.2; hours of service, 64 hours and 50 minutes. HELD LAWN PARTY

A lawn party was held last evening on the lawn of the Father Mathew Total Abstinence society in Billerica. The affair, which was largely attended, was conducted by the committee in

LAWYERS HONOR FREDERIC S. HARVEY

The Villa Lorraine, at Pepperell, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a brilliant assemblage of local representatives of the legal profession, met at a congratulatory banquet in honor of Frederic S. Harvey, newly appointed assistant United States district attorney for this state. A reception of an informal nature preceded the dinner, as did a business meeting of the Lowell Bar association, whose members comprised the greater proportion of the guests. Judge John J. Pickman presided at this session, which took up the matter of better provision for the trial of cases both at the police and superior courts. An effort will be made through committees to bring about the desired changes.

William H. Wilson, the toastmaster of the occasion, was introduced by Judge Pickman. He called for speeches from Daniel J. Donahue, J. Joseph Hennessy, Albert S. Howard, Judge Frederic A. Fisher, John J. Harvey and Mayor Perry D. Thompson, among others. Many strong tributes were paid to the recently appointed assistant United States district attorney, who in a brief speech of appreciation, tendered his thanks for the cordial wishes of his fellow members of the local bar association. He promised to give his best efforts to his new work, in an endeavor to reflect new honors on the Lowell bar.

Attorney William J. White, designated some time ago as assistant to the United States district attorney, came in for congratulation as being another Lowell man elevated to new dignities. Mr. White was one of the guests of honor at the affair, as was his honor the mayor. Those in charge of the banquet were: Hon. James E. O'Donnell, chairman; Charles A. Donahue, John A. Crowley, James G. Hill, Richard Brabrook Walsh and J. Joseph Hennessy.

For Itching Eczema, Old Sores and Piles

"I guarantee my ointment," says Peterson of Buffalo, "to cure eczema; to stop the itching at once and any reliable druggist will cheerfully refund your money if PETERSON'S OINTMENT doesn't do everything I say it will do."
 William A. Carley of Franklin, N. Y., is surely a wise man. He writes: "I used PETERSON'S OINTMENT on a little boy suffering terribly with eczema. It did the work."
 Then there is Alex. Louette, a brave fireman of Buffalo, who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctor I called, PETERSON'S OINTMENT, and it truly healed the sore quickly." And from over in Canada comes a letter from A. Blockley, stating: "The best thing I ever hit for itching piles is PETERSON'S OINTMENT." A big box for 35 cents. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Girl Who Manages Fighting Brothers Says Boxing Is Cleanest Sport

MISS ELIZABETH TUCKER

(By Newspaper Enterprise) BRECENRIDGE, Tex., July 15.—"Boxing is the cleanest sport," says Miss Elizabeth Tucker, who manages the fighting brothers of the name. She has been rated as the best fighter in the world for women. And she bases her recommendation on experience. "The fight game offers opportunities for individuality, financial remuneration, plenty of diversion and requires business ability," she says. "Everybody in Breckenridge knows about Lennie and Frankie Tucker. They have been battling in the light-weight division and both have mighty good records. And everybody knows who has been the guiding star—Miss Elizabeth. She recently took her two brothers to Cincinnati in search of bouts. 'And that is only the first stopping place,' says Miss Manager. 'I hope to place one of the boys—maybe both of them—against Johnny Kilbane soon.' 'When we fight, we win. I always use the word 'we' in speaking of our fights, because I always fight as hard as the boys do.' Miss Tucker laughs at the idea that the fight game is too rough for women.

The Centralvilles climbed into the leading position in the Twilight League last evening on the South common by administering a sound whipping to the Broadways, score 5 to 3. Pitcher Mulno of the latter team handed the victory to the Centralville lads on a silver platter in the fourth after he took first in the first time that he occupied the mound he hit three men, issued one base on balls and allowed five safe hits. It was a record for wild and irresponsible pitching. Sturtivant, who succeeded him, slugged the tide of battle but it was too late and the game went to the Centralville club by an easy margin.

The first frame was a wild spectacle. McVey, the first batter, clouted out a long single. That started Mulno on his journey to the ethereal regions. He hit the next three men up with pitched balls, thus establishing a new record in local baseball circles. A run was forced across the plate. Then a pass and a sacrifice fly followed. Mulno quickly responded by following the inning was three runs. The second inning was another wild one. After McDonald had tied out to second, McVey lifted one to the far outfield. Sturtivant stepped to the plate and socked the game for a long single, scoring McPherson and Cawley. That was all the scoring for that inning but it was plenty. The Broadways hardly had a chance from that time on.

In the Broadways' half of the second inning Bagley lined an easy one to short but the shortstop misjudged the ball and the runner was safe at first. Mulno then whacked out the longest hit of the game and took three bases, scoring Bagley. In the fourth after McDonald had tied out to second, McVey lifted one to the far outfield. Sturtivant stepped to the plate and socked the game for a long single, scoring McPherson and Cawley. That was all the scoring for that inning but it was plenty. The Broadways hardly had a chance from that time on.

FRENCH DISPLAY SPORTSMANSHIP

A technicality could have eliminated the American cars from competing in the French Grand Prix, to be held at Le Mans July 25. Customs red tape held up the racers at Havre until they were too late to take part in the early trials that would qualify them to enter. But the French are real sportsmen who have a keen sense of justice and fair play. They have decided on a new series of trials runs to permit the American cars to participate.

CHARLEY K. O. ELKINS LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

Charley Mealey, manager of Charley K. O. Elkins, contender for the New England featherweight championship, is willing to post $500 with the sporting editor of The Sun on behalf of his charge for a bout with Al Shubert for the New England title. Shubert is the recognized featherweight champion of New England and Mealey believes he should defend his title against all comers who have shown ability. If Shubert turns down the Elkins bout, Mealey is willing to have his man box any boy in the country at the featherweight limit.

JACK JOHNSON SAYS HE IS WORLD'S CHAMPION

CHICAGO, July 15.—Halling himself as the most champion prize fighter, Jack Johnson, in his first public appearance in Chicago since his release from the penitentiary at Leavenworth, drew an audience of 5000 negro admirers into a frenzy yesterday at the Eighth Regiment armory when he declared that Dempsey would fall before him as Jeffries did years ago. Johnson's speech follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen—I am glad to be with you once again and I want to thank you very much for this grand ovation. I am going to prove to you that I am a real boxer by defeating our friend, Jack Dempsey. 'If you have read the history of Jack Johnson as a boxer you will remember that I have been around the world three times and I defeated all comers. I never drew the weight or color line. When I left Chicago to box James Jeffries I said that I was going to win. After the fight I said that Jeffries did not know how to box, and I now say that Dempsey does not know how either. 'I paid a debt to the public by serving one year at Leavenworth, and I am out to start anew. I went in with a smile and I came out with the same smile. I did not commit a crime, but I wanted a white girl, and there were two classes who defied me—the ignorant whites and the ignorant negroes. 'I am going to win my next fight, and I can bet on it. I am going to win even if the referee is against me. I knew Tex Rickard was a friend of James Jeffries, but I did not care—I beat him anyway. All I want is the next world's champion. 'The public wants Dempsey whipped, and everybody knows I am the man to do it. I can beat the best of them. Look at my face. You do not see any thick lips and cauliflower ears. It does not make any difference what Dempsey says about drawing the color line. I can manage somehow to mix it up with him. 'I will prove to the world that Jack Johnson will make good, and I will give to the former soldiers of my country the benefit of every possible effort."

SATURDAY'S GAME OUGHT TO BE A CORKER

Tomorrow afternoon's game at Spaulding park between the Lowell Knights of Columbus and the Natick town team should be one of the best of the Knights' schedule, judging from the excellent record made so far by both outfits this season.

Manager Coughlin will present what will easily be the strongest lineup the knights have yet shown. He has secured the services of Emilio, the star center fielder of the Boston Professionals, who appeared here July 4, and this clever player will be seen in a K. of C. uniform for the first time.

Jimmy Davidson, the Fitchburg star, will once more be on the mound for the locals and the other K. of C. stars, whose work has won great commendation from Lowell fans—Conlon, Rippe and McLaughlin—will all appear in tomorrow's game.

Tomorrow's game will be called at 3:15 and will be under the view of a special car service to the grounds will be provided.

WILSON-ROBINSON MILL IS ON TONIGHT

BOSTON, July 15.—Johnny Wilson for the second time since he won the middleweight championship from Mike O'Dowd, will defend his title here tonight in a 12-round decision bout. He will meet Robinson, a native New York boxer, who has a 12-round decision over Wilson to his credit, and before Wilson became champion. In two 12-round decision bouts, Robinson has been credited with the popular verdict by sport writers. An invitation to view the bout was extended to the Lowell club. Wilson's challenge to meet Carpenter for the light heavyweight title.

ESPERANTO RAISED FOR FIFTH TIME

HALIFAX, N. S., July 15.—The Esperanto, champion fishing schooner of the North Atlantic, has been raised for the fifth time from Sable Island and landed at Calgary, Alta. This announcement was made public today upon receipt of a wireless message to the department of marine and fisheries.

The wrecking tug Fabla went to the schooner's assistance when she was wrecked, and her crew has been working steadily since that time. Although the schooner had been raised, the message said she had not moved from her position as yet.

NEW RECORD SET AT WOODSTOCK, N. B.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., July 15.—John R. Braden, 202½, now owned by the Moose club of Presque Isle, Me., won from Calgary Earl, 202½, owned by L. E. Powers of Houston, Mo., in their first meeting here yesterday, before between $500 and 10,000 people. Braden won the first heat in 2:03½, a new track record and quarter of a second lower than the Maritime Provinces racing record of 2:05 made at Chatham last year by Peter Farrer.

NEW PEDESTAL

The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, is to be placed on a new pedestal. This cup was donated by Dwight F. Davis in 1900, to stimulate international interest in the chafed courts game. The stimulation took place and today there are so many names of winners engraved on the cup that there isn't room for this year's winners. Hence, Davis has ordered a pedestal on which more inscriptions can be made.

"Rough Ridin' Fool"—Air Cayuse Can't Make Cowboy "Pull Leather"

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—"He's a rough ridin' fool." So say western aviators in speaking of "Jinx" Jenkins, Texas cowboy, who stepped from his cayuse to the back of an airplane for his first ride in the air. "Jinx" said he didn't feel at home in the deep cockpit and the only way he'd enjoy his ride would be from a saddle. So a saddle was fastened to the fuselage and "Jinx" mounted. The pilot put on his best bucking stunts, through tail spins, loops and everything known to aviators. But "Jinx" never once "pulled leather." The picture shows him with his automatic, ready to go up on a sea-gull hunting expedition.

PAGES 2-MINUTE MILE

Single G Beats Sanardo at Toledo Grand Circuit—Record Attendance

TOLEDO, July 15.—Pacing the first two-minute mile of the season, the veteran pacer, Single G, again starred at Fort Miami Park yesterday, where he won the free-for-all pace over a small field, only a trio starting, and neither of the pair contesting was able to give the Indiana horse a real battle.

The attendance was a record-breaker for the track and the racing was exciting, with the judges having a busy day in officially finding it necessary to declare both off on the result of the first division of the 2:05 trotting stake. This was to have been raced as one division, but on account of the large number of starters the drivers and owners made a vigorous protest to the management, and the race was split.

Single G was a prohibitive favorite in the fast pace and after Sanardo did the first pacemaking in a busy heat, he came from behind and won in 2:00 flat. He led all the way in the next two heats in slower time, pacing the final quarter of the second mile in 27 3/4, W. B. Warefoot, his owner, was presented a silver cup by the management.

The Toddler led nearly all the way in the first heat of the 2:05 trot, beating Emma Harvester in a close finish. Great Britton came from behind and beat the Toddler in the second in stretch. The judges were not satisfied with the drive of Dodge with 2:03 1/4, equalling the trotting record for the season. In the third the Toddler won when Great Britton broke in ished with the drive of Dodge with Great Britton and declared all bet off.

Hale Garner Sets New 3-Year-Old Mark

SPRINGFIELD, July 15.—In winning first money in the three-year-old trot yesterday afternoon in the Short Ship races here, Hale Garner, owned by R. C. McClanahan of Erie, Pa., trotted the fastest mile for three-year-olds on a half-mile track this year. He is claimed to have broken the world's record with a second mile in 2:14. Eddie McGrath was at the helm of the Quaker entry.

The world's record for three-year-olds is held by Miss Ellen Todd at 2:10 1/4, the record being made at Louisville, Ky., last fall.

TRACK ATHLETES ARRIVE PATERNITY NOW CENTRAL ISSUE

English Stars Reach Boston and Are Whisked to North Shore

CAMBRIDGE, July 15.—The Oxford and Cambridge track athletes, with the exception of four stars who went to Princeton, N. J., to spend a few days, arrived in Boston last night in company with Maj. F. W. Moore of the Harvard A. A. They were met by Frank Knapp of the H.A.A. at the South station and were immediately whisked in automobiles to Swampscott, where they will have their quarters at the Seaside house until the international inter-collegiate competitions, which will take place at Cambridge a week from tomorrow.

Capt. B. G. D. Rudd of Oxford, W. K. Milligan of Oxford, W. S. Kent-Hughes and L. St. C. Ingram, both also of Oxford, are the men who will be guests at Princeton before they come to start their final training in the Harvard stadium.

At the stadium yesterday there was a short but very keen workout for the Harvard and Yale men. Coaches Bingham and Mack, Farrell and Queal, had their athletes primed to make more effort than in any of the earlier drills. The runners were not sent over their distances at a limit of speed, but were required to cut loose a lot faster than heretofore.

COMBAT- TING OF STILLMAN'S CLAIM GUY IS NOT HIS OWN CHILD

Banker's Attorneys Seek to Break Down Testimony of Wife's Witness

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 15.—Attack and defense of the paternity of Guy Stillman were resumed here today in the divorce suit brought by James A. Stillman against Mrs. Anna U. Stillman, nee Phelps Clawson of Buffalo, who testified yesterday that Mr. and Mrs. Stillman lived together on several occasions previous to the birth of the boy, was recalled to the stand.

It was expected that attorneys for the New York banker would seek to break down the effect of some of Clawson's testimony. Clawson was considered as one of the most important witnesses for Mrs. Stillman in the matter of combating Mr. Stillman's accusation that Guy was not his own child, but that of Fred Deauville, Indianapolis guide and servant of the family.

Mrs. Stillman's lawyers summoned several other witnesses today to carry on her counter attack against the banker who she alleged violated his marriage vows in his relations with other women.

Guy Stillman Scores
Guy Stillman, pivot of the Stillman suit, scored yesterday in the testimony when H. Phelps Clawson of Buffalo testified that Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman were living together in apparent amity on at least three different occasions in January, 1918. Clawson's testimony accompanied further identification of Mr. Stillman as the mysterious Franklin H. Leeds, and details of parties on the yacht Modesty. The second co-respondent, "Helen," was mentioned today for the first time, but not by her full name.

Save gasoline by using more air

HOW can you do it? What sort of special engine and carburetor do you have to have?
Here's the answer: ordinary gasoline is sluggish. It vaporizes slowly. It burns mighty little air—requires a rich, wasteful mixture of 1 part gasoline to 8 of air. Not only does it run up your fuel bills, but it brings down the efficiency of your engine.

Don't stand for it! Tydol vaporizes fast. It is made to run on a lean 15 to 1 mixture—to burn more air and less fuel. Fill up with Tydol today.

SOME FOOD VALUES

Mrs. Sandwall of State Dept. Gives Valuable Information

Mrs. Alzira W. Sandwall, health instructor in foods for the state department of public health, in a recent address said that tomato juice is as good as orange juice for babies. Good cheer is essential to good digestion, Mrs. Sandwall pointed out. The stomach is highly sensitized and a worried or cross condition seriously affects the digestion. Therefore, a family should be careful at table to avoid controversy, said the lecturer, and mothers should avoid making the table a place for bringing up reprimands to the children. Conversation should not turn to the worrisome news of the day.

Values of Foods
Mrs. Sandwall told about the different values of foods. Milk, of course, and eggs were said to be perfect foods. She continued:

"People must keep in mind that what they eat is what makes and keeps their bodies. There are four groups of foods: For building, energy giving, regulating the body processes and foods which promote growth and maintain health."

Milk comes first in every group. Adults should not consider milk a baby food; it is just as much a food for them. Every person should have at least two glasses of milk a day. That does not mean in glasses, for they may take the milk in puddings, junkets or on cereals. We could get along very well without meat, but we could not get along without milk. Milk should be the first on the order for the table and the last to go off.

"Milk will build a body three times as fast as any other food. Meat is a building food. It is too highly flavored for children, however. They get used to the high flavor and it spoils their taste for other foods they should have."

Baby Health week is being observed by the Jordan Marsh company, which, beside an exhibit of dainty and sanitary nursery accessories, is providing competent speakers on health subjects. Every afternoon at 3 o'clock there is

Mrs. Alzira W. Sandwall, health instructor in foods for the state department of public health, spoke about "Food and Its Relation to Health."

She was introduced by A. E. Finney. Yesterday Dr. J. E. Henry, epidemiologist of the state department of public health, was the speaker. Miss Evelyn C. Schmidt, D.H., health instructor of mouth hygiene, will give an address about the care of children's teeth. "What the Public Health Nurse Can Do For the Mother" will be the topic today by Miss Cecelia A. Lemmer, R.N., nursing assistant to the district health officer of the state department of public health. Saturday Dr. Henry I. Bowditch will tell what should be the "Mental Care of the Child."

"Energy food are sugars, starchy foods and oils. It is necessary to keep enough of these foods in the diet so that building foods will not be used for energy. To use building foods for energy is like burning down the walls of a house to heat the inside of the house. In order to keep enough of energy foods in the diet it is a good plan to have cereal for breakfast and bread and butter for every meal, dark bread, preferably. Potatoes should be used at least once a day."

"Sugar should be used sparingly. People ordinarily think of sugar as they get it in cane sugar. The honey would get along best without it at all. All the sugar the body needs is in sweet fruits, sweet vegetables and in milk. And it is well to remember that every bit of starch changes to sugar inside the body."

Use and Abuse of Sugar

In giving general health suggestions to adults Mrs. Sandwall emphasized the need for eating a good breakfast because when a person neglects this he is running his body on itself instead of on a food supply engine.

She advised all to remember that a person does not reach full growth until 25 years old, that although a person may have reached full height the body organs are still growing. HAYS TO RAISE POSTAL CHARGES

Cost of Sending Special Delivery Letter to be Boosted to 25 Cents

Quicker Service to be Given in Both City and Rural Sections

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The cost of sending a special delivery letter is to be raised from a dime to 25 cents. Postmaster General Hays in making the change is going on the theory that when a person sends a special delivery message he wants the message specially delivered, which is a service that cannot be rendered for a dime. As things are now, a messenger gets possibly 100 special delivery letters and starts out with the whole batch, delivering them in the order he can arrange. The result is that in most cases the letters come to their recipients one or several hours after they reach the postoffice. Very often it takes longer for a special delivery letter to get to its ultimate destination than a letter sent by ordinary mail—with the result that there is a justified protest from an indignant citizen, who wishes the word along that the postal service is going to the aid's, and a pang in the heart of the postmaster general, who is making a real effort to have the postoffice service made efficient. With the government getting a quarter of a dollar, it will be possible to send a messenger with each letter. When the pneumatic tubes were re-established in New York, special delivery letters should be in the hands of the people to whom they are addressed within a very few minutes of their receipt at the postoffice. The rural communities are to have a service, also. It is of course, impossible, from a business standpoint, to

Monte Christo, known throughout the world to lovers of romance, staged one of the most amazing escapes in the history of fiction. But a Lowell man has matched in real life the exploits of Dumas' hero, although the two escapes are of dissimilar nature. The foregoing arouses your interest; it smacks of the unusual, with a strong aroma of local interest. Well, read on, especially if you are of the gentler sex.

Suppose you were tall, well-built, in perfect physical trim which enabled you to remain on your feet all day without fatigue, of pleasing personality, naturally attired in a blue uniform, and above all, spending a large portion of your time in the very heart of this city's activity. Wouldn't you be inclined to feel rather a remarkable person if you were still a bachelor? Probably Officer Edward J. Connors, the solo bachelor member of Lowell's traffic force, who guides the destinies of the myriad vehicles and pedestrians who cross Merrimack square, doesn't feel that way about it. In the first place, he is a modest, quiet, albeit good-humored man, who no doubt never gives a moment's thought to his husky, rangy build. It probably never occurred to him that it's a fine figure of a man he is, standing calmly in the midst of the swirl of Merrimack square traffic, keeping things moving without a hitch for hours on end, answering questions, foot and otherwise, exercising a civil service care for the aged, or for children, or for women burdened with a day's shopping, who seek to navigate the madstream of trolleys, autos, and trucks. In fact, when interviewed, he didn't seem to find it particularly remarkable that he has not been snatched away into the land of the benighted. But to the reader the matter must possess a different aspect.

It is to be hoped that the revelation of Officer Connors' bachelorhood isn't the publishing of anything too personal. After all, the ladies have certain rights; and surely not the least of these is the privilege of being apprised of a potential good husband. Man is supposed to be the stronger animal. So let him escape if he can. But all joking aside, Officer Connors has made a host of new and staunch friends during the years that he has directed traffic at the square. Many of these friends, no doubt, are unknown to him. But the little ones on whom he has kept a watchful and guarding eye as they negotiated the busy crossing, the infirm whom he has shielded from possible serious accident, or even death, and the multitude of others whom he has helped by a word of information, given gladly and without grudgingness—all these are his friends. Whether he is aware of the fact or not, the blue-clad figure standing in the very vortex of the rushing street means to them protection and kindness. For observation discloses the fact that these are Officer Connors' dominant characteristics as a public servant. And what a combination! How fortunate is Lowell in that her "traffic cops" are genial men, not sour fellows filled with curdled milk of human kindness!

The writer has been in some cities—so help you—where, alack, to query a traffic cop was the equivalent of teasing a lion. It evoked growls, snorts, even snarls. There are American cities, 'tis sad, but we must admit it is true, beyond contradiction, where both the foot-passer and the autoist is made the butt of the blue-coats who direct traffic. When crossing the street, one is subject to round abuse from these minions of the law. They shout belittlingly at all who dare attempt to pass their crossing. They make personal remarks reflective on one's intelligence if one does not follow their directions minutely. But here's some food for local pride: You are hereby defied to find one traffic cop in Lowell who is not a warm-hearted gentleman whose desire is to assist at all times, not to make life a misery for all who come within his ken.

There are six traffic cops in this city, but Officer Connors has been on the job as a crossing custodian longer than any of his confreres. Joining up with the forces some fourteen years ago, he spent three years as a "super," as the officers term themselves before they go on a regular route. Then he was a beat for three years more. And finally he was assigned to Merrimack square, and there he has remained during the past eight years, the eldest man on the job of all.

Officer Connors is a specialist. Anyone will tell you that. And his specialty is an interesting one. It is to look out for women and children, and the aged. He admits himself that when a little tot is crossing the street, or an elderly person, he is inclined to let the other folks shift for themselves while he devotes his attention to the weak. I guess that we who rejoice in the vigor of youth won't hold that against him. Perhaps he has saved our mothers, our little tots, from being run down. A little good speechily, we'll say.

that for an efficiency record! Indeed, a traffic cop needs to be efficient. The mistakes most of us make in our business involves only a pecuniary loss. But the job of the traffic officer means life and limb! It means something when he can show a practically 100 per cent record. Yet it is learned on the best authority that Officer Connors has registered to all intents perfect. The other day while the writer was chatting with Officer Connors, a woman approached and asked the time of a trolley. She got her answer without hesitation. "Ye gods," exclaimed the writer, "aren't you too busy to memorize the street railroad time table, and hand out information that the route should furnish? I should think questions like that would capture your coat."

"Well, the starters are pretty busy, too," he answered simply. That's the spirit!

POLICE HOLD BOY FOR SAFE KEEPING

The police are still holding 15-year-old hedge bourgeois, taken into custody late yesterday afternoon after attempting to leap from a second-story window at the Aiken street house where he resides. Officer Connors brought him to headquarters, and this morning he was examined for his sanity by Dr. Michael A. Tighe, city physician. It is understood that further tests of the boy's mentality will be made before his case is finally disposed of. While locked up at the police station last night, he is said to have attempted hanging by means of his belt. According to information gleaned today, the youngster was kidnapped some years ago from his parents. After the capture in Canada of the man responsible for the act, it was discovered that the boy's parents could not be located. It is stated that he was thereupon adopted by Lowell people.

Real Stuff Not All Gone Yet

quart, so that the total larceny charged against the defendant is in the sum of $230. But it may be that Mr. Hall, owner of the liquor, who is understood to be in New York, is not satisfied with the verdict. He is now in the city, and will ask for a reevaluation when the case comes up for trial, as it is stated that the police valuation of $10 a quart is less than the prevailing price here for hooch, or near-beer.

Clark was first apprehended on the evidence of a girl and a lodging-house keeper. The girl, who was today sentenced to the Lancaster school in the juvenile police court session, told the police that the defendant was in her room at a local establishment, and the proprietor of the place admitted the truth of this, adding, however, that they engaged two rooms, registering as brother and sister. A warrant was sworn out on this testimony, and Clark was locked up. Later he was accompanied by Lieutenant Mather to locations in the Aiken street district, where eight quarts of the stolen liquor were recovered. Later more was discovered by the police, some of it said to date back to the year 1920.

On the charge of improper conduct, Clark was released on bail of $1000. Because of the high bond, he was allowed to go this morning by Judge Enright, with a surety of $100, personal recognizance on the charge of breaking and entering. The first charge that of improper conduct, was complicated by the fact that the defendant is said to be a married man. Lieutenant David E. Pettie was recognized for appearance as a government witness, and Clark was taken on the first charge made against him. Prior to that time, Officer Joseph Lamoureux had made an investigation of the theft of the liquor. Lieutenant Pettie's investigations of the latter charge had not proceeded sufficiently far prior to Clark's arrest to warrant the issuance of a complaint on the breaking and entering charge, but he uncovered sufficient evidence, through the statements of the girl and the man who kept the lodging-house, to bring about the de-

Clark has engaged counsel, and will plead not guilty to both charges lodged against him, although it is stated at police headquarters that he has made admissions relative to his connection with the missing liquor.

There is no question as to the fact that he accompanied Lieutenant Mather at the time that the first eight quarts of assorted liquors were brought to headquarters, and placed under lock and key. The theft is charged as of date of July 10, while it is alleged in the complaint that the improper conduct was committed four days previous.

WILL NOT TAKE SALARIES

Officers of United Mine Workers to Turn Pay Back Into Treasury

INDIANAPOLIS, July 15.—No salaries will be accepted by more than 100 officers of the United Mine Workers of America for their work this month "because of the widespread unemployment among coal miners," said today's issue of the Mine Workers' Journal, official publication of the international union.

All officials, including the head officers, members of the international executive board, organizers and field workers, according to the announcement, "have volunteered to contribute their entire salaries for July to the organization in order that they may share the burden of hardships with the membership of the union."

The exact amount thus contributed was not announced, it being said that some of the officials work part time on a per diem basis. The total, however, was expected to come to several thousand dollars. John L. Lewis, as president of the union, receives $666 66 a month, and Philip Murray, vice president, and William Green, secretary, each receive $553.33.

The salaries, it was explained at the union's headquarters, will remain in the general fund of the organization, which it was said, has received many calls for relief, but maintains only one fund for all expenditures of the union.

"It has long been the cry of some people," said the Mine Workers' Journal today, "that regardless of whether the membership worked or not the salaries of the officers went on as usual. Such talk is indulged in solely for the purpose of creating distrust of the officers in the minds of the membership. Their voluntary action, however, in contributing their entire salary for July should go far to dispel such impressions and prove that the officials feel a deep, sincere interest in the well being of the rank and file of the membership."

Union headquarters estimated that not less than 150,000 union miners in the country are out of work and that many thousands more work one to three days a week. Hundreds of mines throughout the country, are closed and others are working short time because of the slack demand for coal, it was said.

PAY WAHABI TO KEEP THE PEACE

LONDON, July 15.—A novel working arrangement on the "no peace, no pay" principle has been entered into by the British government with the Wahabi, a powerful Arabian desert tribe. The Wahabi are nomads and belong to a sect which Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill described in the house of commons as "bearing the same relation to orthodox Islam as the most militant forms of Calvinism would have borne to Rome in the fiercest times of the religious wars."

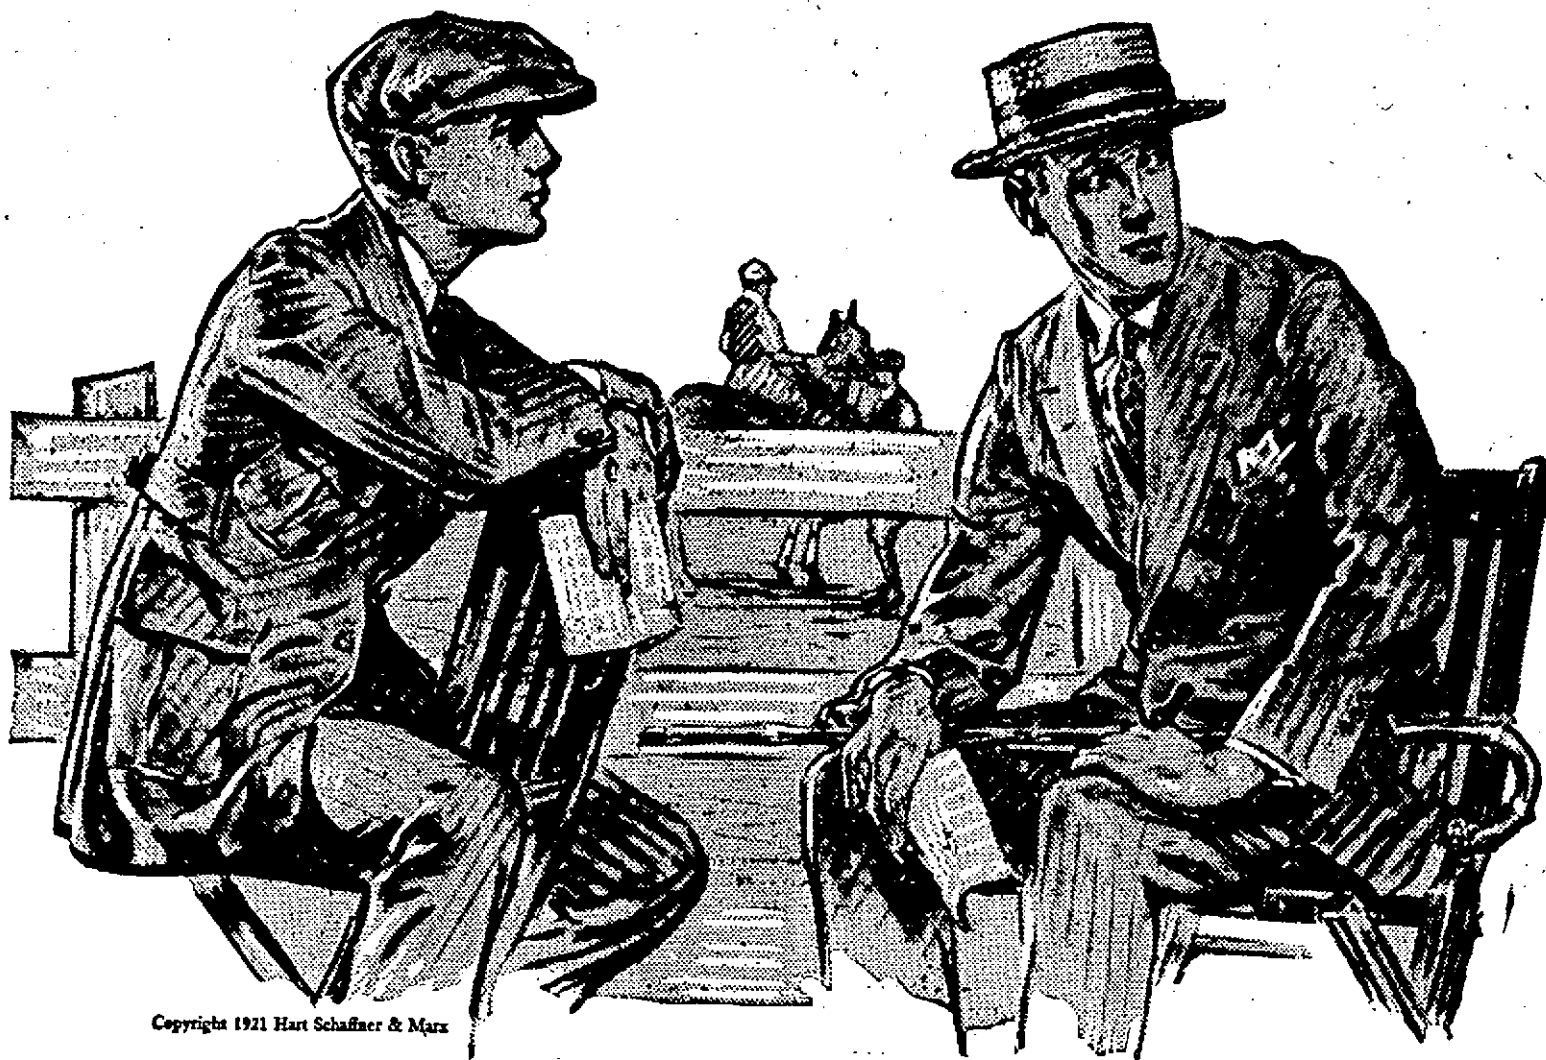

They are, he said, austere, intolerant, well armed and bloodthirsty and they regard it as an article of duty as well as of faith to kill all who do not share their opinions. Moreover, they are very dangerous to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina, and the whole institution of the pilgrimage.

The finances of the Sherif of Mecca, who enjoys British protection, have suffered grievously by the interruption of the pilgrimages. Therefore, to assist him and King Hussein of the Hedjaz, who has been in constant warfare with the "Arabian Calvinists," the latter are to receive £60,000 cash annually, so long as they refrain from annoying their neighbors and do not interfere with the candidacy of Hussein's son, the Emir Faisal, for the rulership of the new Mesopotamian state.

Colonel Lawrence of the colonial office who has lived among the Wahabi for years, told an interviewer that they were indeed a most violent people. They are, he said, fanatically Mohammedan and would kill their men and women, for smoking even a cigarette. The way they correct their women is to tie them up in bags and beat them unmercifully with palm canes.

Each man has three wives. Should any of them go out of doors, the code allows him to have her put to death.

It is a well known fact that beauty cannot be if the complexion is in any way marred by pimples, dark, yellow, discolorations.

If you suffer any of these skin blemishes begin at once the use of Black and White Beauty Bleach. LOWELL GIRL IS HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Miss Josephine Borowski, 23, of Lowell, charged with the murder of her infant son, appeared before Judge Duff in the municipal court at Boston yesterday. At the request of her attorney, Michael J. Horan, the case was continued for a week. Miss Borowski was held without bail pending the trial. She was sent to the Charles Street Jail, where she was placed in the care of the jail physician on account of her condition.

Mrs. Josephine Sawlsky, 21, of 23 Causeway street, Boston, charged with being an accessory both before and after the fact of the crime, was placed in $5000 bail and her case continued for a week. She is represented by Philip M. Torf. Walter Z. Kowalski, a Polish and Russian interpreter, presented the facts of the case. Both women were questioned by Chief Inspector McGarr and Supt. Crowley at the bureau of criminal investigation yesterday.

The infant was found in the shrubbery near the Charles River Esplanade last Monday evening by a policeman. The mother stated that the child was born in Lowell.

C. W. PRICE IN LOWELL

On Wednesday evening, July 27th, at the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Charles W. Price of Chicago, Ill. will address the Lowell Society of Industrial Science on "Organizing a Community for Public Safety." Mr. Price is the general manager of the National Safety Council and is probably the best known public safety man in the country. He is the active head of a national organization that has behind it 4000 of the greatest corporations in America, operating a total of 8000 plants where industrial accidents have been reduced through organized effort. Mr. Price is a quick, energetic speaker, unique in his presentation of human facts and factors. Co-operating with the Lowell Society of Industrial Science in its effort to make Lowell a "Safe City" is the newly organized Lowell Safety Council. Admission to the talk will be by ticket only. Tickets may be secured free of charge from the president of the society, D. S. Walton, phone 5550 or from H. E. Heckman, industrial secretary at the local Y.M.C.A. Every person in any way interested in or connected with safety should attend this lecture.

THOUGHTFUL CHILD

Even the very little child should be taught by his mother to be careful of his clothing, careful in putting it away at night and in saving it from tears and unnecessary soiling.

Little folk should be taught to hang up their own clothing when it is removed at night and to hang up the towels and wash cloths after using them.

(By Newspaper Enterprise)
NEW YORK, July 15.—Five babies stolen here in less than a week has shattered all records for kidnapping epidemics.

Aid of all eastern police departments has been asked and a search is being made by wireless of all ships at sea in an attempt to restore the missing children. Those kidnapped:

Jack Woodland, 3 years old.
Margaret Woodland, 2 years old.
Margaret Torrens, 9 months old.
Charlotte Mayo, 2 years old.
Elizabeth Kieffer, 2 years old.
The two Woodland children were taken from the Woodland home at Cape May, N. J., by a man and woman who had been registered for several days at a Cape May hotel, and who

Mrs. Lambert Says She Believes She Owes Her Life to Tanlac

"I thank my lucky stars that I got Tanlac, for it has proved nothing less than a blessing to me," said Mrs. William P. Lambert, 48 Wilbraham Road, Springfield, Mass.

"For the last three years before I got Tanlac I was a very sick woman, and there was not a single day when I felt well. My stomach and kidneys were very badly disordered, and for a whole year I was almost helpless. For weeks at a time I had to stay in bed, nothing did me any good and I just kept getting worse instead of better. It made no difference what I ate, I had indigestion and was in perfect misery for hours after each meal. I suffered from constipation, also, and had headaches that nearly drove me mad.

"One day I happened to read a testimonial that described my case as well as that I decided to try Tanlac, for I actually believe the medicine has saved my life. I can eat almost anything now, and my food tastes good and agrees with me. My weight has increased ten pounds, and I am doing all my household work with perfect ease, and haven't an ache or pain of any kind. It will always be a pleasure to me to praise Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative, Mr. Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; A. D. Falls, Chelmsford, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggists in every town.—Adv.

had been attempting to ingratiate themselves with Jack and Margaret. The last seen of them was at Lewes, Del., across the bay from Cape May. A private yacht had been chartered by them to make the trip.

Mrs. Robert E. Woodland, the mother, believes the children have been taken aboard a boat bound for South America.

Mrs. Margaret Torrens has collapsed, following the kidnapping of her nine-month-old daughter, Margaret, from the summer home of her father at Pompton Lakes, N. J.

A woman, who asked police not to disclose her name, said she had seen a woman, very nervous, and a baby answering the description of the Torrens child, aboard a United Fruit Co. boat bound for Cuba just before it sailed. Cuban officials have been asked to look for the woman.

The baby daughter of Paul Kieffer, a New York lawyer, was stolen from its crib at the home of his sister in Rutherford, N. J., after midnight. Kieffer traced the child to an apartment in Brooklyn, which was raided with the aid of police. They entered the door just in time to see the baby and its custodians vanish down the outside fire escape into the night. The child has not been seen since.

Mrs. Roy Alfred Mayo, wife of a New York broker who took her 2-year-old daughter away from her husband and out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts, has returned with her attorneys to meet her husband's lawyers. The child has been left in another state until such time as the parental differences can be settled.

Parents in all of the cases are separated.

NINTH REVIEWED BY GOV. COX AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, July 15.—Gov. Chandler Cox and his official staff reviewed the 9th Massachusetts Infantry, commanded by Col. Thomas F. Foley, of Worcester, and the Division Signal Company, commanded by Capt. William C. G. Simkins of Malden, on the main parade ground yesterday afternoon.

Brig. Gen. Mark L. Hersey, commandant of Camp Devens, and members of the headquarters staff were in the reviewing line with Gov. Cox.

Gov. Cox and staff expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the showing made by the troops.

The commander-in-chief of the Massachusetts troops and his staff remained for dinner at 6 o'clock in the mess hall of Co. H, of Newton, which is commanded by Capt. John A. McClellan, and enjoyed a band concert afterwards by the regimental band under the direction of "Jimmie" Coughlin. They also attended an informal reception at Col. Foley's headquarters.

The governor and his staff arrived here about 3:30 o'clock and in the mess hall at the main gate by Capt. Francis X. Phelan, who escorted them to the regimental area on 3d avenue. At 10th street the party was met by Co. E of Cambridge, commanded by Capt. Francis J. Good.

Headed by the regimental band the party was shown to Col. Foley's headquarters, after which a trip was made through the company streets, where the units were drawn up at attention.

The regimental parade to the colors started at 4 o'clock, before Col. Foley and his staff, after which the officers headed the line of march as the 9th Infantry and Division Signal Company, commanded by the governor and Gen. Hersey and their official staffs.

For the parade to the colors preceding the review, K. Company of Malden, commanded by Capt. C. David Berg, acted as escort.

In the governor's party were Gen. John A. Sullivan, Lieut. Col. George W. Langdon, aid; William E. Emery, Porters B. Chase and Capt. Robert E. Holmes and Philip L. Brown. It was stated that Adj. Gen. Jesse F. Stevens was unable to attend the ceremonies due to illness.

After the review Gov. Cox visited the 9th Infantry headquarters, where 2d Lieut. Sarkis Zartarian, signal officer, sent a message of congratulations for the governor by radio across camp to Capt. Simkins at the Signal company, to which Capt. Simkins flashed back his thanks.

The Division Signal company completed its instruction in gas work by a trip through the gas chamber in the old base hospital area, where the officers and men were all given a whiff of the new gas, chloroacetophenone, being among the first Massachusetts troops to be made acquainted with the new tear gas. Part of the 9th Infantry was also put through the gas chamber.

The 13th United States Infantry, which has completed its record season on the new rifle range in Still river, about 5 miles outside the camp proper, returned to its regimental area.

WHY SLANDER SMALL TOWNS?

Sinclair Lewis, Floyd Dell, Zona Gale and Mrs. Wharton are becoming rich and famous by holding up the old home town and its characters to the ridicule of metropolitan readers and the sympathy of smaller communities.

Booth Tarkington's "The Conquest of Canaan," forerunner of the above authors' works, is a satire in similar vein.

These authors picture the inhabitants of the smaller places with narrow perspectives and false valuations of life's properties.

No one has a narrower viewpoint than the person who lives in the canyon of New York's Broadway, who believes the sun rises in the East river and sets in the Hudson river.

A picture that will satirize the social climbers, the financial bluffers and the posers of metropolitan communities will be truer to life than the films that malign the small towns whence came many of the nation's greatest men and women.

"If St. Swithin's day be fair, For forty days, 'twill rain no mair."

Thus the venerable legend, which refers to today, July 15, and which has persisted despite the records of one observatory at least that it has never yet proved correct. Those of us who cling to certain respected superstitions were thrown into a small panic during the morning hours of today, because ere the day was far advanced a light sprinkle of rain fell. For besides a promise of smiling skies if it doesn't rain today, there is a threat in the old rhyme to the effect that if it does rain the deluge will continue during the next 40 days.

In New York city the rain pelted, and the superstitious residents were careful to take their raincoats on their vacations. According to the old story St. Swithin ordered that his remains never be disinterred, and that when an attempt was made to do so, rain fell in torrents for 40 days.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Roger W. Babson is recognized as an authority on statistics relative to economics, finance and other matters bearing upon the business situation. In a recent issue of Forbes Magazine, he gives a number of reasons why the American people should be optimistic in reference to the business situation. First of all, he says the great mass of the people have their liberty bonds and will not cease buying merchandise while they hold these securities. Next he points out the saving due to the prohibition law. Previous to July, 1915, the people of the nation spent $3,000,000,000 a year on alcoholic liquors. It is true that many still indulge, but it cannot be gainsaid that there is a great balance on the credit side in favor of the new order of things and this not only in money, but in time saved and homes protected.

The Federal Reserve board very properly is pointed to as one of the safety valves of the business situation. It has saved the nation from a real money panic and will continue to do so, despite the criticism leveled at it from some quarters.

Advertising is recommended by Mr. Babson as a great factor for promoting and stabilizing business. The old form of advertising which was regarded as a luxury has been superseded by one that is productive of results.

Our foreign trade has declined during the past five years, but if we lost all our export trade, it would amount to only 5 per cent of the total.

Seasonable fluctuations in business are being offset by business concerns taking on different lines of work. This helps to tide over any local depression for which there is no immediate remedy.

Standardization in manufactures, such as shown by the Ford factory, promised reduction in the burdensome taxation system. Education for executives and employees to promote efficiency are other reasons for optimism, according to Mr. Babson, that will materially help the situation.

That our nation is the wealthiest in the world and has cleared off almost all of its indebtedness, is another ground for assurance that things are going to work out all right in the near future.

If we went through the great war without any great panic, surely we can handle the domestic problems that now call for solution.

Mr. Hoover, who is not a visionary, is confident that the business situation will soon return to normalcy.

An additional reason for encouragement is found in the decision of congress to work night and day until it disposes of the tariff which holds many lines of business in a state of suspense while it is pending.

The government must remove the domestic burdens that weigh heavily upon business and commerce. This will be done, but it will take some time to bring about the general readjustment. In the meantime, it would be unwise to assume that things are going to smash; on the contrary it is best for all concerned to realize that, as Mr. Hoover stated, the corner has been turned, in the industrial depression; but to prevent delay in the recovery from hard times we must practice economy, co-operate with the manufacturers who are trying to carry on, take steps to promote our foreign trade and offer an outlet for our manufactures that will result in a greater volume of business and call all hands back to work.

LEADERSHIP AND GOVERNMENT

One of the strangest things in nature—something that determines whether you are to be a success or a failure—is reported by a man just back from a fishing trip in Canada.

He saw a school of thousands of baby salmon trout, about half as long as pins, swimming in military formation, following a leader.

That leader looked just like the rest, says the fisherman. What made him take charge of all the others? And what made the others follow him as naturally as the rear wheels of a fitly follow the front wheels?

If you can fathom that problem you have the secret of success—and the whole science of government.

The fisherman took a minnow net and caught the tiny trout leader. Immediately another baby trout took the leader's place and the school swam on without an instant's pause.

Is that just instinct? Human beings do the same.

In Chicago 100 unemployed negroes thought they'd found a way to escape rent. Along the tracks of the Illinois Central railroad, they built a dugout, like those back of the lines in France during the war.

The railroad is evicting them.

The important news in the incident is, that those 100 men had found it impossible to live together without establishing a well organized government. They had their own city council, a mayor, a judge, a police force and a quartermaster's department.

You can't get away from this thing called government.

If you were shipwrecked on a South Sea island with two friends, it wouldn't be 10 minutes until one of you three would become ruler supreme and forward as leader, begin to give orders and take the initiative in hunting food, building shelter and selecting a location for a beacon-fire to attract passing ships.

Wild geese fly in wedge formation, with a leader at the head. Shoot that leader and the formation will close up without stopping, a new leader taking the former's place.

Shoot the leader of wild ducks, and the flock is confused. They head for the nearest marsh and, after much quacking, soar up again with a new leader. Do they elect him? Indians say, yes.

Even the timber wolves, hermits by nature, run in packs during winter, as a combination for war, for acquiring food.

In parts of China, men live without religion.

In ancient Sparta, they lived without the family institution.

THE IRISH CONFERENCE

Nobody who knows President De Valera has any idea that he will go into conference with the British premier to strangle the Irish republic. He will find what Britain is willing to offer Ireland as a substitute for the republic. He will endeavor to secure the greatest concessions possible and then he will report to the Dail Eireann. If dominion home rule be offered, the proposition will be submitted to a plebiscite of the people of Ireland. It is true the Ulster minority will protest; but dominion rule means majority rule. The great trouble in the Irish situation is, that the British government coddles a rebellious minority and backs it against the majority. While that condition prevails there can be no real peace or harmony in Ireland. Will the people accept dominion home rule? Yes, if it be given outright with the full understanding that there will be no nonsense from Ulster which has been allowed to arm for rebellion without interference. There is no ground whatever for the claim that the Ulster minority would be unfairly treated. The unfairness and injustice lies on the side of Ulster and this must be overcome. In any settlement that will be offered in order that there may be a united Ireland. Unless this idea of national unity be maintained there will be no settlement and the Sinn Fein will resume hostilities.

Very few people outside Ireland can realize how completely the British regime has been overthrown throughout the country except in northeast Ulster, where the Unionists have been able to maintain it because they are in the majority and are all well armed. When the government, searched for arms, they visited only the homes of Sinn Fein sympathizers. The Unionists were allowed to retain their arms and many of them were enlisted in the auxiliary forces which served in the other provinces and were usually identified with the Black and Tans.

It is true that England could deluge the country in blood and could destroy most of the seaport cities in a few days; but at the same time it would require a million men two years to restore British rule in Ireland, so completely has it been overthrown and discredited by the campaign of the Sinn Fein.

It is indeed a real cause of rejoicing to find that the end of the conflict appears to be in sight and that through the aid of General Smuts and a few other well disposed men, a permanent settlement of the whole question is likely to be reached, to the great benefit not only of Ireland, but of England, and the removal of one of the greatest obstacles to world peace.

SAFEGUARD THE BATHERS

Without attempting to fix the responsibility—if there is responsibility—for the latest accidental death by drowning at the municipal bathhouse, it is clear that such happenings cannot continue without the value of an investment that has been made by the city for the recreation and enjoyment of the people being seriously curtailed. The news of such happenings spreading through the city cannot fail to awaken apprehension that the place is not a wholly safe one for children, or persons inexperienced in the art of swimming, to resort to.

The fact that whole seasons pass at Nantasket and Revere beaches, where more people bathe in a day than in a year at the Pawtucketville beach, without the loss of a single life, makes it impossible not to believe that there is something lacking in the means afforded for protecting life at the municipal bathhouse. Yet so far as appears there isn't. But the life guards must exercise the utmost vigilance every minute while bathers are in the water. The matter is one that the conscientious and public-spirited members of the board of park commissioners cannot devote their attention to too speedily.

JACK MUNSON'S DEATH

While the government has tried to do everything possible for the disabled soldiers, it seems that through somebody's neglect or else through lack of proper system, occasionally service men die in destitute condition.

Jack Munson, who won the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States army and the Croix De Guerre of France, died friendless and alone in a New York hospital, a victim of tuberculosis. Munson is credited with the feat of penetrating the German lines and re-establishing communication between headquarters and the lost battalion in the Argonne.

The fate of Jack Munson touches the heart of every American and it is hoped that the American Legion will look after service men whether they are members or not, in order that none of them may suffer from neglect nor be subjected to such humiliation as came to Jack Munson. It may have been impossible to save his life, but the ward of a New York hospital is about the last place to which such a patient should be consigned, except when in the final stages of the disease. It seems some committees should have taken hold of him before the disease reached an advanced stage and had him placed under government care. The government is putting out money and plenty of it on men far less deserving than Jack Munson and nothing but an oversight can explain why he came to this unhappy end without a friend to comfort him in his last hours.

It is reported that Lloyd George may come to the United States. By George, what may happen to England while he is away?

If sun spots cause the hot weather it would appear that Old Sol's physiognomy must be very freckly about this time.

Since the Gas company is to cut its prices it might begin with the city contract with a good big cut.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

Face the Music

Down with the prophets of despair
who preach a gospel bleak and
blighting!
What though the strife's not always
fair,
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting.

I'm sick of speeches and of writing
By snivellers who fear to bear
Their meed of woe, their load of care—
Down with the prophets of despair
Who preach a gospel bleak and blighting!

Whiners and whimperers, who wear
A gloom there seems no way of lighting,
They only wait, and tear their hair!

And preach a gospel bleak and
blighting,
Down with the prophets of despair—
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting.

Out on the quitters who declare
They have no further strength for The fools who say, "What chance is
there?
Life is a rotten cheat, a snare!"

To those who preach that gospel
blighting,
I shout, as loud as trumpets blare,
"Down with the prophets of despair!
The brave man fights, and keeps on
fighting!"

SEEN AND HEARD.

The funniest thing in the world is a man trying to kid himself.

You never miss the water till the well runs dry, and you never miss the hot water till it's shut off.

The heat was too much for this fellow. He was sleeping on the North common, near Fletcher street. "Here all night, I suppose," said the officer after waking him. "Yes, but I didn't sleep much, that car kept going back and forth, and—" The officer looked suspicious and said: "Come with me. There's a place for people who can see and hear the Fletcher street car, for there's no such animal."

Breaking It Gently

Young Husband (throwing down the paper in disgust)—All this confounded tomfoolery about women's extravagance makes me tired. Pity they can't find something else to print. We have been married two months and you haven't even asked me for a penny. Young Wife—Of course not. What my husband is doing is nothing but for every little article I want when it's so much easier to have the things charged to our account?—Stray Stories.

Didn't Scold a Bit

Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said: "Yesterday my dolly got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody." "That was fine," approved grandmother, very much pleased. "And who stepped on your dolly yesterday?" she asked. And back came the enlightening answer: "Why, I did, grandma."

Wonderful Fire Chief

It was a sleepy village and its fire brigade was anything but up-to-date. One night a fire was announced by the violent ringing of the alarm bell, and the sleepy brigade arrived at the scene of action to find the burning building a mass of smoke. No flames were visible from the outside. The captain made a careful survey. Then he lit his pipe and started to smoke. "We'd better leave it alone now," he said. "It's burning up a bit, but then we'll be able to see what we are doing."

Appreciation!

Einstein, who discovered relativity, and has not been able to get anyone else to understand it, is home in Europe after visiting America. He could hardly wait until he got off his boat to tell the world in what contempt he held Americans and almost everything American. Says there is little if any real intellectual life in this benighted country, nothing to compare with the intellectual life of Europe. In proof of this he offers what appears to him to be the astounding fact that most of our great writers grasp the tremendous significance of relativity. We seemed to be more interested in the movies, concerts and prize fights. He met one or two professors who showed gleams of human intelligence, but what is one or two out of a hundred and ten million? All of this is pretty rough on us after we laid ourselves out to give the relativity man a good time.

Taking No Chances

One day Lord Northcliffe ascended from his own rooms on the main floor to the offices of one of his principal papers, bringing in his hand a clipping from an evening paper which set forth how in a country village a motor car had knocked down and killed a child and had sped on its way regardless. The car could not be traced. He gave instructions that every measure of publicity should be engaged in finding the identity of the car. The story was written up in dramatic form. An offer of $500 was made for anyone who could give facts as to the ownership of the car, and the best investigating journalist on the staff was sent down to the country to probe matters. The almost malicious glee of the other papers in Fleet street may be imagined when it was found out through the instrumentality of Lord Northcliffe's papers that the car in question belonged to his brother, Hildebrand Harmsworth, having been taken out unknown to its owner by the chauffeur. Of course there was no more prominence in the Northcliffe papers about the matter, although rival journalists did not forget to emphasize the story, including the offer of the reward. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that Hildebrand Harmsworth, a very kindly man, was deeply shocked at the discovery and did all that a generous expenditure of money could do to meet the loss of the beloved parents. It was two weeks later that a murder mystery engaged the principal attention of the London papers. A murdered girl had been hung out of a train in a tunnel a few miles from London. The murderer could not be discovered. There was a consultation of department chiefs in Lord Northcliffe's office on the matter. Among other suggestions put forward was that a reward of $500 be offered for evidence. "Five hundred dollars reward," said Lord Northcliffe thoughtfully. "But where was my brother Hildebrand, that night?"—Outlook.

Mary's Serenade

Johnny and Lige and Harrison Tate Came wandering in through th' barn-yard gate,
And they started a-singin'—more's th' pity—
A sentimental-like sort o' ditty.
Th' moon was late and the chores half-done—
Worst kind of a time to be stopped for fun—
I up and tells 'em they'd best light out,
But they grins right back: "Cheer up, Old Scout!
Th' moon's jest up and th' tree-frog is startin' to set th' world on fire!"

I stretches up from th' milkin' stool, A-cussin' myself for a slip-shod fool,
And, squintin' around through th' barn-nin' haze,
Yonder's th' supper-light all ablaze.
"Now, boys," says I, "we might try one,
But then, by golly, I sure am done—
Fer Mary'll stand fer jest so much O' this here loatin' and singin', and such!"

"All right," says they, and we all tune
While Lige beats time with th' milkin' cup.

It ain't quite ten, when we all come to a halt,
And me with th' milkin' yet to do—
I gazes towards up th' kitchen door A-knowin' that Mary's in there, sore,
And then, by jing, as we all stand up,
Th' fool'n' mean as a lazy pup—
We hears a snuffle across th' gate,
And there stands Mary, as close as Fate—

Well—she hugs my arm, as I ambles near,
And begs: "Sing another one, Jimmy, dear!"
So Johnny and 'Lige and Harrison Tate
Grinned as they left through th' barn-yard gate!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Many Lowell women who are members of the National Women's party, an organization which formerly worked for the cause of woman suffrage, but which is now laboring for the general advancement of women, will be interested to know that their organization has a new home in Washington, D. C., directly opposite the national capitol. The purchase of one of the three houses which the organization is buying for its permanent headquarters was made possible by a gift of $51,500 by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of Long Island, N. Y. The announcement is of especial interest to Lowell women who have had occasion to go to Washington and have found it difficult to gain audience with national officials. An effort will be made to fit up the recently acquired home as quickly as possible as a club house for the women of the nation, a bureau where they can secure information, a hostess house where distinguished foreign women, visiting the United States, may be suitably entertained and a centre which will reflect the thought and activity of women all over the country. Many women who go to Washington on business with congress or the various departments of government lose valuable time through not knowing how to go about it, nor how to reach officials. Lowell women who have gone there will readily agree with this. In the "Watch Tower," as a portion of the new headquarters is to be called, they will find experts to help them in this and many other ways. A legislative reference bureau will assist those who wish to submit legislation to congress. Investigators and students in search of material will be guided in their research work and advice will be given on government pamphlets, documents, etc.

FLYING TOO SLOW FOR THIS BIRD

Mrs. Shirley Harris and Dickie

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—They tried to take "Dickie," a prize roller canary, automobile riding in his cage. "Dickie" objected and insisted on riding on the steering wheel. For months now he has ridden to town each morning perched on the wheel in front of his owner, Mrs. Shirley Harris. He is soon to be graduated into aviation and will be taken on a trip through cloudland perched on the wing of an airplane—if it goes fast enough.

WILL NOT HOLD TRIPLE FUNERAL

Plans had been made for a triple military funeral next Sunday for Privates Marr, Moskos and Michalopoulos, whose bodies were expected in this city this week but, owing to the fact that only one of the bodies, that of Private Marr has arrived, all plans for the triple funeral have been dropped, and the battalion of the Ninth Regiment and the 101st Engineers band of Camp Devens, which were to take part in the funeral, have been informed of the change in the program. The funeral of Private Marr will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Undertakers C. H. Molloy Sons and the body will be escorted to the cemetery by a large delegation from the American Legion.

FOLKS WHO ARE THIN

SCRAWNY, ANGULAR, HOLLOW-NECKED AND CHEEKED, SHOULD BUILD FIRM, STAY-THERE FLESH

You Are Too Thin In Your Face, Others In Chest, Shoulders or Neck, While Others Are Angular All Over

It matters little whether you have a thin face, sunken neck or chest, or a thin, weak, angular body; it proves you lack that important flesh and tissue-building nourishment called VITAMINS, which scientists say modern cookery totally destroys in our foods. You should eat more vitamins-containing vegetables, such as lettuce, spinach and apples and reinforce them by taking from time to time with your MEDIC-YEST, which is rich in vitamins like the vitamins in your blood and the vitamins in hulls of grain and skins of apples. MEDIC-YEST represents flesh building vitamins in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equal (in vitamin content) to eating one head of lettuce, one-half quart of spinach, one quart green vegetable or six apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what MEDIC-YEST can do for you: First, weigh and measure yourself and again each week, then feed your shrunken tissues and devitalized nerves VITAMINS in the form of MEDIC-YEST with your meals until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and strength. The scales, tape measure and mirror won't deceive you. MEDIC-YEST is fully guaranteed by the manufacturers or your money refunded, but should not be used by anyone who objects to having their weight increased to normal. Fred Howard and A. W. Downs carry MEDIC-YEST or other good druggist can supply you. For many reasons no other yeast can replace MEDIC-YEST—ADV.

WED WITH GUARDS NEAR

Romance Ends in Marriage of Bolshevik Prisoner With a Princess

WARSAW, June 25.—News of the marriage in Moscow of Count Szechenyi, a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalry, who is still being held a prisoner by the Bolsheviks, to Princess Golytyn, a member of one of the oldest Russian families, has just been received here. Count Szechenyi is a cousin of Count László Szechenyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt of New York.

At the beginning of the war he was a lieutenant in the Hungarian cavalry and was taken prisoner by the Russians on the Galician front in 1915. He is about 27 years old.

Details of the wedding were brought to Warsaw by Dr. Sigmund Janczura, formerly a dentist in Detroit, Mich., who served in the Polish army, was captured by the Bolsheviks and released from the Moscow prison early in June.

Count Szechenyi was a prison companion of Col. Merlon C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., of the Kosciuszko air squadron who escaped from Russia this spring.

The romance having had its inception prior to the world war while the young woman was visiting in Constantinople near where Count Szechenyi's father has a palace and a vast estate. Princess Golytyn returned to Russia several years ago, upon learning that Count Szechenyi was a prisoner and since has been endeavoring to aid in gaining his freedom and sending him food whenever possible.

It is no easy matter to arrange a marriage by a prisoner in a Bolshevik prison camp. Month after month the Soviet authorities refused to give their consent. When it was obtained the ceremony was first performed by a Soviet commissar and afterward a religious marriage was performed in a Greek orthodox church in Moscow. Although the count had many friends among the prisoners none was allowed to attend the wedding.

Instead of a friend as best man, there was a Bolshevik soldier guard. The count, with four armed soldiers at his sides, marched through the walled prison gate to the commissar's office where he met his bride attended by several girl friends. The count wore the same prison garb which he had worn for months.

Immediately after the church service the count was marched back to prison, his bride accompanying him to the prison gates. The next morning the bride was permitted to visit her husband and with the count's prison friends, sat down to a wedding breakfast—a wedding breakfast of black bread and imitation coffee and hot water.

Twenty Hungarian officers, including Count Szechenyi, are being held by the Bolsheviks as hostages to secure the safety of ten Soviet commissars imprisoned by the Hungarian authorities. The Hungarians were sent to Siberia in 1915 and were on their way out when re-arrested by the Bolsheviks.

The original of the blue ribbon, for prize winners was the badge of the Knights of the Star.

By SISTER MARY
Unless a salad dressing is perfectly smooth it is not as good as it might be. Many cooked dressings that would otherwise be delicious are lumpy. Constant stirring while cooking and the proper order of combining the ingredients will produce as smooth a cooked dressing as the real mayonnaise.

These dressings will keep a week in a cold place.

Cooked Dressing First Way

One teaspoon mustard, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup hot vinegar, 1 cup sweet or sour cream, 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon pepper. Cream butter and dry seasoning. Add eggs well beaten and cream. Cook over hot water. When the mixture begins to thicken add the vinegar a little at a time, stirring constantly. When the consistency of thick cream remove from fire and pour into a cold dish to stop cooking. The amount of mustard may be increased up to 1 tablespoonful as the family taste prefers.

Second Method

One-fourth cup butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons vinegar, 4 tablespoons water, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 egg yolks, ½ cup whipping cream.

Melt butter and add flour, mustard, sugar, salt and pepper and stir until perfectly smooth. Add vinegar and water and cook over a slow fire, stirring constantly till thick and smooth. Take from fire and add yolks of eggs unbroken. Mix thoroughly. If the vinegar is not very sour the juice of one lemon may be needed. Add at this time. Whip cream till stiff and add first mixture. This dressing should stand several hours before using to allow the flavors to blend.

Third Method

Three eggs, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 desiccated flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup oil, ½ cup vinegar.

Put yolks of eggs in top of double boiler and add dry ingredients. Mix perfectly smooth. Beat in oil and then vinegar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly. Remove when the mixture coats the spoon. Beat the whites of the eggs in a bowl with a Dover beater till stiff and dry. Fold in cooked mixture.

Each of these rules will make from one pint to one and one-half pints of dressing, according to the size of the eggs.

CHAPPED SKIN

Milk, 1 part; chalk, 2 parts; glycerine, 1 part. Thoroughly mix and apply.

If a liquid preparation is desired, use glycerine, 1 part; rose or other scented water, 9 parts. Two or three drops of tincture of benzoin will improve this mixture.

CIRASSIAN GOLD CREAM

Fresh mutton suet, 4 oz.; good olive oil, 6 oz.; powdered gum benzoin, 2 oz.; alkali, 1 oz.

Put these ingredients in a jar with a cover, and place the jar in a saucepan of boiling water at the side of the fire. Let it digest for 24 hours. Strain away the fluid part through fine muslin, and stir till about cold. Perfume with 2 dr. of essence of roses, almonds or any perfume desired.

Buttermilk, or sour milk, 2 oz.; grated horseradish, 2 dr.; corn meal, 6 dr.

Spread this mixture between thin muslin and allow it to lie on the affected parts as long as possible at night, care being used to keep it away from the eyes. A simple remedy is to use hydrogen peroxide as a face bleach. If any soreness or irritation follows this treatment, a little warm boracic acid and glycerine should be applied.

DANDRUFF AND HAIR TONIC

Plain kerosene oil, massaged well into the scalp once a week, allowed to remain in over night, and washed out the next day with white castile soap and warm water, is a simple and effective remedy for dandruff and encourages the growth of hair.

HAIR CURLING FLUID

Borax, 3 oz.; gum arabic, 5 dr.; hot water, 2 pt.; spirit of camphor, 2 ½ fl. oz.

Dissolve the borax and the gum in hot water, and when nearly cool add the spirit of camphor. On retiring at night wet the hair with the above liquid.

SHAMPOO

White castile soap in shavings, 2 oz.; ammonia water, 2 fl. oz.; bay rum or cologne water, 1 fl. oz.; glycerine, 1 fl. oz.; water, 12 fl. oz. Dissolve the soap in water by means of heat; when nearly cold, stir in the other ingredients.

LIP SALVE

Glycerine cream, 4 oz.; boracic acid, 1 ½ oz.; carmine, 4 gr.

Mix thoroughly, and dispense in screw-top porcelain jars or in specially made metal boxes.

FACE POWDER

Oatmeal and almond meal, equal parts; perfume at will.

Mix and pass through a coarse sieve.

RICE POWDER

Starch, 3 lb.; rice flour, 1 lb.; perfume at will.

Mix thoroughly and pass through a sieve. Make a mold, or use a package of Lubin's powder for the purpose. Now take sheets of stiff manila paper, cut to the proper size, and fold them on the mold, pasting or sealing the sides so that it can be opened. Fill your cartons with the powder, fold the top and seal it, and then wrap in any embossed or fancy paper.

ROUGE

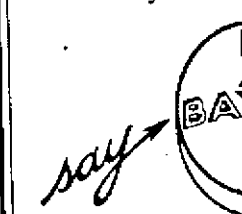

Finest carmine, 20 parts; lead white, 30 parts; French chalk, 50 parts; tincture of benzoin, simple, 5 parts; eau de cologne, 50 parts; rose water, 250 parts. Mix.

PERFUMES—TO EXTRACT

The perfumes of different flowers may be extracted by a simple process, and without any apparatus. Gather the flowers with as little stalk as possible, and place them in a jar three parts filled with olive or almond oil.

INTRODUCING JOHN S. YOUNG, FISH DOCTOR

JOHN S. YOUNG

BY R. J. GIBBONS
CHICAGO, July 15.—John S. Young, a doctor to 4218 fish.
His finny charges get sick frequently. One of the most common piscatorial ailments just now, the doctor says, is whooping cough.

Young presides over the aquatic display of a department store here. He started studying for the job as a boy by operating on fish which he caught in the Gulf of Mexico.

One of his most arduous duties is bathing the fish patients every Saturday night.

Three pet eels, tractable enough at other times, do slippery shimmies on bath night to escape.

Young carries a medicine kit resembling the family physician's.

"Fish require pills and other drugs, just like humans," says he.

The doctor has had a hard fight to save a cat fish that has taken on a sudden lethargy.

"Love sick," he diagnosed the case. "Lost his mate two weeks ago. He's pining for her. See how gloomy his expression is."
It was new to hear of a fish having expression, but the doctor says it's so. Also the finny ones whether in zoo or sea have an aristocracy of their own.

JUVENILE SESSION

An unusually slim docket was heard in the juvenile session of the local police court this morning, despite the fact that this is fruit-stealing season and extra officers have been delegated to watch orchards. One youngster, charged with breaking and entering and larceny, drew a year's probation from the Lyman school, while one girl was sent to Lancaster. The cases of four neglected children were filed.

Movie Actors, at Least, Can

GIRLS WOULDN'T IT BE PERFECTLY WONDERFUL IF WE COULD ALL SEE OURSELVES AS WE ARE WHEN OUR REGULAR FELLOWS MAKE LOVE? THAT'S WHERE THE MOVIE STARS HAVE THE BUZZ ON US.

BY JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, July 15.—Betty Blythe saw herself in "The Queen of Sheba" 34 times.

Betty Bobbin, queen of the sewing machine girls, practices her stitches in front of a mirror every night so she can see better buttonholes the next day.

Mary and Doug have the "takes" of each day's work finished and projected for them before they retire.

Fatty Arbuckle visits all the theatres in Los Angeles which show his pictures. That's to see the reaction upon different audiences made by his five-reelers. If he senses the reaction as we do, he'd react his snap-stick two-reelers.

Ann May played with Charles Ray in "Homer Comes Home." When it had its first showing she asked him if he was going to see it.

"Oh, no, I never go to see my pictures any more," Ray answered.

Ann went. When she left the theatre she saw Ray's machine. She asked the doorman if he had seen Ray.

"Yes, me'am," he answered. "Mr. Ray is inside. He won't be out till the last show's over. He always sits through both shows when his own picture is being shown."

Agnes Ayers has seen every picture she ever appeared in dozens of times. She studies them seriously. Perhaps that's the reason she's a star.

Alice Calhoun is another star who seriously studies her films.

Elsie Ferguson, they say, never goes to see herself as others see her. (Notice it's "they say.")

Wonder what the sensation is when a movie actress sees herself being embraced and kissed on the screen? And before all those people, too!

Wonder if some of the collar-and-studs would put all that shiny stuff on their hair if they knew how it reacted on the audience?

Some of the movie people go to see themselves because they're vain. Others go to study their art. Others out of curiosity. And most of 'em, probably, for all these reasons!

Anyway, if Bobbie Burns lived now he wouldn't have had to invoke Providence to let us see ourselves as others see us.

THE MOVIE CHATTERBOX

"The Tooth Carpenter," a number of Tony Sarg's Almanacs, is showing its fifth week on Broadway. That's longer than some feature films can hold the screen.

Anita Stewart plans to back a series of pictures starring her brother, George. His last picture was with Alice Lake in "Over the Wire."

Jack Dempsey is going back into the movies. To make a 15-reel serial, entitled "The Scarlet Rider."

In the small list of films that hold true to their stories should be included "What Every Woman Knows." Even the London paper acclaim it as being faithful to Barrie.

Ethel Grandin, who played opposite Gareth Hughes in "The Hunch," will play opposite him in "Garments of Truth." She is the wife of Roy Smallwood, who directed Nazimova in "Camille."

Cleo Ridgley returns to the screen in support of Betty Compson in "The Woman in the Case."

"The Man From Lost River" completed.

Irene Castle changes title of "The Broadway Bride" to "With Flying Colors."

George O'Hara is to be leading man for Shirley Mason in "Queenie."

Johnny Walker and Edna Murphy co-star in "The Drifter."

Lee Moran starts "A Mile a Minute."

BURIED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Full military honors marked the funeral today of Priv. John J. Monson, hero of the lost battalion who died in Bellevue hospital after being taken ill while on leave of absence from his post in the regular army.

Monson died last Friday and it was three days before his body was identified. As soon as it became known that he was the man who on Sept. 18, 1918, carried the message through the German lines that routed the lost battalion in the Argonne, scores of civic organizations planned that fitting honors might be paid him at his funeral. Today a column five blocks long marched behind the caisson that carried the body to the Church of the Ascension, where a high reglement mass was sung and thence to Cypress Hills cemetery where military services were held.

Movements have been started to erect a memorial to the heroic soldier.

BABIES STAND HOT
WEATHER WELL

The excessive humidity of the past week, coupled with the high temperatures that have prevailed, have not affected Lowell babies to any appreciable extent. For the past seven days not a single baby death has been reported to the board of health, a most unusual record, even in winter. Good work on the part of the nurses of the health department and Lowell Guild, together with co-operation on the part of parents in following their instructions, are assigned as the chief reasons for the remarkable record.

DEMANDS HEAVY

Heavy demands on the charity department for provisions and supplies continue to be made at city hall. This week, for instance, 45 orders, some of them double, representing 50 single orders, have been given out. This is twice the number that were being disposed of this time last year.

CRIES OUT "I AM INNOCENT MAN"

Dramatic Scene Follows Conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti of Murder

DEDHAM, July 15.—"They kill an innocent man, two innocent men," rang out through the Dedham courtroom last night from the lips of Nicola Sacco, as the jury returned verdicts of guilty against him and Bartolomeo Vanzetti of murder in the first degree of Alessandro Berardelli and Frederick A. Parmenter at South Braintree, April 15, 1920.

When the words of conviction fell from the lips of the foreman, Walter H. Ripley of Quincy, first for Sacco and then for Vanzetti, verdicts of guilty being found on both indictments, the two defendants appeared stunned. Both men acted as if they had been robbed of the power of motion and each stood with his right hand upraised.

As soon as the court cried he spoke the words of adjournment, which followed immediately the receipt of the verdicts, the outburst of Sacco came with dramatic suddenness. Overwrought, but not wholly beaten down by the verdict which carried with it the penalty and punishment of death, a cry of anguish was wrung from Sacco.

"First in the Italian, 'stama innocente,' and then in English, the protestation sounded several times while the jury was filing out from the courtroom. Some of the jurors looked back but did not stop. Sacco held two fingers aloft. Breaking through the ring of guards around the prisoner's cage, Mrs. Sacco rushed to her husband's side. They grasped one another in a tight embrace.

Pulling his right arm free, Sacco again declared: "Don't forget they kill two innocent men," and from the lips of his young wife came the echo, "You bet your life." "Oh, they kill my man, what am I going to do, my two children," Mrs. Sacco cried.

A court officer sought in separate Mrs. Sacco from her husband and she cried out, "No, I won't." She soon became hysterical. These scenes occurred a moment. Mrs. Sacco's cries sounded through the building. Mrs. Fred H. Moore, wife of the defendants' counsel, came to console her.

HIDDY BANTAM

"BETTER ROOST HIGH," SUGGESTED SPRINKLE-BLOW. "FLEETY MIGHT LIKE CHICKEN BETTER THAN HE DOES EGGS."

"I think that things in the sky will take care of themselves now for a spell," said Sprinkle-Blow to Nancy and Nick, "so we may as well be getting down to earth again. As I told you before, the only way in which I can find out just what people want is to stay around and see what they're planning to do. Let's be going."

So he said, "One for the money and two for the show," and all the rest of it, and they all gave a big jump and came landing down right beside Farmer Smith's chicken-coop where Biddy Bantam was scratching for grubs and shiny black beetles. Biddy hadn't started to raise a family yet, but she was going to soon, the weather was so fine. She had found a lovely place in the hay stack nobody knew about and already had 10 eggs in it. When she had four more she was going to cluck. She swelled with pride when she thought of the 14 little fluffy peeps she would soon be mothering, and scratched harder than ever. It was well to keep in practice with the prospect of such a large family to feed.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck, cluck," she clucked. "Won't Farmer Smith be surprised. But I'm worried for fear something may happen to my nest. Since it is so warm now, I think I'll sleep up in the plum tree and keep one eye open."

"How can you sleep and keep one eye open?" asked Nancy.

"Oh, so you heard what I said?" remarked Biddy turning around. "I didn't know anybody was near. Yes, I have to watch, for Fleet Fox is as hungry as a bear after such a cold winter."

himself may be brought from state prison to testify as to what promises were made to him.

Three new witnesses were sworn and James S. Athanas, former president and treasurer of the International Service company, testified that his concern was incorporated Oct. 20, 1913, with offices at 8 Winter street, Boston, and branches subsequently in Springfield, Pittsfield, Worcester, Lowell and Lynn, to do a real estate and investment business, mainly second mortgages. About the middle of May, 1920, Capt. Gordon (who is attached to the office of the district attorney of Middlesex), called on the witness, he testified, and said he had complaints against the concern.

Against Admission

Fletcher Ranney, for the defense, argued against the admission of any conversation, declaring "Gordon was in no way an agent of the district attorney and any such conversation cannot be held binding upon him."

Atty.-Gen. Allen responded: "Gordon is named as a co-conspirator and moreover, the commonwealth takes the position that testimony as to the acts of persons on the staff of the district attorney, for which he is responsible, is admissible."

The court ruled that the testimony could not go in unless there was evidence of conspiracy.

Atty.-Gen. Allen—"We are going to introduce evidence of conspiracy. These are the first steps."

Chief Justice Ruger—"Directly connecting Mr. Tufts and Capt. Gordon as conspirators?"

Would Be Admitted

The chief justice then announced that on such an assurance, from the attorney-general, the evidence would be admitted but should be proved unable to carry out his pledge it would be stricken out.

Athanas was then allowed to continue that he asked what complaints had been made, but for a long time Gordon refused to specify. Athanas said he pleaded that some unfair propaganda must have been put in circulation.

"Capt. Gordon told me that he had been sent by Mr. Tufts to investigate me, and I said: 'If you are telling the truth what you report will put me as high as the sky, but if you are crooked you can put me way down!' I said the people from the state house had already investigated me, and Capt. Gordon said: 'Tell that to Mr. Tufts.'"

Not to Publish

The witness concluded that he asked Gordon not to publish anything and not to put the concern in court. Subsequently Athanas "went to an adviser, who pretended to be a spiritualist, Omar Culbar, 22 Federal street, Salem."

Joseph L. Meisse, 20 Washington place, Northampton, told for the first time the story of the harboring, for three and a half weeks in his home, of the escaped murderer, Barney. Meisse had refused to relate the tale to various newspapers. The two were school chums in Dorchester years before, he testified. Barney arrived on a motorcycle, in company with one "Frank Smith," at Meisse's home in Northampton June 8, 1920, and stayed (th) June 30. On June 26 Stephen C. Bresnahan came and talked with Barney. In the evening for about an hour, and on leaving was followed by Barney. As appeared from the testimony of other witnesses, Barney took the number of the automobile in which Bresnahan arrived with O'Halloran. Subsequently Bresnahan and Earl Barney, stepfather of the convict, came and saw Barney. Meisse overheard what was said. It was at this point that Mr. Hurlburt was stopped, when he tried to get in the conversation, and dramatically made his offer of proof as to the promises of pardon on Tufts' elevation to the gubernatorial chair, and asylum in Rutland pending that.

Sent Letter Back

the witness mailed either in Williamsburg or Easthampton a letter from Barney to Bresnahan, now a member of the bar, who had testified earlier in the day that he acted last spring as "counsel" for the Barney family, although not then admitted to the bar. Barney received an answer in an envelope addressed to the witness. This bit of evidence slipped in before the objections of the defense could be acted on. Meisse had a talk with Barney about going back to prison, and mailed a letter for him to a postoffice clerk in Cambridge from Shelburne Falls, where the witness was then working.

Witness Meisse, on cross-examination by Atty. Johnson, was requested to write, twice, the names of Stephen C. Bresnahan and E. O. Barney, and was then asked whether he had written Bresnahan since Barney's departure, demanding money. After some hesitation, the witness replied in the negative, admitted he had written Earl Barney, but denied asking for money. He qualified his denial as to writing Bresnahan by saying he had no memory of writing. He also admitted signing a letter to Earl Barney "Sweet Sixteen."

Presented Letter

Then Atty. Johnson presented before the witness a letter, and the latter admitted his signature. "Now," said Mr. Johnson, "you've told the story of how you harbored Herman Barney, the convict, fugitive from justice; do you expect immunity?"

"I don't know what you mean by immunity. I don't expect prosecution."

"Why?"

"Because I don't think any district-

attorney or anybody else would have a case against me."

On Our Judgment

Mr. Johnson read the letter, which stated that a newspaperman had been to see the writer, and "if you folks don't care to advise me, I'll have to act according to my own judgment. I do intend to have a show-down. I'm damned sure I'm not going to lose any sleep over it." The letter also stated that the writer had written to "S" (meaning Stephen Bresnahan). The witness explained the "Sweet Sixteen" signature, and "Chicago" date line as a take-off on the missive he had himself received.

Mrs. Carrie O. Meisse, pretty, pink-cheeked and girlish, corroborated her husband's evidence as to the arrival of Barney and the visits of Bresnahan and Earl Barney. She said that when Bresnahan telephoned, Barney refused to talk over the wire, and she had to do the talking. She was not allowed to tell the conversation she heard as to promises made to Barney.

Startling Contradiction

Mrs. Meisse presented one startling contradiction to the previous testimony of the day. Bresnahan, O'Halloran and Chauffeur Doherty were all certain that they did not go near the house where Barney was harbored. Mrs. Meisse asserted that when Bresnahan came back for the last time, Barney had just left and, as Bresnahan turned away from the house, she saw a gray automobile approach in which were Tufts and the chauffeur who had been on the witness stand preceding her. Bresnahan halted, and was taken in the car. The testimony of the men had been that they took Barney in the car first, and later Bresnahan.

According to Mrs. Meisse, it was she who persuaded Barney, at the last moment, not to run away. She was not cross-examined.

TAKE YOUR LAST LOOK AT A FLETCHER STREET CAR

Did you know that there is a home for aged street cars in Lowell just as there is a home for elderly women and a home for elderly men? There is a place provided for these veterans of the trolley and tracks where they may pass out their declining years with old friends with whom they were active co-workers in the days of their youth and strength. It's out in the country where there is peace and quiet and no whizzing automobiles and ponderous trucks to make life miserable.

Out in the barn of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., in Middlesex street and on the tracks around the barn is stored away many a romantic tale of early railroading days in Lowell, of the days when the horse car was gradually giving away to his more modern successor, the electric car, and when people knew nothing of such contrivances as pay-as-you-enter systems and one-man cars. Volumes could be filled with interesting anecdotes of the battered veterans which now stand on rusty wheels awaiting their final fate. Lifeless though they are with not even the enervating energy of electrical current to animate them, nevertheless, when the stories of their careers are unfolded by somebody who knew them in their youth, they seem to take on the appearance of human beings and if one has a touch of romance or sentiment in his heart, they become the personification of many an interesting story.

These old cars, no longer fit for active service, are the pensioners of the street railway company. But they are not expensive pensioners. All they ask is a place to stay and not even the cheer of a roof do they require. They are content to pass out in the very elements in which they did their work years ago and they scorn the coddling which their successors, the up-to-date, one-man cars receive in the way of constant shelter and frequent repairs when they are not on duty.

Barling His History

All that is needed to bring out the stories of these dumb cars is one man who has on his lips the "Open Sesame" which lays bare their history. And these are few railway men better fitted for this task than Thos. Lees, manager of the Lowell district of the Eastern Massachusetts and a railwayman since 1889. Manager Lees can give you the day and date of every important event in the history of the local division and in company with a Sun reporter and photographer he walked around the spacious yard of the company in Middlesex street this morning and gave the personal history of practically every car in the enclosure. He talked of them as though they were old friends and indeed they are, many of them, for he has spent many years with them.

For instance, Mr. Lees and his visitors first met Car No. 144, an old closed car of the 20-foot type no longer used for passenger service. It is now employed as a light car, bringing rear lights to the square to be put on modern workers when darkness falls.

"That car came here in 1894 at the opening of the Lowell-Lawrence line," said Manager Lees without any hesitation. "It was made over from a horse-car."

Some Old Horse Cars

Many of the old cars now at the barn in Middlesex street were formerly horse cars. Mr. Lees explained that the electrification of the road started in 1892 the horse cars were cut in the center and two additional windows put in extending the length from 16 to 20 feet. Changes in other parts of the car had to be made, of course, but the body remained practically the same as that of the old horse-car. Many people have had the idea that when the electric car came into being all the horse-cars were automatically consigned to the junk pile or else relegated to some out-of-the-way community. But this is not so; many of them were in use right on the local lines up to within a few years ago.

One way of telling the renovated horse-cars, Manager Lees said, is the colored glass in the windows on the top of the car. At one time, he said, even the outside of the cars were painted different colors to designate various routes. He recalls distinctly that the Dracut route, when it was covered by horse-cars, was designated by Scotch plaid decorations on the exterior of the car.

The electrification of the local division was in charge of Adam Cochran, now holding a responsible position with the Lawrence hoistery. Many of the cars were converted from horse-drawn affairs to electric by Andrew Moffatt, who is still employed as a carpenter in the repair shop of the company.

Before the actual electrification of the local road could be consummated there had to be a consolidation of two competing companies. The Lowell

& Dracut Street Railway company had been running an electric line from Lowell to Lakeview, the first electric line to be conducted here. In Lowell proper horse-car lines were being run by the Lowell Horse-Car Street Railway company. Finally there came a consolidation and in the summer of 1892 the first purely local electric car line was opened on Broadway. There was a great celebration to mark the affair which terminated in a big banquet on the lawn of the Colonel Parker estate. Officials of the railroad and city government members were among those present.

The second local route to be electrified was the Nesmith street line and another celebration was held when the first car ran over that line. It was given by the late Thomas Costello.

Old Cars Still There

Many of these old cars which served as horse cars first and later as electric cars are still standing on the tracks in the company's yards in Middlesex street. Some of them have been there for years, used once in a while in case of an emergency, but for the most part just standing there idle. The company is making an effort to dispose of all its old stock and many of the old-timers will soon be sold for junk. A few exceptions will be the sturdily built larger cars which will be sold to other companies. They are no longer available for use on the lines of the Eastern Massachusetts. The constantly growing demands for accommodations on the local lines and those going from here to other cities has made it necessary that every available inch of space be secured for the use of cars in everyday service. Therefore, the old veterans will have to go.

One of the cars now standing in the Middlesex street yard was driven as a horse car by Manager Lees when he was a conductor in 1889. That was the year of the big East Merrimack street fire. During the summer, of course, open horse cars were run but as the fall drew on there was a natural demand for closed cars but it was November when the snow was flying before the long awaited cars arrived. There were five assigned to the Westford street-bridge street route and Conductor Lees received Car No. 41. That car was later electrified and several years ago it was sent to the barn no longer fit for service. Today it stands silently and once in a while Manager Lees steals over to get a look at it and recall the days when he drove it behind a pair of horses. The other conductors on the same route at that time were Alex Roundtree, now salesman for a local wholesale house; James Foye, now dead; Michael Noonan, a city employe, and John Lowney, a former inspector for the water department.

Fletcher Street Relic

The accompanying cut shows one of the oldest cars in the Middlesex street yard. It is a former Fletcher street conveyance and had previously served as a horse-car. Manager Lees at one time collected fares in it before it had been electrified. This is now known as Car 225 and occupies a little reserved section all for itself in honor, perhaps, of the noted lines on which it once ran.

When The Sun photographer went to take a picture of it this morning, it was found that the trolley was still attached to the wire and immediately there was a panic. "Take that trolley down," someone hollered, "or the car will run away. It's a Fletcher street boat, remember."

Down came the trolley and the danger was over. Inside the car was a sign which read as follows and which will be of interest to former patrons of the famous line: "This car has super-springs contributing quiet and ease."

There are few Lowell people who are aware of the fact that Lowell stands out prominently in the history of electric railway development in this country. Lowell was the first city to use alternating current for street railway purposes. It was the first city to employ double truck vestibule box cars and it was the first city to use two-truck open cars.

Many of the old local cars have been converted into up-to-date, one-man cars; the others are simply waiting for the time when they will be converted into junk and that time is not far off.

BABY IN HER BASKET

Get a basket for baby! Just a plain market basket with two strong handles is all you need. The splint makes a light, airy, comfortable seat for the little lady and she's much easier to tote about than if you just take her on your arm. The basket is an excellent idea for automobiling. With little effort on the part of father, it can be securely fastened between the seats, thus making baby and mother much more comfortable than if the child has to be held for a long drive. It is a good idea to reinforce the handles of the basket on the under side with strong wire.

send a letter by special standpoint, to a farmer who lives miles away from the postoffice. Such letters usually go by the regular rural route delivery and the government is in the position of receiving money under false pretenses. They can't special deliver in these cases even for a quarter, but what they purpose doing is, whenever it is possible, telephoning the remote locations that a special delivery letter is at the postoffice, whereupon, if he considers it of sufficient importance, the farmer can come in for it, or authorize the postmaster to engage a messenger to take it out, or to tell him that a neighbor is coming that way and authorize the postmaster to trust the messenger to him. Anybody, the postmaster general thinks, would rather pay a quarter for an actual special delivery service than a dime for a theoretical one.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our relatives, friends and employees of the Columbian Textile company for the sympathy, flowers and spiritual offerings received at the death of our sister, Margaret Shea.
